Mr. ALDRICH. I certainly understood the Senator in that way. I shall be glad if the Senator from Florida will agree to the suggestion of the Senator from Maryland, and also to the suggestion to amend the proposition in line 30, by striking out the word "and," and after the word "rice" inserting "or other agricultural products," so that the Secretary of Agriculture shall have a right to expend any portion of the money in experiments in the production of sugar cane, rice, or other agricultural products produced on reclaimed swamp land. That will enlarge the field of the inquiry. I do not know any reason why it should be confined to sugar cane and rice. If we are going into the business of experimenting on swamp lands why not see what other agricultural products can be produced on those lands?

Mr. CALL. I have no objection to extending it if the Senator has a particular objection to rice.

Mr. ALDRICH. I have no objection to rice. I think we had better enlarge the provision and take in all such products.

Mr. CALL. I have not the slightest objection. I will merely say in explanation that these experiments have been conducted for three years. The late Senator from Kansas, Mr. Plumb, was a great advocate of this experimentation not only as to sugar cane and the extraction of the juice by cheaper processes, but in respect to sorghum and beet sugar. It was chiefly through his efforts that for many years an appropriation for this purpose has been made in the agricultural appropriation acts. A large sum of money, as stated by the Senator from California [Mr. PERKINS], has been expended in these experiments not only as to sugar cane, but also to beets, and the endeavor has been to distribute equally its benefits upon the different sections of the country. I have no objection to accepting the suggestion of the Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. ALDRICH. I suggest to insert, in line 30, before the words "sugar cane," the words "the production of."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state that the question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN].

Mr. ALDRICH. I understood that amendment had been agreed to.

Mr. CALL. I accepted it. The Senator from California [Mr. PERKINS], I understand, is willing that the words as to the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys shall be stricken out.

Mr. PERKINS. I am willing to accept the amendment proposed by the Senator from Maryland.

Mr. CALL. I accept it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the amendment will be considered as agreed to.

Mr. ALDRICH. I move to amend the proviso so as to read:

Provided, That so much thereof as may be necessary may, in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture, be expended in experiments on the production of sugar cane, sorghum, or other agricultural products on reclaimed swamp lands.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. CHANDLER. I am opposed to the amendment. The Senator from Rhode Island is too diffusive in his motions. The Senator started out to oppose the expenditure of money for sugar cane and rice experimentation upon private lands. He seems now to have abandoned his objection to expending money on private lands, and seek to have experimentation in regard to ~~sugar cane~~ culture and rice culture and the culture of all other agricultural products anywhere in the United States where the Secretary of Agriculture chooses to go.

Mr. ALDRICH. I beg the Senator from New Hampshire not to understand me in my position. I have not abandoned the motion to strike out the proviso. I have submitted an amendment merely to perfect the text preparatory to striking it all out.

Mr. CHANDLER. I still say the Senator covers too much ground. I am opposed to diverting this small sum of money from experimentation in the culture of sugar cane to making it embrace other agricultural products.

I think it was a mistake for the rice producers to procure the insertion of the one word "rice." The Secretary of Agriculture with this limited appropriation for all the purposes specified in the first portion of the paragraph ~~can not~~ can not much. He certainly can not occupy any considerable number of acres with the cultivation of swamp land in California, and if he is to be commended by Congress to experiment upon swamp lands anywhere or everywhere in the United States where he may find them, for the purpose of determining what agricultural products these lands are fitted to produce, the experiment will be so broad that a very much larger sum of money ought to be given to it. I think the experimentation in sugar culture, which has been going on for many years, and for which in the pending bill a very moderate amount of money is proposed to be appropriated, ought to be allowed to go on, and that the experimentation ought not to be made as extensive as it is now proposed. Therefore I hope the amendment will be voted down.

If after that it is satisfactory to the Senator from California not to require the Secretary of Agriculture to expend the money upon swamp lands in the San Joaquin or Sacramento Valley, then I trust an amendment to that effect may be made. The amount of money to be expended is, after all, small, and the number of acres that are to be improved by the expenditure of Government money is not large, and I certainly have no sympathy whatever with the objection made to this appropriation by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD]. When Louisiana has had so many millions of dollars of Government money expended in developing the production of sugar cane in that State it is, I think, ungenerous in the Senator from Louisiana to oppose the expenditure of this small sum of money in the State of California.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH]. The Chair hears none, and the amendment will be considered as agreed to. The question is on the motion to strike out the proviso as amended.

Mr. McPHERSON. The amendment of the Senator from Rhode Island, if I understand it aright, will enable the Secretary of Agriculture to make these experiments upon a scale as large as he pleases.

Mr. ALDRICH. Subject to the limitation of $10,000.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion to strike out the proviso as amended.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. LODGE. If the committee amendments have been disposed of, I desire to offer an amendment to the bill.

Mr. PERKINS. I desire to make an inquiry for information. I understand the amendment offered by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] was agreed to, striking out in line 21, page 20, after the word "place" the words "in the San Joaquin or Sacramento Valley, California, to be used by the Department."

Mr. GORMAN. I understand that my amendment was adopted. Mr. ALDRICH. The amendment of the Senator from Maryland was adopted, and then the amendment was agreed to, which was to strike out the whole proviso.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Mr. LODGE. Does this come out of my time?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will see that the rights of the Senator from Massachusetts are protected. The Senator from Massachusetts submits an amendment, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. Insert after line 10, page 9:

For the extermination of the cypress moth, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture, $20,000.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, I offer that amendment in the hope of getting aid from the United States in the extermination of one of the worst pests that has ever been imported into this country. The first specimens were brought from Europe about twenty-five years ago by an entomologist. They were, unfortunately, allowed to escape, and in the course of five or fifteen years in the neighborhood of Boston particularly, and in the neighboring towns of Medford and Lynn, they assumed great proportions. Their ravages became so extensive that it was necessary for the State to take action, and during the last five years the State of Massachusetts has spent nearly $400,000 for the extermination of this moth. It comes, as I said, from Europe. It is extremely prolific. I think the female lays something like thirteen or fourteen hundred eggs, and even after exposure to a new England winter 70 per cent of the eggs will survive. In the Southern States they would produce two broods. They destroy practically every growing thing, particularly trees. They destroy all the products of the truck farm. They destroy corn. They will destroy grass if there is nothing better for them to take.

By the expenditure of the large sum of money which I have mentioned by the State of Massachusetts the area of the ravages of this moth have been checked; that is, it is not been allowed to spread beyond the original area, and it is undoubtedly much reduced. They are easily carried. They are, as I have said, extremely prolific, and in a warm climate would be particularly so. The extent of the damage which this insect does can only be judged by those who have seen it. They are more destructive, I think, than almost any known insect. They are known in Europe. They have been there for many years, especially in the Mediterranean states, and large sums of money have been expended there by the Government in restricting the area and endeavoring to exterminate the moth.

The State of Massachusetts has spent the amount I have stated, and will spend a great deal more in this work, but the State feels that it is entitled to some assistance from the National Government, because it is doing what is really a national work, as the extension of the moth to the other States would be of great damage. It is for this reason that I have offered the amendment. I feel about as I felt about the Russian thistle, that it is something to spread from one State to another, inflicting the greatest possible damage, and that it is therefore something for the extermination of which the assistance of the United States should be given.

Mr. GORMAN. I move to lay the amendment on the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maryland to lay the pending amendment on the table.

Mr. LODGE. Let us have the yeas and nays.

Mr. CALL. I hope the Senator from Massachusetts will not call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. CHANDLER. I was under a misapprehension—

Mr. CALL. If I may be allowed to say a word, I shall be very willing to vote any reasonable sum for the purpose the Senator mentions, but I do not think there has been any estimate or recommendation on the subject.

Mr. HOAR. I should like to ask the Senator from Maryland, if I may have the assent of the Senate, although his motion to lay on the table is of course not debatable—

Mr. GORMAN. I will withdraw the motion.

Mr. HOAR. I ask the Senator from Maryland whether he will not consent as a representative of the committee to have this appropriation or some portion of it at least put at the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture. Our people without any exception (I do not think they are apt to be panic-stricken) regard this as a great menace to the agriculture of this country. As my colleague has stated, our Commonwealth alone has spent $400,000 to stop this pest. I do not think there is another State in the Union that would come to the Senate with that statement made by its Senators without receiving aid. If the State of Florida were to come here and say that thing, or the State of Colorado or any of the new States of the West would come and say they had expended $400,000 to check a pest which was menacing the whole country and should ask moderate aid from the National Government, it would be impossible for any Congress to refuse to accept as an amendment the addition of the words "to be expended if in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture it shall seem desirable," or some phrase of that sort.

Mr. LODGE. Certainly.

Mr. HOAR. I appeal to the Senator from Maryland to let it go.

Mr. CALL. Will the Senator allow me to ask him a question? I ask the two Senators from Massachusetts if they are satisfied that the amount named is not unnecessarily large for the work? Mr. HOAR. Make it $45,000.

Mr. HOAR. Make it a smaller sum, say $40,000.

Mr. CALL. I will submit the question to the Senate. As far as I am concerned, I attach great importance to the statement of the Senators from Massachusetts.

Mr. HOAR. I am willing it shall have the responsibility behind it of the Secretary of Agriculture, who comes from a distant part of the Union, as to the propriety of the expenditure, not making any reservation.

Mr. HOAR. With that modification I hope my friend from Maryland will see his way clear to waive all objection to the amendment.

Mr. GORMAN. It is difficult to refuse any request the Senator from Massachusetts makes about a business matter of this sort; but the Senator is perfectly well aware that the present very distinguished Secretary of Agriculture and his corps of officials have been exceedingly active in looking up every subject, it seems to me, on the face of the earth that troubles the soil, or the air, or individuals, or cattle. The Secretary has recommended appropriations, and the appropriations are found all through the bill, always to be disbursed, however, with a liberal appropriation for officers. In this case it seems the Secretary has not made an estimate. I do not know whether the matter was brought to his attention, whether it is widespread or troublesome, and he overlooked it, or whether it is only beginning. The point I make is that it is the beginning of a system of making appropriations for stamping out a pest, and it ought to be done only on the recommendation of that Department, and the reasons given by him for it.

Mr. LODGE. Will the Senator from Maryland allow me to interrupt him?

Mr. GORMAN. With pleasure.

Mr. LODGE. The State of Massachusetts undertook alone to deal with this pest and has spent $375,000 and will probably spend this year twice as much as is asked for here. The matter was not presented officially to the attention of the Secretary of Agriculture,

The entomologist of the Department was brought up there to examine the work being done and testified before the Committee on Agriculture in regard to it. The State has no desire to ask for money if it is not thought on due investigation by the Secretary of Agriculture that we are engaged in what amounts to a national work, of which we are willing to do and glad to do the larger part. But if we are engaged in a national work in preventing the spread of a pest which will be of the utmost damage to all the States and particularly to the South, where the climate is milder, we feel that it is not unfair that we should have in that work some national assistance.

I am perfectly willing to modify the amendment as suggested by my colleague and make the sum smaller, and leave it to the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture to make any expenditure at all; but I should like to have the amendment in that form go in the bill, so that the matter may come before the Secretary of Agriculture, and if he is not convinced that the work which is being done there is a national work of interest to all the States we will not ask him to spend a dollar of the appropriation. It is only on that ground that I desire to put it.

Mr. CHANDLER. I attended last summer a meeting of the American Forestry Association, where there was a full exhibition made of the ravages of this gypsy moth in the State of Massachusetts. It would have been better perhaps for Massachusetts to have let the moths get out into warmer regions. Perhaps it would have been better to have allowed them to go down South where there is a milder climate, and where they would grow, leaving the bleak hills of New England for the sunny South. Massachusetts did not do that. She spent this money lavishly, as she always expends money lavishly for any good work of this kind, and she has limited the area of this terrible destroyer.

I do not believe the Senator from Maryland wants to see those moths in Maryland. I do not believe any Senator upon the other side of the Chamber wants to see a devastating swarm of gypsy moths take possession of the foliage of the magnificent forests of the South. When this amount of money has been expended as it has been by Massachusetts, and she wants some recognition of what has been done by the National Government, I think that Senators ought to be willing to allow the amendment to be adopted.

If the Secretary of Agriculture, who is giving close attention to his business, finds, after the amendment has gone with the bill into conference, that he does not want it, that it is not necessary, that it is not useful, that it is not wise, that it is not within the scope of other similar work of the Department, then there will be no objection to having the amendment stricken out in conference. But I do ask Senators, particularly those from other States and connections, to let us have, amidst the lavish appropriations of this bill in behalf of other sections of the country, this little recognition and a little help for the work that Massachusetts is doing to suppress a pest that will devastate the forests of the whole country if it is not checked.

Mr. GORMAN. After the statement of the Senators from Massachusetts, as I see they have modified the amendment so as to provide that the money shall be expended in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture, I shall not press the motion to lay the amendment on the table.

Mr. LODGE. I ask that the amendment may be read as modified.

Mr. BATE. I should like to say that the pending amendment has been before the Agricultural Committee. I believe it was stated that it had not been before any committee. I am a member of the Committee on Agriculture. There was no final action, however, taken upon it, but there was decided opposition shown in the committee to it. It was referred to a subcommittee, from which I think there was no report. I understand it has not been recommended by the Secretary of Agriculture; that no estimate was made for it, and no committee has recommended it. It comes in here de novo. I think it ought not to be adopted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Senator from Massachusetts will be stated as modified.

The SECRETARY. At the end of line 10, page 9, insert:

For the extermination of the gypsy moth, to be expended upon the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture, if in his judgment it may be necessary and expedient, $100,000.

Mr. CALL. I desire to say that, so far as I am concerned, not as being in charge of this bill, but as a member of the committee, I think a statement of fact such as has been made by the two Senators from Massachusetts gives them a right to recognition upon the bill. Therefore I make no objection to the amendment as a member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. BATE. As we have the yeas and nays on agreeing to it. The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BUTLER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON]. I do not see him in his seat, and I withhold my vote.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. BLACKBURN (when Mr. LINDSAY's name was called). My colleague [Mr. LINDSAY] has been necessarily called from the Chamber. I do not know whether he has a pair; but he asked me to announce that his absence from the Chamber was owing to unavoidable conditions which he could not control. He left just now.

Mr. McLAURIN (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON]. I transfer that pair to the junior Senator from South Carolina [Mr. INBY], and vote "nay."

Mr. McMILLAN (when his name was called). I inquire if the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD] has voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted, the Chair is advised.

Mr. McMILLAN. I am paired with that Senator.

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD]. I transfer that pair to the junior Senator from Kentucky [Mr. LINDSAY], and vote "nay."

Mr. VILAS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL], who is absent on official business. I do not know how he would vote.

Mr. PETTIGREW (when Mr. WASHBURN's name was called). I was requested by the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN] to state that he is paired with the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST]. If the Senator from Minnesota were present he would vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS]. I will transfer my pair to the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRELL] and vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 34, nays 23; as follows:

So the amendment was modified was agreed to.

Mr. ALLEN. I offer an amendment which I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. Insert after line 15, page 6:

For the purpose of purchasing and distributing seed and seed grain among the drought-stricken portions of the United States by the Secretary of Agriculture, under such rules as he may prescribe, the sum of $200,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary, the same to be immediately available.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I desire to state briefly that there is very great necessity for the adoption of this amendment. It is not proper for me to stand here and describe as fully as I could the distress that prevails in this country in consequence of the recent drought. It is sufficient to say that the drought extended over a portion of my own State, a portion of the Dakotas, Kansas, and Colorado. It was not a single drought; it was a drought that occurred two different years; so that a great many thousands of people will be unable to plant their farms to raise crops of any consequence unless some aid is extended to them. I do not propose at this time to go into the ramifications of this distress. It is sufficient to state that the distress is greater than the press has at any time given the world to understand.

Since I introduced this amendment I have been in daily receipt of letters from all sections of the drought-stricken country, not from the State of Nebraska alone, but from Kansas, from a portion of Colorado, and a portion of South Dakota. It is somewhat exceptional in the history of our State that we should have such complete failures of crops, one succeeding the other. The sole cause has been in the State of Nebraska, and especially in the western portion of the State, that we have had crops and good crops. In fact the rule has been in the western portion of the State that we have had good crops. But it must be remembered by Senators that the sections of country to which I refer as having suffered most in consequence of the droughts are sections of the country where the people are living upon homesteads and where they are undergoing all of the privations and hardships incident to pioneer life. If some measures are not adopted to relieve them the coming summer, in the nature of furnishing them seed to some extent, there will be a great many hundreds of thousands of acres of land that can not be planted, and a great many thousands of people will be out of employment.

This is a delicate matter for me to talk about. Upon one hand are real-estate men who are claiming that the credit of the trans- Mississippi is affected by talking about these matters, which I do not believe. Upon the other hand is the cry of distress of thousands and tens of thousands of people; and when I am put to the test of choosing between following the wishes of a few real-estate men and answering the cries of distress and hunger of my fellow-citizens I prefer to take the latter course.

There are precedents for this, and I shall detain the Senate but a moment. April 11, 1882, Congress appropriated money for a similar purpose in an act which will be found in chapter 77 of the Statutes at Large, volume 23, as follows:

That the sum of $30,000 be, and the same is hereby appropriated for the purchase and distribution of seeds under the direction of the Commissioner of Agriculture, to be given to people in localities overflooded, who are made distressed by the present overflow of the Mississippi River and its tributaries.

There are other precedents which I have examined, but the reference to which I have mislaid. Congress and the Government have on more than one occasion made contributions to people of different sections of the country who have been overtaken with some great misfortune. It has been a common thing to contribute support to frost-stricken districts, to districts which have been overflooded. Where some great misfortune has befallen the people of any particular section of the country, which becomes a national calamity, it has been the custom of the Government to extend relief to them.

I do not ask that this relief be given absolutely to these people. I ask that the sum be placed at the disposal of the Secretary of Agriculture, so that in his wisdom he may, if he sees fit, invest this sum of money in seed and seed grains for the purpose of relieving these people to the extent he may deem proper.

Mr. PEPPER. Mr. President, I wish the Senator from Nebraska would localize the effect of his proposed amendment, if he can do so, for this reason: While we have not been so fortunate in our whole State of Kansas as they have been in some other parts of the country, yet our difficulties lie chiefly in the western portion of the State. The legislature has already taken action looking toward the supply of those people with seeds of all varieties. A hundred thousand dollars have been appropriated. I think the act took effect two weeks ago, perhaps a little longer, and the machinery of purchase and distribution is now all in effective working order. The people who need supplies of this kind are being furnished right along from day to day, the seeds being distributed through the commissioners of the various counties.

As to the smaller seeds, the garden seeds, flower seeds, and things of that kind such as are usually distributed by the national department of Agriculture, I have borrowed and begged—I shall not say “stolen,” for I have not had an opportunity to do that [laughter]—but I have borrowed and in other ways have received from fellow-Senators, whose more fortunate neighbors do not need them so much as ours, a large amount of seed, and up to this time I have kept pace with the demand for that class of seed.

At any rate, whether or not the Senator from Nebraska sees proper to limit the area of his amendment, I wish him and the Senate to understand that, so far as Kansas is concerned, our people have taken care of themselves.

Mr. ALLEN. I do not know what the Senator from Kansas means by limiting the area of my amendment. I do know, and I am not going to cavil with him, that there is distress in Kansas. I have no sympathy with this false sentiment which witnesses distress in this country and yet is afraid to speak of it for fear somebody may be offended. There is distress in western Kansas, and there is widespread distress.

Mr. PEPPER. I know it, but we are taking care of it. That is all I wish to say.

Mr. ALLEN. There is distress in western Nebraska, and it is widespread; there is distress in eastern Colorado, and that is widespread, and there is considerable distress in North Dakota, all occasioned by drought.

It is true, Mr. President, in my State the legislature has enacted a law authorizing the counties to be authorized to provide aid in the line of furnishing seed to those who have suffered in consequence of the drought and who are unable to procure seed for themselves; but I want to say that that is inadequate to the demand. I have sent into my State not only my own quota of seed allowed by the Department of Agriculture, but I procured seed so far as I have been able from others; but it is a mere bagatelle. I say that in the State of Kansas, in the State of Nebraska, and in the State of Colorado there will be thousands of acres of land unplanted this year unless some measure of relief be brought to the people of those sections of the Union. I do not say that it is absolutely necessary for Congress to do it, but it must be done by somebody and in some manner. We voted into this bill twenty minutes ago $30,000 to extinguish the gypsy moth, which I suppose someone brought into this country to experiment with, and it got loose from him and is now afflicting the State of Massachusetts. Here are thousands and tens of thousands of people who are at the mercy of their fellow-citizens in some form; they must have relief at the hands of the people of this country, through Congress or otherwise, or many of them will be deprived of planting their lands.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. GORMAN. I ask the Senator from Nebraska to modify his amendment by inserting the words “in the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture.”

Mr. ALLEN. I accede to that suggestion.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. As modified the amendment will read as follows:

For the purpose of purchasing and distributing seeds and seed grains among the drought-stricken inhabitants of the United States by the Secretary of Agriculture, and in his discretion and under such rules as he may prescribe, the sum of $30,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, the same to be made immediately available.

Mr. SQUIRE. I wish to make an inquiry there as to whether the terms used would be such as to include those portions of the United States which have been fire swept? The forest fires have destroyed many thousand acres.

Mr. ALLEN. No; it does not cover that case, but I am perfectly willing that those words should come in, so that the amendment will read “drought-stricken or fire-stricken.”

Mr. SQUIRE. Yes; let it read that way.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be so modified.

Mr. PASCO. How has the amendment been modified?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment as modified will be stated.

The Secretary read as follows:

For the purpose of purchasing and distributing seeds and seed grains among the drought or fire-stricken inhabitants of the United States by the Secretary of Agriculture, etc.

Mr. PASCO. Mr. President, if we are going to enter upon this line of expenditure, it seems to me that we ought also to include the frost-stricken inhabitants of the extreme South. The people of my State have been severely deprived of the means of planting their ground. Their truck patches have been ruined by the phenomenal cold of the past season, and if we are going to enter upon this line of expenditure, I suggest that the amendment be further modified by including those sufferers also.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is that the motion of the Senator from Florida?

Mr. PASCO. I make that motion.

Mr. ALLEN. What is the motion?

Mr. PASCO. That the frost-stricken inhabitants of the extreme South be included.

Mr. ALLEN. I hope the Senator will not insist upon that amendment.

Mr. CALL. I ask the Senator from Nebraska why not?

Mr. ALLEN. Simply for this reason: No distress has been brought to the people of Florida or any other section in consequence of frost. There is no loss of crops.

Mr. PASCO. I say that there was a total loss of the crop in my State on account of the extremely cold weather we have had there during the last few weeks.

Mr. CHANDLER. May I ask the Senator whether there is any loss of crop which would require seed such as are described in this appropriation bill?

Mr. PASCO. Exactly.

Mr. CHANDLER. Will the Senator explain how that is? I understood it was the orange trees which were destroyed.

Mr. PASCO. The entire crop there has been destroyed during the severe weather of the past few weeks, which very largely increases the demand for the classes of seed which are being distributed by the Agricultural Department, and it is difficult to fill the applications made from the regular supply on account of this very fact.

I had not expected to ask for this assistance, but if those who have suffered from too much fire and too much dry weather in other parts of the country are to be supplied there is no reason why the people of Florida should not also be included.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I hope the Senator from Florida will not insist upon his motion. I can not believe that it is sincere upon his part. It seems to me the only purpose is to load this amendment down and destroy it.

There has been no loss of crop in the State of Florida so far as past years are concerned. The crop there was perfect last year, and it was perfect the year before. There is every reasonable probability that it will not be this year; but I want to say to the Senator from Florida that if he knew the absolute squalor and want and suffering there is in the section of country of which I speak he would not treat this subject with levity.

Mr. President, there is no section of this Union to-day where an honest, hard-working, Christian people are suffering to the extent the people of the Western country are suffering in consequence of the successive loss of their crops. I speak of this with diffidence; I do not want to talk about it; it is a thing which ought not to be talked about any more than is absolutely necessary; and it is a question which ought not to be treated with levity. I state to you that these people are appealing to me, and they are appealing to other Senators from certain sections of that country for relief, and they appeal in a manner which leaves no mistake of the fact that they are suffering.

I do hope the Senator from Florida will withhold his spirit of levity and not undertake to load this measure with an amendment which he must know is designed for the destruction of the measure in so far as it makes this appropriation.

Mr. BUTLER. Are we proceeding under the five-minute rule, Mr. President?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair so understands.

Mr. BUTLER. I shall have to insist hereafter that that rule be observed. Several Senators have spoken twice.

Mr. CALL. I think I ought to say a word about this amendment, as it applies to the State of Florida. I do not see the ground of the opposition of the Senator from Nebraska to this amendment. I am willing to vote whatever sum of money may be reasonably ascertained to be necessary for the relief of the people of Nebraska or of any other State, and to supply them with seeds where they can not otherwise obtain them.

In reference to Florida there is no question that there has been there a vast destruction of the property of these people, and there are large numbers of them who will be so impoverished that they will not be able to purchase the necessary seeds to grow the products necessary to support their families. There is a great vegetable section of country there, and now that their oranges are nearly all ruined, they will be compelled to purchase largely of the ordinary crops of vegetables of the country simply to sustain life. It is necessary that there should be an appropriation to furnish these people with seeds, as the destruction there has been great, from all the information which I can get, and a large part of their crop of the present year, upon which they were dependent for the purchase of supplies, has been absolutely destroyed.

Mr. KYLE. Mr. President, I should like to say to the Senator from Florida that the cases are parallel in any degree. They have lost the same, lost their crop in Florida this present season, or a portion of it; but only a portion of it, I believe. During past years in South Dakota and in Nebraska we have lost both our wheat crop and our corn crop, and during those years we never thought of coming to Congress for help; but now for a period of four or five years we have had successive crop failures, until now the people have mortgaged about all they are able to mortgage in order to get the grain this year, and it is impossible for them to obtain credit in any way.

I have had letters which are heartrending from the people of my own State, as well as from those of other States in that drought-stricken region, appealing to the Secretary of Agriculture through me to obtain even a small pittance of garden seed, saying they have not even 10 cents with which to purchase garden seed this spring. It is something which ought not to be talked about in this Chamber, as the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. ALLEN] has said.

I do not think there is a parallel between this case and the case suggested by the Senator from Washington [Mr. SQUIRE] of those who have been burned out by the forest fires. That is a thing which occurs only once perhaps in a lifetime. The drought in the Missouri Valley region has continued now, as I said, for a period of five years. In one place in South Dakota I know it has continued for seven years, and in no year during that time have they had to exceed a half crop, and for the past two years the crop has been an absolute failure, the people having been able to raise only two or three bushels of wheat to the acre, and get for it perhaps 35 or 40 cents a bushel. So they are out really as regards money when the crop is harvested and gets to market.

I hope the amendment will not be modified in the manner suggested.

Mr. SQUIRE. I wish to say a word. I have no wish to prolong this discussion nor to protract the time to be consumed by this bill; I wanted it disposed of on Sunday last, but we were now on an important matter, which ought to be attended to promptly, and then we should finish the bill.

I am not in favor of discriminating against any part of the United States with reference to the appropriations for the relief of the people who have had their garden seed and their field seed destroyed by fire. I believe it is right to assist the people of Nebraska and Kansas and all those Western States, but I also believe it is proper and right to assist the people of the State of Washington who have had their field seed destroyed by fire. I am also in favor of assisting the people of Florida, if they need it. I believe in being generous and just at the same time. If we have the right, as the stewards of the people, to assist the poor and afflicted in any section with reference to the future prosperity of our country and the maintenance of life, we ought to be fair to all portions, and I am willing to vote relief, if it is needed, in behalf of the people of Florida, just as readily as I am willing to vote it for the people of Nebraska or the people of the State of Washington. I think we ought to be prompt about it, and if the amendment is so amended as to let it be increased. But let us be fair to ward all parts of the Union.

Mr. ALLEN. I am assured by the Senator from Florida [Mr. PASCO] that he is sincere in his motion, and that there is really suffering in the State of Florida which deserves the notice of Congress. I am, therefore, perfectly willing that the amendment offered by that Senator shall be adopted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Florida to the amendment, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After the word "fire" in the amendment, it is proposed to insert the word "frost," so as to read:

Among the drought, frost or frost-stricken inhabitants of the United States.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment to the amendment.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question recurs upon the amendment as amended.

Mr. VILAS. I inquire if the amendment was moved by the direction of any special or standing committee of the Senate?

Mr. ALLEN. I wish to say that the amendment was introduced and sent to the Committee on Agriculture, and it was brought back here a day or two days ago reported adversely. That was precisely the condition of the gypsy moth amendment, which was introduced upon the bill a few minutes ago.

Mr. VILAS. Neither amendment was in order under the rules of the Senate.

Mr. ALLEN. Very well. I hope the Senator from Wisconsin will not make the point of order on this amendment, but let it go through.

Mr. VILAS. Mr. President, I was simply going to add that a few years ago when a similar bill was sent to the President of the United States it was vetoed on the ground that it was beyond the right of Congress to so use the public money of the United States. I do not think any appropriation bill ought to be sent to him carrying an appropriation which he holds to be contrary to the Constitution of the United States. If it were to be sent to him it should be sent in a special bill by itself, and I feel that it is my duty to call attention to the fact that under the rules this amendment is not in order.

Mr. KYLE. Will the Senator allow me a question there?

Mr. VILAS. Certainly.

Mr. KYLE. We have had during past years hundreds and hundreds of such amendments placed upon appropriation bills, and they have become part of the statutes of the United States. We have in the sundry civil bill, which will be reported to the Senate inside of another day, about two hundred such amendments, probably affecting the statutes of the United States, which might be considered general legislation. Why, then, raise the point of order upon this amendment, which is being in violation of the rules of the Senate? They are all in violation of the rules of the Senate, and we know it.

Mr. CHANDLER. I hope the point of order will not be made against the amendment. Of course it is true that the President vetoed a similar bill, but Presidents change their minds sometimes as time progresses, and the President may change his mind upon this subject. Moreover, if the President has objections to a bill of this nature he may not care to veto it.

Mr. BUTLER. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. CHANDLER. I hope the Senator will allow me to finish my sentence.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will insist that point of order of the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. BUTLER. I inquire if the point of order is debatable? A point of order has been made against the amendment, I understand.

Mr. CHANDLER. I was appealing to the Senator from Wisconsin to withdraw the point of order.

Mr. BUTLER. That has not given my question a simple rose to inquire whether debate was in order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will insist that suggestion of the Senator on that subject.

Mr. BUTLER. I merely desire to inquire whether the point of order is debatable? If not, I object to debate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. This point of order seems to be debatable. [Laughter.] It appears to be debated.

Mr. BUTLER. It is evidently being debated, Mr. President. Mr. CHANDLER. I only wish to say that I was far from intending to wound the sensibilities of the Senator.

Mr. TELLER. I rise to a point of order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Colorado will state his point of order.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, I do not understand that it is in order for any Senator to recite the fact that the President of the United States has vetoed a bill of a similar character, and suggest that a bill may be vetoed. I understand that it is entirely out of order to make any reference to what the Executive may do with a bill of this kind or any other.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That is not a matter for the determination of the Chair.

Mr. CHANDLER. Mr. President—

Mr. VILAS. I trust the Senator from New Hampshire will give me leave to say that in what I said there is no intimation whatever of what the President would do in regard to this or any other bill. I simply recited a fact as the reason why I felt bound to raise the point of order.

Mr. TELLER. Nevertheless the Senator from Wisconsin is out of order. By the well-established rules which govern this body no such references are in order, and by the rules which govern the Parliament of Great Britain no member of that Parliament would think of rising and suggesting either that the Executive of that country was friendly or hostile to a bill. It is a thing that is never heard of, and it is entirely out of order to make even a suggestion of the kind made by the Senator from Wisconsin or the Senator from New Hampshire. I do not care about it in this instance, but it certainly is a very bad practice into which the Senate is falling. I have heard a similar statement on a number of occasions lately. There should be no allusion here as to what the President may or may not do as to any bill.

Mr. CHANDLER. If the Senator from Colorado insists upon his point of order, I agree to it. I think myself that it either is or it should be out of order to suggest the possibility of a Presidential veto of any measure of legislation that is before Congress. I will not proceed to reply to the suggestions of the Senator from Wisconsin if it is understood that his suggestion was out of order. Mr. BUTLER. Let us have a vote, Mr. President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. VILAS] makes the point of order against the amendment as amended. The Chair submits the question to the Senate for its determination.

Mr. CAREY. Mr. President, I think this proposed legislation is very bad. The legislature of the State of Nebraska is now in session. That State is without indebtedness, or at least with a very small indebtedness.

Mr. ALLEN. I submit, Mr. President, that the question is not debatable.

Mr. MANDERSON. Oh, yes; when the question of order is submitted to the Senate it is debatable.

Mr. GORMAN. The question has been submitted to the Senate, which makes it debatable.

Mr. CAREY. I have no doubt that the people of Nebraska will take care of the sufferers in that State.

Mr. ALLEN. Will the Senator permit me to state that I am not talking about the people of Nebraska particularly, and I have not talked about them. I am talking about a section of country which embraces a large portion of four or five different States.

Mr. CAREY. I will give you an answer to that question, if he will.

Mr. ALLEN. I will answer all the questions the Senator may choose to put to me.

Mr. CAREY. Has any State, South, West, or East, memorialized Congress to make an appropriation for this purpose?

Mr. ALLEN. No, sir; nor has the State of Nebraska; but I have been the recipient of hundreds of letters, not only from the western part of my own State, but from other States, and a portion of the Senator's State included, upon this very subject.

Mr. CAREY. I will state to the Senator that I have not received an intimation from any source, beyond the usual requests for seeds, and I wish to state to him further that the largest crops were produced in the Rocky Mountain region last year that were ever known in the history of that country.

Mr. ALLEN. I do not doubt that at all, but there are various portions of the Senator's State where they did not have crops.

Mr. CAREY. In the shape in which the amendment stands at present if it passes and becomes a part of the laws of the United States it will establish a precedent, and every time there is a severe frost or a drought or a fire or a flood in any section of the country the people will come to Congress and appeal for a special appropriation. I believe appropriations of this kind do great injury to the West. I do not believe they do any possible good.

I believe the Dakota legislature and the legislature of Nebraska will take care of the people of those States so far as seed is concerned, if they actually need it.

It has been stated by one of the Senators from the State of Kansas that Kansas has already made provision to furnish her people with seeds. They had great crops in the State of California, the State of Oregon, and the State of Washington, but just as soon as an amendment of this kind is introduced you can see how anxious Senators from other States are to get in on the amendment. I have no doubt the Senators from Florida would like the United States to go down into Florida and replant the orange trees and the banana trees which have been destroyed. I do not believe there is any necessity for the proposed legislation. I believe it does great damage to the West.

Nebraska is one of the wealthiest as well as one of the greatest States in the American Union. It happened to have a drought, it is true. I do not suppose the farmers of Nebraska raised on an average over 25 per cent of the crop they should have raised. But suppose there is a drought in some other State next year, will it be right for that State to come here and ask Congress to dispense charity? I do not understand there is any rule against talking about what has been done heretofore by Congress. The President of the United States sent a message to Congress in 1857, which I hold in my hand, vetoing a measure appropriating $10,000 for the State of Texas. I believe the principles enunciated in that veto message are right. Congress did not see fit to overrule the President. They undoubtedly took the same view of the subject that he did, because they upheld him in the veto.

Mr. ALLEN. Will the Senator from Wyoming permit me a moment? I wish to call his attention to a law which was not vetoed. On the 2d of the States at Large, volume 29, there will be found the act of April 11, 1882, which reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the sum of $20,000, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated for the purchase and distribution of seeds, under the direction of the Commissioner of Agriculture, to be used by the farmers of the United States, who are made destitute by the present overflow of the Mississippi River and its tributaries.

There is an act that met the express approval of the Executive. Mr. CAREY. There was another Executive in 1882. Mr. Arthur was President. I do not wish to take up the time of the Senate, but I should like to have an extract from the veto message of President Cleveland.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read as indicated.

The Secretary read as follows:

The friendliness and charity of our countrymen can always be relied upon to relieve their fellow-citizens in misfortune. This has been repeatedly and justly demonstrated. Federal aid in such cases encourages the expectation of material aid on the part of the Government, and weakens the sturdy sense of our national character, while it prevents the indulgence among our people of that kindly sentiment and individual which strengthens the bonds of our common brotherhood.

It is within my personal knowledge that individual aid has to some extent already been extended to the sufferers mentioned in this bill. The failure of the proposed appropriation of $100,000 additional to meet their remaining wants will not necessarily result in continued distress if the emergency is fully made known to the people of the country.

It is here suggested that the Commissioner of Agriculture is annually directed to expend a large sum of money for the purchase, propagation, and distribution of seeds and other things of this description, two-thirds of which are, upon the request of Senators, Representatives, and Delegates in Congress, supplied to them for distribution among their constituents.

Mr. BATE. Mr. President, I believe the question is debatable, although I do not care to discuss the point of order as it is left to the Senate. As to the statement which has been made here that the Agricultural Committee, of which I am a member, reported the amendment adversely, I wish to say it is true, as I understand; I desire to say it in order to take care of the Government, but while they did it it was not for want of sympathy. We discussed the matter, and there was a generous warmth of feeling on behalf of the drought stricken people. At the same time the committee did not think the General Government ought to interfere in fire or flood or drought stricken districts or in the case of any of those misfortunes that come upon our citizens, believing that the States in which they were and the neighborhoods where they were, would, when they were able to take care of the distressed people, furnish seeds if it were necessary. The committee believed that it was not the province of the General Government to do that. That is what actuated the committee, of which I am a member, in making an adverse report.

Mr. ALLEN. I wish to say a word in reply to the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. BATE] and the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY]. The Senator from Wyoming sends up and has read a veto message from President Cleveland, promulgated several years ago, when he was discharging the duties of his first term of office. That, so far as I have been able to ascertain, is the only instance in the history of the Government where there has been a veto message of that kind. By the act of April 11, 1882, $20,000 was appropriated upon the same principle that we ask this appropriation. The principle is equal in both instances, although the amount is different.

The condition of a portion of the country of which I have spoken is such as to demand at the hands of Congress some recognition. I am not acting unadvisedly. I have been in communication not only with the great portion of the people who were afflicted, but I have been in communication with the representative men of those people and the representative journals which are published in that section of the country. I know there is great distress in the transmissouri country. There is no use of disguising the fact. There is distress there. It is not confined to the State of Nebraska, either. It goes into the State of Dakota, the State of Kansas, the State of Colorado, and it goes into the State of Wyoming to some extent, or the people in portions of that State have misinformed me.

We but a few moments ago agreed to an appropriation of $40,000 to recapture some gypsy moths. They were brought into this country by a crank for the purpose of experimenting with them. They got away from him and are now afflicting the people of the State of Massachusetts. I voted for the appropriation because I believed it to be proper.

Is there anything wrong in giving some assistance to these people who are thus reduced? The Senator from Tennessee says it was not through want of sympathy that the Committee on Agriculture did not report the amendment favorably. I suppose not; but sympathy does not count in a case of this kind. I suppose it was on account of the Constitution coming in the road. The Constitution is made to do duty here on almost every occasion. Whenever the representatives of a certain body think it ought to have assistance or aid the Constitution is not infringed upon; but the moment some other section of the country desires assistance then immediately the Constitution comes into view and immediately there is trouble.

I recall well when the Government brought relief to the fever-stricken people of Memphis, in the State of Tennessee, when medicine and medical attendance, tents, and supplies of all kinds were furnished them; and I think the good people all over this country fully approved of it. I recall the time, when there was a proposition to establish a fever boat for the purpose of experimenting with the treatment or extinction of yellow fever down in that section of the country. I recall numerous instances where Congress has extended assistance to people afflicted in this way.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. PETTIGREW. Mr. President, it seems to me the Senate can afford to make the appropriation proposed in the amendment. In many of the States east of the Rocky Mountains, and in the Missouri River great losses have been suffered, and in thousands of instances those people are without seed grain to sow on their farms next year.

The Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY] says the States can take care of themselves. I represent in part upon this floor a State which unfortunately has reached the limit of indebtedness under its constitution, although that limit is but $1,000,000; and we are also unfortunate in the fact that the treasurer of our State, as is well known to everyone in this country, disappeared, carrying away all the funds which were in the treasury. The people of the State are therefore left in a condition where it is impossible for them to assist the drought-stricken people and to secure seed grain for those who have lost their crops. I know it is unpleasant to recite these facts before the American public, but the newspapers have already advertised them. While it is unpleasant, I feel it a duty to urge this appropriation to relieve the people who are struggling with the wideness and striving to build up their States on these broad plains.

Mr. MANDERSON. Mr. President, I wish to say a few words only in reference to this matter. Differing as I do from my colleague, I find myself a little embarrassed at the fact. I do not think I would have presented the amendment, representing as I do here in part the State of Nebraska, one of the States that is suffered because of the great drought of last year, and from the partial droughts of years preceding. The State of Nebraska is not only one of the States that are exceptionally fertile, but it is well if not thickly populated, and its citizenship is made up of a people as generous as those who exist anywhere in this country.

Last fall I traveled over many miles of that State and found desolation. I saw hundreds of miles of territory that I have seen heretofore producing good crops of small grain and corn now producing little or nothing; but at the same time there were the abundant evidences from those people of a deterioration of land by their agricultural gains and hoping for the better times and State where there had not been a total loss of determination (help their brethren of the drought-stricken portion, and this they have done generously, abundantly, perhaps in some instances far more abundantly than their share of the world's goods would justify.

I have also seen as the result of appeals by letter, and to some extent in the public press, an outpouring from the abundance of different parts of our generous country. The South, with fraternal feeling and in recognition of a suffering it could assuage, has, from many portions of its territory, poured into Nebraska car loads of food, and from the East has come money, food, and clothing. While I was much grieved and distressed at the accounts that came to me by letter and otherwise in the early part of the fall and winter, I am glad to say that by this outpouring from their plenty by the generous people of the eastern part of our own State, and from the country at large, the distress is rapidly disappearing.

To not like the idea that the State which I in part represent here should come in forma pauperis to the United States and ask alms from the Government. I do not think the State of Nebraska needs assistance of that sort from the United States. At the same time I recognize the deplorable condition of other States distressed by their Senators as poorer than we are, which seem to demand aid, and if relief is needed, as is suggested by the Senators from South Dakota and the Senators from Kansas, if their need is so much greater than ours—

Mr. PEPPER. The senior Senator from Nebraska could not have been in the Chamber when I addressed the Senate. I stated that the State of Kansas has already appropriated $100,000 to take care of our own people, and that the machinery of distribution has been in operation for several weeks.

Mr. MANDERSON. I am glad then to exempt the sister State of Kansas from the category in which I just placed it, and I am pleased to find myself in accord with the Senator from Kansas in stating that neither the Commonwealth of Kansas nor the great State of Nebraska desire to present themselves in the form of paupers or beggars to the United States Government. We will both take care of the matter at home, and I regret that my colleague has seen fit to put us in the attitude of this amendment before the American people.

Mr. President, if the need mentioned by my colleague were so great it seems to me the pending bill would not have come here from the House of Representatives without some suggestion being made by those who are the more direct representatives of the people. The pending appropriation bill comes to us without any provision of this character. Notwithstanding the fact that those States have their numerous Representatives in the House there is not only nothing of this character in the bill, but I hazard the assertion that there was no effort to obtain it by them. We are in straits to some extent, we are in distress, but as one citizen of the State of Nebraska I say we can take care of ourselves; and if the amendment shall pass I do not believe the Secretary of Agriculture will have a great many demands from the State that I in part have the honor to represent.

But if the condition is so bad as described in other States I shall be very glad to lend my vote to the amendment, for no constitutional question troubles me when it comes to relieving those who are really in distress or greatly need national aid. So far as that is concerned, I might quote from that Hibernian who a short time ago represented a great district in the other House, who suggested when he wanted a bill passed and a member of this body said to him he thought it was unconstitutional, "Why," said he, with his delightful accent, "what is the Constitution among friends?" [Laughter.] I might be willing even to question whether we should not somewhat strain constitutional provisions for the purpose of doing a great good.

But, Mr. President, I simply desire to say that so far as the State of Nebraska is concerned, I do not think it needs this alms at the hands of Congress. The legislature of that State is in session, and I think it has already taken steps toward the relief of some of those who are in distress, and I am proud of that selfishness.

Mr. BATE. I merely wish to state that I think the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. ALLEN] will find himself mistaken, when he looks upon the statute book, in his statement that no statute was passed appropriating money for fever sufferers in Tennessee. I think that that is an error. The most that was done, as I recollect, was that army tents were loaned to the vast congregations of people who came to the valley at the time of the flood, and perhaps an amount of rations was given to them.

The State of Tennessee appropriated her money by State and counties when the yellow fever was there, and her active agents were at work to take care of her people. I think that was all that was necessary and it was successful; and the General Government never appropriated a dollar, so far as I know, for any such purpose.

Mr. ALLEN. I regret very much that my colleague [Mr. MANDERSON] should disagree with me in reference to this matter. I am very sorry indeed he did not come to me some weeks ago, when I introduced the amendment, for he thought it was improper, and make a friendly suggestion for the drought-stricken portion of this country. I was very much in hope that the time when I am to serve with my colleague thus haunted—out any interruption of our most friendly relations and of our determination to work in harmony for the benefit of our State.

I have not, please, said I wish to call my colleague's attention to that fact, so that I may not be misrepresented—the State of Nebraska here as a supplicant or as using in forma pauperis. The statement is altogether gratuitous. I have said, and I repeat what is the truth, capable of demonstration, that there are thousands and tens of thousands of persons residing in the drought-stricken belt of this country, and that includes more than the western half of Nebraska, who must have some help outside of that which the States can afford them or they will not be able to plant their crops and sustain themselves. It is no part of charity and no part of modesty and no part of wisdom, in my judgment, for anyone to undertake to secrete the facts which are so well known to the world.

I have in my possession communications from the editors of the great journals of my State saying this measure is perfectly proper and is needed. I was in hope that the matter could pass through here without representation upon the one hand that the needs of a section of the State were so and so and a contradiction upon the other. I was in hope my colleague would join with me in giving to the people of the drought-stricken portion of this country some measure of relief, a measure of relief which they so sadly stand in need of. I am not mistaken when I say there is distress in the drought-stricken portion of the country; and I am sorry my feeble efforts here in behalf of those people are to be negated by the action of my colleague.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. PASCO. Mr. President, I wish to say one word before the question is put to the Senate. I listened with a great deal of pleasure to what the senior Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON] said. I wish to say now that if Nebraska will take care of the sufferers from drought, if Massachusetts will take care of the gypsy moth, and if Washington will take care of the sufferers from fire, Florida will endeavor to take care of those who have suffered from frost. At the time when I made the motion to amend, one of these measures had gone through by a majority of the Senate and the other appeared likely to go through without a division even, and I thought it was time that attention should be called to appropriations of this class. This is all I wish to say.

Mr. CALL. My colleague and I differ as do the Senators from Nebraska. I desire that every suffering man in the State of Florida, who has no means to provide himself with seed for the coming year, shall be furnished with it from the Agricultural Department of the country. I can see no difference between authorizing the distribution of seed from the Agricultural Department of those who are not destitute and giving it to those who can not obtain it without the action of Congress. There is no legislature sitting in Florida, and there will be none until it is long past the time when the people whose entire possessions have been destroyed will have the opportunity to plant in order to produce that which is necessary for their actual subsistence. The people of Florida are as patriotic and generous as any in the world, but they have none of that false sense of pride which will not accept that which is their due from the General Government in time of distress.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair submits to the Senate the question, Is the proposed amendment in order?

Mr. ALLEN. On that I ask for the yeas and nays. The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate decides that the amendment is not in order.

Mr. PEPPER. Saturday, in the hurry of preparation, an amendment was adopted on my suggestion on page 16, coming in after line 15. Upon looking it over I find that there are a few words that ought not to have been incorporated. The words are, "or the edible products of the same." In order that I may make it clear to the Senate I want to have those words stricken out. I will read the paragraph.

Mr. CALL. What is the page?
Mr. PEPPER. On page 16. It was the amendment adopted on my suggestion concerning meat products. I will read the amendment as it was adopted, and then call the attention of Senators to the particular words:

The Secretary is hereby authorized to make such rules and regulations as he may decide to be necessary to prevent the transportation from one State or Territory the carcasses of Cattle into any other State or Territory or the District of Columbia, or to any foreign country, of the condemned carcasses or parts of carcasses of cattle, sheep, and swine.

Now, I want the next words that I now read, "or the edible products of the same," to be stricken out. Of course if the carcasses have been condemned there would not be any edible portion of them.

Mr. CALL and Mr. GORMAN. That is accepted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection the amendment will be modified as suggested by the Senator from Kansas.

Mr. GORMAN. On page 23 of the bill, at the end of line 17, I move to insert the following proviso:

Provided, That not more than $1,200 of said amount shall be expended for compensation and traveling expenses of local or special agents.

Mr. CALL. I do not see any propriety in that amendment. The matter is left to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Mr. GORMAN. That is precisely what I want to guard against. The provision as it here stands is the appropriation of a lump sum of $15,000 for examinations. In every bill we fix the amount that ought to be allowed for the compensation of special agents, so as to have the money used for what it is intended and not disposed of in the employment of people.

Mr. CALL. We have no information here that $1,200 will be sufficient compensation for the number of agents who are to go over this country, and it may entirely paralyze the appropriation.

Mr. GORMAN. Question.

Mr. KYLE. I submit that at the bottom of page 3 the salary of each one of these persons is fixed in the bill. It is done everywhere. These persons are to travel over the country and collect grasses. They are practically inspectors, so to speak, and $1,200 and expenses is sufficient.

Mr. CALL. Let us have a vote.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. GORMAN. On page 24, at the end of line 4, I move to insert the following proviso, which is the same exactly as the one just offered:

Provided, That not more than $1,200 of said amount shall be expended for compensation of local and special agents.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended.

Mr. PASCO. I ask that there be a separate vote taken upon the gypsy-moth amendment, the amendment offered by the junior Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE].

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment indicated will be reserved for a separate vote. The question is on concurring in the other amendments made as in Committee of the Whole.

The amendments were concurred in.
The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on concurring in the reserved amendment adopted on motion of the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE].

Mr. CALL. The Senator from Massachusetts does not appear to be here.

Mr. CHANDLER and Mr. PETTIGREW. Let us have the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. DAVIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE].

Mr. McPHEESEN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. HIGGINS].

Mr. VILAS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL], but I suggest to the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS] that we exchange our pairs and vote.

Mr. DAVIS. Very well.

Mr. VILAS. I vote "nay."

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHARP].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. DAVIS. I vote "yea."

Mr. GALLINGER. I have a general pair with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS].

Mr. HALE (after having voted in the affirmative). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. RANSOM], and withdraw my vote.

Mr. CAFEERY (after having voted in the negative). I have a general pair with the Senator from Montana [Mr. POWER]. I voted, but I do not see the Senator from Montana in the Chamber, and I withdraw my vote.

Mr. HARRIS. I ask if the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] is recorded as voting?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted, the Chair is advised.

Mr. HARRIS. I am paired with that Senator, but I will transfer my pair to the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES], who is absent, and let my vote stand.

The result was announced—yeas 29, nays 21; as follows:

So the amendment was concurred in.

Mr. ALLEN. I now renew the amendment I offered as in Committee of the Whole.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Nebraska will be stated.

The SECRETARY. Insert after line 45 on page 9:

For the purpose of purchasing and distributing seeds and seed grains among the drought, frost, or fire-stricken inhabitants of the United States by the Secretary of Agriculture, and in his discretion, under such rules as he may prescribe, the sum of $200,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary; the same to be made immediately available.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state to the Senator from Nebraska that the Senate has passed upon the amendment and determined that it is not in order.

Mr. ALLEN. I supposed it would be held to be not in order. I desire to call attention to the distinction made between the moth amendment and the seed amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair has stated the action of the Senate in regard to it.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

COINAGE OF SILVER.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 2642, Order of Business 953.

Mr. BLACK and 50 minutes p. m.). Pending that motion, I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

Mr. BUTLER. Let us have the yeas and nays on the motion to adjourn.

Mr. HOAR. The first motion has not yet been stated from the Chair. The title of the bill moved by the Senator from Arkansas should be stated.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state the pending question. The Senator from Arkansas moves that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill indicated by him.

Mr. HOAR. What is that bill?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. For information the title of the bill will be read.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 2642) providing for the issue of bonds, the coinage of silver, and for other purposes.

Mr. HALE. That would displace the regular order of business. The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maine that the Senate do now adjourn.

Mr. BUTLER. On that I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. CALL. I ask the Senator to withdraw the motion that I may move to take up the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. There is a motion pending.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair can not entertain that motion at this time. The motion of the Senator from Maine is the pending question.

Mr. BUTLER. On that I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH], but I will transfer that pair to my colleague [Mr. SHARP] so as to enable the Senator from California [Mr. WHITE] and myself to vote. I vote "yea."

Mr. GALLINGER (when his name was called). I will again announce my pair with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS].

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL], but I transfer that pair to the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES]. I vote "nay."

Mr. HILL (when his name was called). I am paired ordinarily with the junior Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE], but I am assured by his colleague that he would vote "yea" if present, and I will therefore vote. I vote "yea."

Mr. McMILLAN (when his name was called). I should like to inquire if the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD] has voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted, the Chair is advised.

Mr. McMILLAN. I vote "yea," transferring my pair with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD] to my colleague [Mr. BRADLEY].

Mr. PUGH (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD].

Mr. VILAS (when his name was called). I will transfer my pair with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL] to the junior Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE].

Mr. BERRY. The Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE] is paired, by an arrangement with his colleague, with the Senator from Kansas [Mr. MARTIN].

Mr. VILAS. This pair was announced with the Senator from New York [Mr. HILL], and the Senator from New York voted because the Senator from Massachusetts is a good with him.

Mr. BERRY. An arrangement was made by which the junior Senator from Massachusetts and the junior Senator from Kansas stand paired.

Mr. HOAR. The arrangement to pair my colleague was just made twenty seconds ago.

Mr. VILAS. Oh.

Mr. HARRIS. I suggested that the Senator from Massachusetts be paired with the Senator from Kansas.

Mr. VILAS. At the suggestion of the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL] to the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH] and vote "yea."

Mr. HOAR. I understand that my colleague [Mr. LODGE] stands paired with the Senator from Kansas [Mr. MARTIN].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BUTLER (after having voted in the affirmative). I voted when my name was called, but I am paired with the junior Senator from Kansas [Mr. MARTIN].

tor from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT]. Unless a transfer of pairs can be arranged I withdraw my vote.

Mr. HARRIS (after having voted in the negative). The Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] has come into the Chamber and voted. I withdraw my vote.

Mr. PERKINS (after having voted in the negative). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ROACH], but I understand if he were present he would vote "nay."

Mr. TELLER. He would vote "nay" if present.

Mr. PERKINS. I will permit my vote to stand unless his colleague advises me that I ought to withdraw it.

The result was announced—years 17, nays 36; as follows:

YEAS—17.

Allison,	Frye,	McPherson,	Quay,
Carey,	Howley,	Manderson,	Vilas,
Chandler,	Hill,	Mitchell of Wis.
Davis,	Hoar,	Platt,
Dixon,	McMillan,	Proctor,

NAYS—36.

Allen,	Daniel,	Jones of Nev.	Pugh,

So the Senate refused to adjourn.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I now ask for a vote on my motion.

Mr. HALE. Let us have the yeas and nays on that.

Mr. BUTLER. I object to taking up the bill moved by the Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Let us have the yeas and nays.

Mr. GORMAN. I rise to a question of privilege. The Senator from Arkansas has moved to proceed to the consideration of the bill designated by him. The Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL] moved to proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I suggest that the Senator from Florida has made no such motion. He has not had the floor. I had the floor and made the motion, and I am entitled to a vote on the motion I have made.

Mr. GORMAN. That is the very point I raise.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the point of order.

Mr. GORMAN. I understood the Chair to decide that the motion of the Senator from Florida was out of order. Am I correct?

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. There was no motion made by the Senator from Florida.

Mr. GORMAN. I submit it to the Chair.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will ask for information, what was the motion of the Senator from Florida?

Mr. CALL. After the Senator from Arkansas had made his motion to proceed to the consideration of the silver bill, I moved to take up the Indian appropriation bill, and the Chair replied that he could not entertain the motion. That is the statement of fact.

Mr. GORMAN. I submit that under Rule IX the motion to proceed to the consideration of an appropriation bill takes precedence of the motion of the Senator from Arkansas. I will read from the rule as follows:

The following motions shall be in order at any time as privileged motions, save as against a motion to adjourn, or to proceed to the consideration of executive business, or questions of privilege, to wit:

First. A motion to proceed to the consideration of an appropriation or revenue bill.

Second. A motion to proceed to the consideration of any other bill on the Calendar, which motion shall not be open to amendment.

Mr. BUTLER. Let me make an inquiry. The rule which the Senator from Maryland has just read states that a motion to proceed to the consideration of an appropriation bill or a revenue bill takes precedence of any other. Now, the point I wish to make is this: The motion to take up an appropriation bill having come in after a motion made by the Senator from Arkansas, does that rule apply?

Mr. HALE. Undoubtedly.

Mr. BUTLER. That motion of the Senator from Arkansas was pending at the time the Senator from Florida made his motion.

Mr. GORMAN. If the Senator will permit me, I will read the last clause of the rule, which answers the Senator's question:

Each of the foregoing motions—

A motion to take up an appropriation bill being first—shall be decided without debate, and shall have precedence in the order above named, and may be submitted as in the nature and with all the rights of questions of order.

Mr. BUTLER. Does that rule mean that that motion shall come while another motion is pending and the Senator is on the floor?

Mr. GORMAN. It means that a motion to proceed to the consideration of an appropriation bill or a revenue bill is in order, and takes precedence of any other motion in this body, and it must be decided in the way I have stated.

Mr. HALE. And is almost always made pending some other motion.

Mr. GORMAN. Yes, always. It is just like a motion to adjourn.

Mr. BUTLER. I did not understand the Senator from Maine.

Mr. HALE. Following the same line of thought as the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN], I said that the motion to proceed to the consideration of an appropriation bill or a revenue bill is almost always made, because it is privileged by the rules, pending some other motion when the Senate has another bill under consideration or when a motion is made to take up another bill. I think there can be no doubt about it.

Mr. HILL. The rule says that such a motion shall have precedence.

Mr. CHANDLER. I desire to call the attention of the Chair to the language of Rule XXII, under which a motion to adjourn has precedence, and where various motions are recited.

Mr. HOAR. And it is in order pending other motions.

Mr. CHANDLER. Yes, pending other motions. After reciting motions in their order the rule says—which several motions shall have precedence as they stand arranged.

The rule from which the Senator from Maryland has read uses these words—and shall have precedence in the order above named.

And the idea that this precedence is blotted out if a subsidiary or inferior motion is first made, which seems to be the suggestion of the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER], is not tenable.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I presume the Chair would hold if the motion of the Senator from Florida to proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill should be voted down by the Senate, that then the Senate can proceed to the consideration of the Senate bill 9643 on my motion, if a majority of the Senate should favor that action?

Mr. HALE and others. Undoubtedly.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Under the rule to which the attention of the Chair has been called by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] and other Senators, the Chair is compelled to hold that the motion of the Senator from Florida is a privileged motion, which takes precedence under Rule IX of any other motion except a motion to adjourn. That is so clear that there can be no controversy about it, and the Chair, therefore, entertains the motion of the Senator from Florida.

Mr. BUTLER. Then, Mr. President, upon that motion of the Senator from Florida I call for the yeas and nays.

Mr. VOORHEES. Would that motion made by the Senator from Florida be good as against the motion of the Senator from Arkansas if the Senator from Arkansas was on the floor?

The Senator from Florida did not have the floor to make any motion.

Mr. BUTLER. That is the inquiry I made.

Mr. VOORHEES. That is a question of fact. I understand the fact to be that the Senator from Arkansas had the floor, and that the Senator from Florida does not contend that he had the floor over the Senator from Arkansas to make any motion.

Mr. HILL. He can now make it.

Mr. HOAR. The Senator from Arkansas had exhausted his privilege when he made his motion.

Mr. BUTLER. These are questions of fact. I have heard the statements of both Senators, and I state the facts correctly.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I rise to a question of order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator will state his point of order.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. In case the majority of the Senate should vote down the motion of the Senator from Florida, then the motion which I have presented, I presume, will be before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair has no doubt that is correct. The Chair desires to say in response to the parliamentary inquiry of the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] that the Chair was addressed by two Senators, and perhaps more than two, at the same time. The Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES] was recognized and made his motion. The Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL] then stated the motion, which was afterwards stated by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN]. The Chair was compelled to recognize the motion to which the rule gives precedence, and submits that to the Senate itself for the determination of the Senate as to whether it will entertain the motion of the Senator from Florida or that of the Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. BUTLER. I do not think there is any question about it. I think it is generally conceded that a motion to proceed to the consideration of an appropriation bill takes precedence, and if that be the view of the Senate, upon the motion of the Senator from Florida I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. BATE. As to the status of the particular point involved I wish to say that I was close to the Senator from Arkansas and the Senator from Florida. I was struggling to get the attention of the President of the Senate to introduce a bill. The Senator from Arkansas had the floor, having been recognized by the Chair, and I failed to secure recognition to get my bill introduced because of the fact that that Senator had the floor. Meanwhile the Senator from Florida rose and made his motion to take up the Indian appropriation bill, but the Chair had already recognized the Senator from Arkansas, who still remained standing.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair has stated the rule as we understand it. It is for the Senate to decide. On the motion of the Senator from Florida the Secretary will call the roll.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President.

Mr. FRYE and others. Regular order!

Mr. BUTLER. Before the vote is taken I desire to announce the fact that if the motion of the Senator from Florida shall be voted down I shall move the consideration of House bill 7273, to amend the interstate-commerce law.

Mr. HALE. The Senator has not the floor to do that. The Senator from Kansas has the floor.

Mr. BUTLER. I understand the Senator from Arkansas has the floor, but I think perhaps I may be able to get it before this time to-morrow.

Mr. FRYE and others. Regular order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President—

The Secretary called the name of Mr. ALDRICH.

Mr. GEORGE. I addressed the Chair before any response was made to the roll.

Mr. FRYE and others. Too late.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will recognize the Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. GEORGE. I rise to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the Senator's inquiry.

Mr. GEORGE. I inquire, first, what is the pending business on the Calendar, the unfinished business; is it not the bankruptcy bill?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That bill is the unfinished business. Mr. GEORGE. I desire to make a further inquiry: If the pending motion prevails, will not that displace the bankruptcy bill from being the unfinished business?

Several SENATORS. Certainly.

Mr. GEORGE. If that be so, I desire the Senate to understand what they are doing.

Mr. HALE. It would be equally true that the bankruptcy bill would be displaced if the motion of the Senator from Arkansas should prevail.

Mr. GEORGE. I understand that.

Mr. HALE. That will displace the bankruptcy bill just the same.

Mr. FRYE. Regular order.

Mr. CALL. I wish to say a single word.

Mr. STEWART. I object to debate. Debate is out of order.

Mr. CALL. I do not want to debate. I rise to a question of personal parliamentary privilege.

Mr. STEWART. Objection is made.

Mr. CALL. I ask unanimous consent to make a personal statement.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the Senator if there be no objection.

Mr. CALL. I was charged by the Committee on Appropriations with the duty of making the motion I have made, and to press the appropriation bills until they are completed. I should not have any objection to the consideration of the bill which the Senator from Arkansas has moved to take up but for the instructions of the committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DODGE].

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH] to my colleague [Mr. SHOUP] and vote "nay."

Mr. FAULKNER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. HIGGINS].

Mr. GALLINGER (when his name was called). I will announce my pair with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS].

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL], but I transfer that pair to the junior Senator from South Carolina [Mr. INBY] and I vote "nay."

Mr. HOAR (when Mr. LODGE's name was called). My colleague [Mr. LODGE], who is absent from the Chamber, is paired with the Senator from Kansas [Mr. MARTIN]. If my colleague were here he would vote "yea."

Mr. Mc-MILLAN (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BEAN] [HALE] to my colleague [Mr. BURROWS], and I vote "yea."

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. DUTCHMAN] to the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. LINDSAY] and vote "yea."

Mr. PERKINS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ROACH], but I am informed that he would vote "nay" on this question if present, and I vote "nay."

Mr. VILAS (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL] to the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH] and vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BRICE (after having voted in the affirmative). I voted inadvertently. I have a general pair with the junior Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT], who I observe is not present, and therefore I withdraw my vote.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I have been requested by the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WILBUR] to announce that he is paired with the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST].

Mr. GALLINGER. I will transfer my pair with the Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] to the Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN] and vote. I vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 26, nays 30; as follows:

YEAS—26
Albison,	Frye,	Hoar,	Platt,
Blackburn,	Gallinger,	Mc-Millan,	Proctor,

Coke,	Lindsay,	Pritchard,	Wolcott,
Cullom,	Lodge,	Roach,

So the motion was not agreed to.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Now I ask for a vote on my motion that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 2642) providing for the issue of bonds, the coinage of silver, and for other purposes.

Mr. HALE. Let us have the yeas and nays on that motion.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

Mr. HALE. I rise to a parliamentary question.

Mr. GEORGE. I rise to a parliamentary question.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will entertain one at a time. The Senator from Maine is first recognized.

Mr. HALE. The pending business is the unfinished business before the Senate, is the bankruptcy bill, so known. I ask the Chair, if the motion of the Senator from Arkansas shall prevail, whether the bill be in charge and which he has moved to take up, will not take the place of the bankruptcy bill and become the unfinished business?

Mr. BLACKBURN and Mr. PUGH. We understand that.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair thinks there is no doubt but the statement of the Senator from Maine is correct.

Mr. HALE. The Senate ought to understand it.

Mr. BLACKBURN. We do fully.

Mr. HALE. Then the bill for the coinage of silver will be the unfinished business?

Mr. PUGH. That is just what we are voting for.

Mr. GEORGE. I was about to make the same parliamentary inquiry which has been made by the Senator from Maine.

I wish to be indulged to say that while I am in possession of the silver bill, I am asked to raise on the bankruptcy bill and shall vote "nay" on the pending motion.

Mr. VOORHEES. I am in favor of the bankruptcy bill as it came here from the House of Representatives for the first time in my life, but the vote which takes up the bill referred to by the Senator from Arkansas and passes it can restore the bankruptcy bill to its place as the regular order.

Mr. PUGH. Yes.

Mr. HALE. At some time.

Mr. BUTLER. I am in favor of the bankruptcy bill and I am also in favor of the bill of the Senator from Arkansas; but I desire to give notice that if the motion of the Senator from Arkansas shall prevail I shall ask that that measure be temporarily laid aside with a view of taking up House bill 7273 to amend an act to regulate commerce, and upon that I shall ask for the yeas and nays.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. That is not in order.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I make the point of order that debate is not in order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll on the motion of the Senator from Arkansas to proceed to the consideration of the bill named by him.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BRICE (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT] to the junior Senator from New York [Mr. MURPHY] and vote "nay."

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH] to my colleague [Mr. SHOUR] and vote. I vote "yea." If my colleague were present he would vote "yea."

Mr. FAULKNER (when his name was called). I am paired on this question with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. HIGGINS].

Mr. GALLINGER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS].

Mr. GORMAN (when his name was called). On this vote I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ROACH].

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] to the junior Senator from South Carolina [Mr. RYAN] and vote "yea."

Mr. McMILLAN (when his name was called). Under the transfer of pairs I have heretofore announced I am at liberty to vote. I vote "nay."

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I again announce the transfer of my pair with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD] to the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. LINDSAY], and vote "nay."

Mr. PERKINS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ROACH]. I am informed that if that Senator were present he would vote in the affirmative. I therefore vote. I vote "yea."

Mr. VILAS (when his name was called). On this vote I transfer the pair I had with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL] to the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH], and vote "nay."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GALLINGER. I will transfer my pair with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] to the Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN], and vote "nay."

Mr. JONES of Arkansas, Mr. PALMER, and others addressed the Chair.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Arkansas is recognized. The bill which the Senate has just voted to take up will be stated by title.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 2642) providing for the issue of bonds, the coinage of silver, and for other purposes.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. In view of the lateness of the session and the necessity for economizing time as much as possible, and in view of the fact that every member of the Senate has his mind made up whether he will or will not vote for this bill, I ask unanimous consent that some hour may be fixed on to-morrow at which a vote may be taken.

Several SENATORS. Now! Now!

Mr. HALE. There are too many absentees to vote now.

Mr. BUTLER. Oh, no.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I should be glad to have a vote now, as there is a quorum present.

Mr. DANIEL. Every Senator is paired who is not here.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I should be glad to have the vote taken now.

Mr. HALE and Mr. FRYE. Say 1 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I am willing to have it fixed for to-morrow at 1 o'clock.

Mr. HOAR. I think the Senator had better ask that consent to-morrow.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I ask unanimous consent that at 2 o'clock to-morrow the vote be taken on this bill and the amendments to it without further debate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. PLATT. Yes.

Mr. VILAS. I object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

Mr. BUTLER. Then let us have a vote this evening, Mr. President.

Mr. GEORGE. Let us vote before adjourning.

Mr. HALE. The Senator sees that of course it will be impossible to get a vote to-night, beginning the consideration of the bill at this hour.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I recognize that fact and I was just going to say that I shall move that the Senate adjourn, and that to-morrow I shall ask the Senate to remain in session until there is a vote on this bill.

Mr. GORMAN, Mr. PLATT, and others. That is right.

Mr. HALE. You can not get a vote to-night.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I move that the Senate adjourn.

Mr. BUTLER. Will the Senator withdraw that motion one moment?

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. For what purpose?

Mr. HALE. Regular order!

Mr. BUTLER. I ask the Senator from Arkansas to withdraw his motion for one moment.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I think that the Senate ought to adjourn. I move that the Senate adjourn.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Arkansas.

The motion was agreed to; and at 6 o'clock and 27 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, February 19, 1895, at 12 o'clock m.

COMMISSIONER OF THE TREASURY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication from the Secretary of the Treasury; which was read, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Finance, and ordered to be printed:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C., February 18, 1895.

SIR: The following Senate resolution has been received:

"Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, directed to inform the Senate whether it is necessary or desirable that legislation should be had authorizing the issuing of bonds, Treasury notes, or other securities to realize money for the purpose of paying current deficiencies in the revenue; and, if so, the nature and substantial details of such legislation." In response to the inquiries contained in the resolution, I have the honor to say that the available cash balance in the Treasury at the close of business this day, exclusive of $55,101,704.63 gold reserve, is $99,575,294.52, as shown by the inclosed statement.

It is my opinion that the Secretary of the Treasury ought to be permanently invested with authority to issue and sell short-time bonds, or other obligations of the Government, for the purpose of raising money to meet such deficiencies in the ordinary revenues as may occur from time to time; but I do not think that there is any necessity at the present time for the exercise of such authority if it exists.

It is not probable that such deficiencies will occur during the remainder of the current fiscal year as will exceed the available balance now on hand, and it is estimated that during the next fiscal year the receipts will exceed the expenditures. I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully, yours,

J. G. CARLISLE, Secretary.

To the President of the Senate.

HOUSE BILL REFERRED.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2529) to amend the charter of the Metropolitan Railroad Company of the District of Columbia; which was to add to the bill the following additional section:

SEC. 5. That the Georgetown and Tennallytown Railway Company, the Rock Creek Railway Company, and the Brightwood and Tennallytown Railway Company be, and they are hereby, respectively, authorized and required to sell from the routes of the District of Columbia for 25 cents, good for one continuous ride in the District of Columbia over the lines of said companies, respectively, and the lines of the Metropolitan Railroad Company, and the said suburban roads shall reduce the tickets sold by the Metropolitan Railroad Company at the rate of 2 cents for each coupon ticket presented by the said Metropolitan Railroad Company. Any of the aforesaid railroad companies which shall refuse to make sale of tickets or coupon tickets at the above named rate, shall be liable to a fine of $50 for each such violation, to be recovered in the police court of the District of Columbia as other fines are recovered. Enacted. That the proceeding for the recovery of such penalty shall be commenced within thirty days from the date of the alleged penalty. That the same court of the District of Columbia shall have, and it is hereby given, authority and jurisdiction to enforce the recovery of such penalty, and to cause the same to be collected, and to order on the portion of either of the aforesaid railroad companies any violation of the District of Columbia. And power is hereby granted to the Metropolitan Railroad Company and the Rock Creek Railway Company to acquire, sell, or lease, or to let, or to operate, or to permit operation of the line of said Rock Creek Railway Company on Florida avenue and U street, or any part thereof.

SEC. 6. That this act shall take effect in thirty days after its passage.

ST. PAUL'S CHAMBER, 23 BEDFORD STREET, STRAND,
London, W. C., January 1, 1895.

DEAR SIR: I have the honor to forward you a copy of a memorial signed by 354 members of the British House of Commons, in support of the petition for arbitration. As the object of the memorial is of the highest importance, and the signatures represent all shades of political opinion in the British Parliament, I venture to ask for the prayer of the memorialists your earnest consideration.

Respectfully, yours,

W. RANDAL CREMER.

Hon. WILKINSON CALL, Senator.

To the President and Congress of the United States of America:

In response to the resolution adopted by Congress on April 4, 1890, the British House of Commons, supported in its decision by Mr. Gladstone, on June 16, 1895, unanimously affirmed its willingness to cooperate with the Government of the United States in settling disputes between the two countries by means of arbitration. The undersigned members of the British Parliament, while ardently thanking Congress for having by its resolution taken such an impetus to the movement and called forth such a response from our Government, earnestly hope that Congress will follow up its resolution, and crown its desire by inviting our Government to join in forming a treaty which shall bind the two nations to refer to arbitration disputes which diplomacy fails to adjust. Should such a proposal be made, our heartfelt effort would be to quickly acquiesce, and we shall be glad to see that the United States of America and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland have resolved to set such a splendid example to the other nations of the world.

REPORT OF NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCES.

Mr. HAWLEY. I was requested by the president of the National Academy of Sciences to present the report, which the academy makes in accordance with statute, upon the standards for electrical measure. The existing statute provides for the printing of the report, so that no action is necessary.

MRS. EVALYN N. VAN VLIET.

Mr. GALLINGER. The bill (S. 684) for the relief of Mrs. Evalyn N. Van Vliet, which passed the Senate, was amended by the House of Representatives and the amendments referred to the Committee on Pensions. I report back the bill, and move that the Senate nonconcur in the amendments of the House of Representatives, and ask for a conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses.

The motion was agreed to.

PREVENTION OF DESECRATION OF GRAVES.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am directed by the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 4693) for the promotion of anatomical science and to prevent the desecration of graves in the District of Columbia, to report it favorably without amendment. Inasmuch as a bill in its express terms has passed the Senate, but the other House passed a bill of their own, and as it is a matter of importance to the medical profession of the District, I ask for the immediate consideration of this bill.

Mr. BATE. Are we through with the morning business?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The morning business is not concluded.

Mr. BATE. I must object.

Mr. GALLINGER. I suggest to the Senator from Tennessee that this is a measure which passed the Senate. The other House in place of passing the Senate bill passed a House bill in the same terms. It is a matter that the medical fraternity of the District are greatly interested in, and it will only take a moment to pass the bill. The Senator does not object, I understand.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

VOLLEY P. HART.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I am directed by the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2745) to authorize the Postmaster-General to refund to Volley P. Hart, postmaster at Sedalia, Mo., moneys sent him by the Post-Office Department for disbursement, and lost by the failure of the First National Bank of Sedalia, to report it favorably, without amendment. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be put upon its passage, as its passage will involve some further action, which it is necessary, if done at all, should be done at this time. I call the attention of the Senator from Missouri to the report.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill reported by the Senator from Colorado?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It authorizes the Postmaster-General to refund to Volley P. Hart, postmaster at Sedalia, Mo., the balance of the $9,000 received by him on the 13th of April, 1894, from the Post-Office Department to pay postal clerks and office force for the months of April, May, and June, 1894, and deposited by him in the First National Bank of Sedalia, which remained in the bank at the date of its failure, on May 4, 1894, not to exceed $6,000; but before the balance shall be so refunded Volley P. Hart shall assign and transfer to the Postmaster-General his claim against the First National Bank of Sedalia for the balance of $9,000 and all dividends thereon.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

C. F. LYNCH.

Mr. CAMDEN. On the 22d of January there was referred to the Committee on Appropriations a resolution submitted by me, the consideration of which that committee desire to be relieved from, and that it be referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

By unanimous consent, the Committee on Appropriations was discharged from the further consideration of the resolution, and it was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate do, and he is hereby authorized and directed to pay C. F. Lynch the difference between the amount of compensation received by him as an employee of the Government on the ruling page roll of the Senate and the salary of messenger, which duty he has performed from the 15th day of December, 1894, to the present time, and as long as he continues to perform the duties of messenger, to be paid out of the appropriation for salaries of officers, clerks, messengers, and others, Senate, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895.

JOSEPH W. ADY.

Mr. CAMDEN. I am instructed by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY] on the 12th instant, to report it favorably, without amendment. I ask for its present consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution with be read, subject to objection.

The Secretary read as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate do, and he is hereby authorized and directed to pay, out of the contingent fund of the Senate, to Joseph W. Ady, the contingent fee of the seat of JOHN MARTIN, a Senator from Kansas, the sum of $200 in full of expenses incurred by the said Joseph W. Ady in his said contest.

Mr. CAMDEN. I will state that the resolution was approved by the Committee on Privileges and Elections and referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses. I ask for its immediate consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection is made, and the resolution will go to the Calendar.

JOSEPH M'GUCKIAN.

The Secretary read as follows:

Resolved, That Joseph McGuckian be placed on the messenger roll of the Senate at a salary of $600 per annum, to be paid monthly out of the contingent fund of the Senate, and that he be assigned to one of the committees of the Senate now without a messenger.

Mr. CAMDEN. I ask for the present consideration of the resolution. I will state that it has been reported favorably on the recommendation of a large majority of Senators in this Chamber. The man to whom the resolution refers has been in the employ of the Government about thirty years, and is now old; he has been thrown out of employment, and it has been recommended that he be placed on the roll of the Senate at $600 per annum.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. PLATT. I do not wish to object, but I want to make an inquiry. Will we authorize an individual by name to be put on the Senate roll, does that put him out of the power of the Sergeant-at-Arms? Can the Sergeant-at-Arms remove him if he thinks it necessary, or appoint someone else in his place?

Mr. CAMDEN. I think not.

Mr. PLATT. I think we ought to go very carefully about such business.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. McLAURIN. I object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection, and the resolution will go to the Calendar.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14, and agree to the same.

Mr. HAWLEY. I ask the Senator what amendment No. 15 is.

Mr. BLACKBURN. That is an amendment offered by the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE], providing for the payment of small sums to a half dozen or more consuls, amounting in the aggregate to five or six hundred dollars.

Mr. HAWLEY. The Senate recedes from that amendment?

Mr. BLACKBURN. The Senate recedes from that amendment, with the understanding that it is properly a deficiency; that it should be in the deficiency bill, and is out of place in this bill.

Mr. FRYE. I wish to ask the Senator what was done with the Senate amendment making appropriations for Samoa.

Mr. BLACKBURN. That amendment was agreed to by the House of Representatives.

I am advised that the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON] would like to make a few remarks upon the bill, and as he does not often ask the indulgence of the Senate I trust he may be allowed to proceed at this time.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the Senator from Maryland proceeding at this time? The Chair hears none.

[Mr. GIBSON addressed the Senate. His remarks are withheld for revision, and they will appear hereafter.]

Mr. GIBSON. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. McLAURIN. I am not quite ready to vote for the passage of the bill, and I object.

Mr. WILSON of Iowa. I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON], who is absent, and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS]. Not knowing how he would vote on this question I withhold my vote. I should vote "nay" if I were at liberty to vote.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I withdraw my vote, as I am paired with the Senator from Ohio [Mr. BRICE].

Mr. BUTLER. I wish to give notice that after the disposition of the present bill I shall ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of S. B. 7373 (H. R. 11441), entitled "An act to regulate interstate commerce," approved February 4, 1887.

Mr. HIGGINS. We could not hear the Senator from South Carolina on this side.

Mr. BUTLER. I simply gave notice that when the pending bill is disposed of I shall ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of House bill 7373, with which the Senator is familiar.

Mr. HALE. The Senator from South Carolina will not undertake to interfere with appropriation bills.

Mr. BUTLER. I will not commit myself to any agreement on that subject.

Mr. HALE. Then the Senate will have to settle it.

Mr. BUTLER. Then the Senate will have to settle it.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. In view of the lateness of the session and the fact that doubtless every member of the Senate has his mind made up as to the bill which has just been taken up, and in view of the further fact that the friends of the bill do not propose to occupy the time of the Senate by discussion, I ask unanimous consent that we fix an hour to-day at which we may have a vote on the bill. I will suggest 4 o'clock.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. ALDRICH. After conference with many Senators upon this side of the Chamber, I am satisfied that it will be impossible to get an agreement to vote upon the bill to-day. There is a very strong and a very natural feeling that in the present condition of the country a bill of such importance ought not to be passed or voted upon except after the fullest discussion. I therefore object to the proposed agreement.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection to the request of the Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I regret very much that some time can not be fixed upon for a vote in the Senate. The friends of the measure are perfectly willing to submit the matter to a test at any hour. I regret that the minority of the Senate should think it necessary to resort to dilatory tactics to avoid a vote on this bill. I will concede to the Senate a very great length of time, but I will ask the Senate to remain in session to-day until we reach a vote on the bill, if it is possible to get it.

Mr. HALE. In view of the fact that only eight or nine days remain for the consideration of the business that must be done by the Senate, let me ask the Senator whether he thinks it is now good policy to bring up this bill, for which we give rise to long and perhaps heated discussion, and engross the time of the Senate, and thereby endanger the passage of the appropriation bills, which surely would result in an extra session of Congress. I know in asking this question that the Senator is a calm-minded man and contemplates things that will come up in the future, and I should be glad to have him give us some indication as to whether it is his intention to hold the bill here day and night, to the exclusion of appropriation bills.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I should be glad to avoid exactly the contingency that has been suggested by the Senator from Maine, and for that reason I suggested that an hour should be fixed for a vote in the Senate. There is not a man in this body who does not know how every other man in the country will regard the question. A discussion of an hour a day, or a week will change nobody's conviction. It is a matter that has been fully and fairly discussed and understood. It has been weighed and considered by every member of the body. Every man has his mind already made up. I am willing and the friends of the measure are willing to put the matter to a test now without a word of debate.

If the opponents of the bill, for the purpose of avoiding a vote, see fit to resort to a discussion or debate which will look to us as having for its prime purpose to avoid a vote at all, of course we can not help it; but we must make an earnest effort to reach a vote on the bill.

I do not propose to jeopardize the passage of an appropriation bill. There will be plenty of time, in my judgment, to pass the appropriation bills, but if the time is wasted, the friends of the measure do not propose to run the risk of an extra session by prolonging its consideration if the minority, as I believe, in the Senate manifest a disposition to prevent the passage of the bill. Of course we can not help it if they choose to do it.

Mr. HALE. Now, if the Senator will allow me, he is shifting the burden. It is not dilatory tactics for the minority, or for any portion of the Senate, to insist that the bill which must be considered, to complete the business of this Congress shall be considered. The Senator himself and those who have joined with him in bringing this matter before the Senate have created this situation. It is they who have obstructed this bill here. I do not say it in an offensive sense, because the majority has the right to take up any bill, but it is they who have made the situation and have made the danger.

It seems to me that it is going a little too far when a disposition is manifested, as is always manifested when this subject is up for a fair debate, for the Senator to intimate that it is dilatory in its purpose and nature, and is meant for delay. The Senator knows that in all forms when this great question has come up heretofore there has been no delay. The Senators have expressed themselves freely upon both sides of the question. There can not be a resolution offered in the morning hour on the subject that does not go over and give rise day after day to debate much of the day. The Senator will not himself intimate, because he is a fair-minded man, that reasonable debate upon this question is dilatory in its nature.

Mr. HARRIS. Will the Senator from Maine allow me to ask him if he can name any number of hours that the opponents of the bill will require for debate? I do not think there is a single friend of the bill who is disposed to consume a minute's time in debating it.

Mr. HALE. I have heard the Senator ask that question a great many times in reference to another bill that we had up in the last session of Congress. I heard that question asked when the majority was attempting to repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman Act. But, if I may say so, it is not a real, pertinent, square question. I can not tell you. It may be that I shall not want to debate the bill one moment.

Mr. HALE. I suppose the Senator suggest to me how I can square it better than it is squared?

Mr. HALE. The truth is that whenever Senators want to get a measure through that suits them they turn around and accuse the other side of dilatory tactics. Now, that is not so. Only a fair measure of debate is all that anybody wants. I know that the Senator from Arkansas in managing this bill will manage the bill carefully and will handle the Senate carefully. I am willing to trust to his management.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I should like to ask the Senator a question in this connection. Does he believe any amount of debate would change any vote from the present intention of the Senate if we were to vote right now, even if the discussion of the bill should continue for a month?

Mr. HALE. I suppose it may be true about almost all measures we debate and discuss here.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Then I do not see any good reason why we may not vote now, except that the minority fear they will be beaten on the vote; that is all.

Mr. HALE. If the Senator were in the minority and objecting to this bill, he would want the privilege of debate. He knows he would.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Certainly; and we do not propose to deny that privilege.

Mr. HALE. I hope the Senator will go on with the bill, and that it will not be intimated there are any dilatory tactics here. There is no disposition to resort to dilatory tactics.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I do not think it will require an intimation for everybody to understand the purpose of a protracted debate on the bill.

Mr. ALDRICH. Mr. President, there are some facts in connection with this bill that I think ought to be stated. Of course they are apparent to everyone, but it would do no harm to state them.

There is no member of the Senate and no person in the United States who expects that this bill will become a law if it passes the Senate, and any time spent here in pressing it for consideration will certainly, so far as any practical results are concerned, be entirely wasted. But when the Senate of the United States is called upon to express its opinion upon a question of such importance, it is not right that the Senator from Arkansas or any other Senator should suggest that it be passed upon without discussion. An innumerable number of amendments will be offered to the bill, that can not be helped. You can not expect Senators to vote upon a single proposition involving the whole financial question without amendment and without debate.

If there was any real benefit to come to the country or any result to be reached by pressing the bill for consideration that would be of any value to the country, the Senator from Arkansas, if he is frank to the Senate and the country, must admit that he does not expect the bill to pass the coordinate branch of Congress and receive the Executive approval. Therefore I think it comes with ill grace from that Senator to suggest that a bill of such importance should be hurried through the Senate without discussion at this hour of the session.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, I entirely agree with the Senator from Arkansas that in all human probability debate will not change a vote in this body, but perhaps there is another function of debate which has not been alluded to by him or by any other Senator which is as important as the supposed capacity of debate to influence votes. The country expect, and I think will demand, that a measure so important and far-reaching as this should not be passed (if it is true, as the Senator from Arkansas thinks, that it will be passed) without an exposition of the objections to the measure by those who differ from him, and who represent a very large constituency in the country.

It will be necessary, I think, before the bill passes to inquire why it is that after having spent the long weary weeks of the summer of 1893 in the attempt that was so unsuccessful to repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman Act the same Senate or the same Congress is asked to restore that purchasing clause in an intensified form; that is, intensified as it seems to many who are opposed to the bill brought forward by the Senator from Arkansas. Therefore I do not think it is unreasonable to say that before the bill passes it should receive such debate and discussion, if not by its friends but by those who oppose it, as will give to the evening to consider a bill of which I heartily approve. I call his attention to the fact, however, that that is the evening of the 23d of February, and there are social and other engagements that evening.

Mr. ALDRICH. Make it next week some time.

Mr. LLEY. So far as I am concerned, any evening will be satisfactory.

Mr. HARRIS. Might it not be well to have it to-morrow evening? The resolution goes over, and I shall ask the Senate to consider it to-morrow morning. I will change the time from Friday evening, the 23d, to Thursday evening, the 21st.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That modification will be made. The resolution goes over.

MISSOURI RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. ALLEN. Will the Senator from Delaware yield to me for a moment?

Mr. HIGGINS. I will.

Mr. ALLEN. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of House bill 8499.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title of the bill will be read for information.

The SECRETARY. A bill (H. R. 8499) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Missouri River in the county of Dakota, in the State of Nebraska, and in the city of Sioux City, in the county of Woodbury, in the State of Iowa.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. FRYE. I object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

YELLOWSTONE RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. POWER. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 6750) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Yellowstone River in the county of Dawson, State of Montana. I will state that a Senate bill of the same tenor has been favorably reported by the Committee on Commerce; I therefore ask for action upon the House bill, and if it shall be passed I shall move the indefinite postponement of the Senate bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill indicated by the Senator from Montana?

Mr. ALLEN. I think the bridge bills ought to be considered together. I therefore object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

ADOPTION OF CHILDREN IN THE DISTRICT.

Mr. HALLINGER. I ask the Senator from Delaware to yield to me that I may ask unanimous consent for the consideration of a bill which it is important should be passed. I think it will take but a moment.

Mr. HIGGINS. What is the bill?

Mr. HALLINGER. It is the bill to authorize the adoption of children in the District of Columbia.

Mr. HIGGINS. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. HALLINGER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 5711) to authorize the adoption of children in the District of Columbia.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from New Hampshire?

Mr. BUTLER. I object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

Several SENATORS. Regular order.

COINAGE OF SILVER.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolutions submitted by the Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT] are before the Senate, and which the Senator from Delaware [Mr. HIGGINS] is entitled to the floor.

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. President, we have a sudden change of scene between last night and this morning as to the status of the silver question in the Senate. The junior Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT] offered late last evening his resolutions, which are now the pending order, while this morning the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES] has almost cut the ground from under our feet, by stating that his bill, once so urgent and so necessary, will not now be pressed to a vote.

I should not feel relieved, Mr. President, of any reason for taking up the time of the Senate were the difference between the resolutions of the Senator from Colorado and the bill of the Senator from Arkansas a vital difference. Instead of that there is a vital concurrence between them. Both are declarations of policy on this momentous question to be met by this body. Of course the bill of the Senator from Arkansas was neither presented nor urged as legislation, let alone serious legislation. He knows, as we all know, that at this stage of the session it is impossible for such a measure to receive the legislative assent. He knows, as we all know, that in all human probability, if it passed this body, it could not be passed by the other branch of Congress, still less that it could receive the sanction of the Executive. It amounts, therefore, to no more than a declaration of policy, and that is just what the first resolution of the Senator from Colorado is. The resolution is as follows:

That it is the sense of the Senate that the welfare and prosperity of the United States require the enactment of a law for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

We may well ask, Mr. President, why are to be vexed with this question at this stage of the public business and of the session? What good is to be accomplished by it? On the other hand, what harm, what vast injury, may be accomplished by it if it be adopted.

I shall not take up the time or weary the patience of the Senate by any rebash of the discussion of the silver question so elaborately considered in the first session of the present Congress, not to say in preceding sessions, but it does become incumbent on us to understand just where this question now stands.

I was surprised at the attitude of the Senator from Arkansas, finding fault or complaining that any discussion should be indulged in by the opponents of his bill or the opponents of this policy; surprised, in the first place, because his bill, it not being serious legislation, was itself but Senatorial discussion, playing for position, possibly a stump speech, not a bill presented with a view to its passage. If, therefore, the Senate is asked to vote on that question and thus make such a declaration, surely it is incumbent upon individual members of the Senate not to let such an utterance of this body go out to the country or to the world without some statement on their part of their belief and of their opinions.

A long time, Mr. President, has elapsed since the repeal of the silver clause of the Sherman Act; a year and nearly four months in time, but a period so pregnant with events, so full of experience on this question, that we have learned to know more about it than we should in any ten years of the previous experience of the world in this regard. During all this time there has been no discussion in this body of the silver question. Now we are asked suddenly to make this declaration, and to remain dumb as to all that has occurred meanwhile.

The message of the silver-purchase repeal act marked the broad lines of difference of treatment of this subject by the two sides of the Chamber. Those on the side I speak for professed to believe—I know I believe, and I think all the others believe—that they are true supporters of the doctrine and the principle of bimetalism. I say that despite the sneers of our friends on the other side of the question, who seem to insist upon it that we are but gold monometalists in our position, our contrary opinion is made clear by an example that what we contend for, what our policy is pointed at, is nothing else but the restoration of the state of affairs as it existed before Germany suspended the coinage of silver in 1870 or 1871, and before her action was followed by France and the rest of Europe, and acceded to by the United States when we came to coinage.

Up to that time there had been no silver problem; the world had not been troubled by it. Everywhere, since France had adopted her standard of 154 to 1 in 1803, silver had been freely coined in all of the mints, except that of England, at that ratio, and the two metals had subsisted as standard money side by side in all the marts of the world. All we ask is that a policy be pursued by the United States which will tend and lead to that result. That is the bimetalism in which we believe. We are not gold monometalists, and we are opposed to, and shall oppose to the very last, silver monometalism.

The two sides took issue on this matter in the fight over the repeal of the silver-purchase act, and, as we all know, it resulted in the repeal. That was a step momentous in its character, vast in its results, and, as I have said, has been followed by a larger chapter and measure of experience in the year and a quarter which has elapsed since then in any period of five times its length before in the history of the world.

The measure was, of course, one of experiment. Every such attempt by man in respect to this silver problem since Germany began the process of demonetization has been but one of experiment. It always remains in the experimental stage. Since 1873 we have been coining silver under the Bland-Allison Act until we had accumulated a stock of silver which was very large and great as much as was presently needed for our purposes. Pressed by the advocates of free and unlimited coinage of silver, in 1890 we passed the purchase act, and under that act this country became the purchaser of 50,000,000 ounces of silver every year. The Treasury notes in substitution thereof based upon the billion in the Treasury, and adding that to our paper money requiring to be redeemed.

A coming across which alarmed the world and alarmed the people of this country. We were called upon to take a new departure. A new departure we did take. We initiated then a great measure of policy on this important subject. The real object, the raison d'être of the repeal act, was to serve notice upon Europe that the United States would no longer be the patient ass carrying the silver burden of the world; that they might not expect or hope or look for the mitigation of the evil effects of the silver problem by reason of the United States carrying upon its latest statistics, the which of this burden. That we had engaged in a territory, was subject the Board Allison Act that we assumed with the least cost and step when we came to the point of sale. Silver could not be sold in any other market than the market of the United States. It is not a new market, Mr. Jones, and it is not a new market, it is a market that is not a market for silver. The silver problem in all its dreadful features remained to perpetrate and was not to be forgotten.

There is no question or difference between the two sides of this Chamber as to the subject of the silver coinage. The two sides of this Chamber are in agreement. It is not a question of the silver coinage. Our friends, the supporters of the free and unlimited coinage of silver by the United States alone, said that that was the remedy. Some of them are the open advocates of silver monometallism, and say that that will be good for the United States and the world; others that the United States by such free coinage will bring silver to a price, such as it is, and it is not a question of the silver coinage. On the other hand, unwilling to take the risk of such a step, the Senate and the House of Representatives and the President in that great act took the important step which is now attacked by this resolution. We enacted as the policy of this Government, as I said before, that we will no longer play the part of the patient as carrying the burdens of all the world. We reserved notice upon Great Britain, upon Germany, upon France, upon all Europe, that they would have to bear and step along with us.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Delaware will suspend. The hour of 12 o'clock having arrived, the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, the title of which will be stated.

THE SECRETARY. A bill (S. 2642) providing for the issue of bonds to the Government.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Let the unfinished business be laid aside informally to allow the Senator from Delaware to conclude his remarks.

Mr. GORMAN. Will the Senator from Arkansas permit me?

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Certainly.

Mr. GORMAN. I must appeal to the Senator from Delaware, as well as the Senator from Arkansas, to cease the discussion at this time. All the great appropriation bills are pending in the Senate or in the committee, and it will be almost impossible to have fair consideration of those bills unless we begin with them now. I must appeal to the Senator in the public interest to give way and permit me to make a motion, as I am respected in the Senate, the Senator in charge of the Indian appropriation bill, that the Senate proceed to its consideration.

Mr. BUTLER. I shall have to object to that.

Mr. HIGGINS. I shall feel compelled to make my remarks on some other order of business. I never have taken up much time of the Senate in the discussion of any question.

Mr. BUTLER. I think the Senator from Delaware ought to proceed.

Mr. GORMAN. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. BUTLER. I object.

Mr. HIGGINS. I ask who has the floor?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state to the Senator from Delaware that when the hour of 12 o'clock arrived the unfinished business was laid before the Senate. The Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES], in charge of that bill, asked unanimous consent that it be laid aside for the present.

Mr. HIGGINS. I object.

Mr. GORMAN. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Arkansas repeat his request?

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. My suggestion was that the coinage bill be informally laid aside. I stated a few moments ago in the Senate that in view of the lateness of the session and the necessity for passing the appropriation bills, the friends of the measure having had it before the Senate and having developed the fact that they were in the majority, and the minority presenting a determined opposition to it, it was impossible for us without danger to the appropriation bills to undertake to pass the bill at the present session, and that under those circumstances the friends of the measure would not press it further during this session of Congress.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. President—

Mr. ALLEN. I desire to object.

Mr. SHERMAN. I trust the Senator from Maryland will allow the Senator from Delaware to proceed and finish his remarks. There is no desire on this side to delay the appropriation bills.

Mr. GORMAN. I appeal to the Senator from Delaware to give way, so that we may proceed with the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. SHERMAN. The Senator from Delaware can finish his speech on that bill.

Mr. GORMAN. And if the Senator from Delaware desires to go on with his speech, well and good. I make that motion.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state that the motion of the Senator from Maryland to proceed to the consideration of an appropriation bill is a privileged motion, and the Chair submits it to the Senate.

Mr. SHERMAN. All right.

Mr. BUTLER. I desire to make a remark in regard to the matter. If the Senator from Delaware will permit me, I will state that the Senator from Maryland in the statement he has just made urges as a reason why the Senate should now proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill the shortness of time.

Mr. GORMAN. I do.

Mr. BUTLER. And that the appropriation bills might be considered if we had proceeded to their consideration promptly.

It seems to be known as a fact that the Senate devoted nearly two years to the consideration of the appropriation bill and the consideration of the bill and the Post-Office appropriation bill for no other purpose on earth, as it appeared to me, than to kill time. Now, at this hour, when there are other very important measures which have been clamoring for recognition in this body—

Mr. GORMAN. I must suggest that debate is not in order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Debate can proceed only by unanimous consent.

Mr. BUTLER. Then I understand the Senator from Maryland objects to my making this statement.

Mr. GORMAN. I object to debate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair submits to the Senate the motion of the Senator from Maryland to proceed to the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.

Mr. BUTLER. I am not in favor of the years at large.

The year and days were reported, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DUDMAN].

Mr. GRAY (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Illinois [Mr. CULUM].

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHORE]. Were he present I should vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GALLINGER. I inquire if the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] has voted?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS], and withhold my vote.

Mr. DUBOIS. I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

The result was announced—yeas 55, nays 12; as follows:

So the motion was agreed to; and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 8479) making appropriations for current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department and fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes, which had been reported from the Committee on Appropriations with amendments.

Mr. HIGGINS. Mr. President, I am only too happy to indicate by my vote on the question of taking up the appropriation bill that I have no disposition at all to delay the speedy passage of the appropriation bills and the discharge by the Senate of its duties at this stage of the session. But on this measure I desire to conclude the very brief remarks I wish to make upon the subject which was lately before the Senate.

Mr. CHANDLER. Mr. President, it seems that the provision to which the Senator from Maryland has addressed his remarks was no part of the Senate amendments to the bill. It is a new condition concerning a new subject-matter entirely, and was introduced by the committee of conference. This provision, which is a change in the income-tax law, requiring corporations to report the names and salaries of their employees for the year 1894, is changed now by the conference report, although nothing in the original amendments of the Senate had any relation to that subject.

This, as I said, is a very adroit piece of legislative work. It shows the danger that lurks in conference committees, and it shows that the Senate should scrutinize with care all conference reports.

Mr. HALE. Does the Senator from New Hampshire mean to say that the conference committee have introduced in their report a feature that was not considered by either body?

Mr. CHANDLER. I say so in this case.

Mr. HALE. That is very remarkable, if it is true.

Mr. VEST. It is not true.

Mr. ALLISON. I beg to assure the Senator from New Hampshire that he is wholly mistaken as to the fact.

Mr. CHANDLER. Perhaps the Senator from Iowa will be able to demonstrate that fact.

Mr. ALLISON. I will try to do so if the Senator from New Hampshire wants me to.

Mr. CHANDLER. The Senator from Iowa will please wait until I get through and then try.

The amendments of the Senate were threefold, and they will appear in the report if it is read. There was not in the amendments of the Senate a single word on the question whether corporations should return the names and salaries of their employees. The House conferees insisted as a condition of accepting the Senate amendments that a provision should be put in exempting corporations from making returns of the names and salaries of their employees. I say that had not the slightest reference to any one of the Senate amendments. It was a new matter entirely.

I understand very well why the amendment has been run into the conference report. It is very inconvenient for the great corporations of this country to give the names and salaries of all their employees. The law is inquisitorial. It was fought here by this side of the Chamber because it was an inquisitorial law, but it suited the majority to pass it, to make it a law and to fasten this inquisitorial enactment upon the people of the country; and it should rest upon the corporations of the country just as much as it rests upon the individuals of the country. Now, here is an attempt to change the law in this very important particular simply for the reason that the great corporations of this country are unwilling to give to the collectors of internal revenue, and possibly to the public, the names and salaries of certain of their employees.

Mr. President, the united railroads of this country, with $11,000,000,000 of capital, are standing at the doors of the Senate and the House of Representatives, seeking to pass the pooling bill which the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] advocated with so much ability the other day. This eleven billion dollar partnership or aggregation of railroads has hundreds of employees to whom it pays large salaries, and did pay those salaries in 1894. Some of them, perhaps many of them, are in this city to-day seeking to influence and to control legislation. That is one class of employees that it is very inconvenient for the great railroads and great corporations of this country to furnish a list of to the revenue officers. It would be very annoying, very inconvenient, very inquisitorial, no doubt, that those returns should be made; and I congratulate those gentlemen and the railroad corporations and the other corporations which employ them upon the skill, ingenuity, and ability which they have shown in influencing conference committees of Congress.

Mr. HALE. I should like to have some member of the conference committee make it clear to the Senate that the conference has not violated what is a rule of the Senate, never that I know of varied from, that no new matter not considered by either House shall be introduced into a conference report. Unless that rule is steadily maintained into a conference report, and its conferees have always taken that position. In the Appropriations Committee, where in the last days everything depends upon the legislative integrity of the conferees of this body and of the other, it has always been maintained, as a rule, that no new matter shall be introduced.

I hope and believe that the conferees in this case can explain to the Senate that it has not been done now.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, compared with the action of the Senate heretofore as to the rule which has been established with respect to conference committees, we have not gone by any means as far as has always been done at every session since I have served here in regard to conference reports. I remember very distinctly when a whole tariff bill was brought in after some of the provisions in it had been voted down by both Houses of Congress, and that became the law in 1883.

Now, in this case, while we were considering the question of returns made by corporations, which we found in the second subdivision of the resolution, this amendment was suggested by the House conferees with the approbation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. It is a matter germane to the subject which we were considering, and was not outside of the province of the conference committee at all.

Mr. HALE. What was the provision which was amended?

Mr. VEST. It was the resolution—

Resolved, That in computing incomes and profits of a partnership, company, or association shall and be included as such incomes, profits, or dividends the tax of 2 per cent upon the net profits of such partnership, company, or association, although such tax may not have been actually paid by said corporation, company, or association at the time of making returns by the person, partnership, company, or association receiving such dividends.

Mr. ALLISON. I ask the Senator to read also the third resolution which was put in by the Senate, relating to inquiries.

Mr. CHANDLER. The conferees backed out of that.

Mr. VEST. The third resolution says:

Resolved, That no taxpayer shall be required in his return, or its annual return, to make a statement as to any investments or assets as specifically provided in said act.

That was the third resolution. Now, we added:

And returns or reports of the names and salaries of employees shall not be required from employers unless called for by the collector in order to verify the returns of employees.

I desire to say in answer to the Senator from New Hampshire that any intimation that corporate influence brought this about is absolutely false.

Mr. HALE. I myself think, after hearing that read as a part of one of the amendments, that it gave the committee jurisdiction over the subject. I am glad to see that the committee does not exceed its authority.

Mr. VEST. It has not exceeded it.

Mr. HALE. I did not know that was the case.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] to lay on the table the motion to reconsider.

Mr. ALLEN. On that I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. ILANSBROUGH (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER].

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD]. In his absence I withhold my vote.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BURROWS (after having voted in the affirmative). I desire to withdraw my vote. I am paired with the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON].

Mr. DUBOIS. I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. WHITE (after having voted in the affirmative). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUP]. I withdraw my vote. If the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUP] were present I should vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 57, nays 10; as follows:

So the Senate laid the motion to reconsider on the table.

Mr. HOAR. I simply ask leave to state that if there had been time to deal with this matter more carefully I should have voted against laying the motion to reconsider on the table. I am not at all satisfied with the way the legislation is left, but the shortness of time seemed to compel a disposition of the measure now.

INDIAN APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the Indian appropriation bill be proceeded with.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8479) making appropriations for current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department and fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes.

Mr. COCKRELL. There was considerable discussion yesterday evening between the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES] and the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON] as to the meaning of the Wichita agreement. Two amendments have been prepared which I think cover the entire case and are satisfactory to all parties. I move to strike out on page 54, from line 13 down to the word "agreement" in line 20, and insert what I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 54, after line 12, strike out all down to and including the word "agreement" in line 20, in the following words:

That the said Wichita and affiliated bands of Indians be allowed as compensation for the cession of the lands described in article 1 of the foregoing agreement the sum of $125 per acre for so much of said land as will not be required for allotment to the Indians as provided in the foregoing agreement, subject to such reduction as may be found necessary under article 5 of said agreement.

And insert:

The compensation to be allowed in full for all Indian claims to these lands which may be sustained by said court in the suit heretofore provided for shall not exceed $1.50 per acre.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Missouri.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. Now, on page 56, at the end of line 16, I move to insert the following proviso:

Provided, That the United States shall pay the Indians for said reserved sections the same price as is paid for the lands not reserved.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Missouri.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CALL. On my own motion I offer an amendment. I move to amend, on page 60, after line 5, by inserting:

Provided, That such judgment shall not be binding on Congress, but only advisory.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will recognize the Senator from Florida for the purpose of offering the individual amendment after the committee amendments have been disposed of. The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations will be stated.

Mr. COCKRELL. The amendment of the committee, beginning in line 23, at the bottom of page 57, should be agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After the word "precedence," in line 23, page 57, the committee report to strike out the following additional proviso:

And provided further, That nothing in this act shall be accepted or construed as a confession that the United States admit that the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations have any claim to or interest in said lands or any part thereof.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Committee on Appropriations which was pending at adjournment yesterday will be stated.

The SECRETARY. Strike out all after line 8, page 60, down to and including line 23, in the following words:

The proper accounting officers of the Treasury are hereby authorized and directed to pay to Bartlett Richards, out of the appropriation for "support of Sioux of different tribes, including Santee Sioux of Nebraska," for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, the sum of $98.46, for beef actually delivered to the Pine Ridge Agency, S. Dak., in the month of November, 1894, said amount having been suspended or disallowed, under contract stipulations. For the reason that the average weight of 265 head of steers was not fully up to the contract requirements, the deficiency recurring through the efforts of the contractor to comply with writs in request of the treasury officer, acting Indian agent, to deliver lighter cattle than had been previously delivered under the contract.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee.

Mr. MANDERSON. Mr. President, this amendment is to strike out a portion of the bill that was inserted in it by the action of the House. It is not a proposition to insert an appropriation either by the suggestion of the Committee on Appropriations or by the suggestion of any standing committee of the Senate or any individual member of the Senate.

I take it that the action of the Committee on Appropriations in striking out this paragraph inserted by the House is because of an adverse report coming from the Committee on Indian Affairs and submitted by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD], adverse to an amendment of like character that was proposed by the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY]. I have with great care examined the adverse report submitted. I will say in passing that while a member of the Committee on Indian Affairs I was not in the committee room when this matter was under consideration by the committee. Had I been I certainly would have antagonized an adverse report there as I antagonize it here.

I think it quite likely that if the Senate of the United States were sitting as a court of law without equity powers it might come to the conclusion suggested by the Senator from Louisiana and presumably to the conclusion that has been reached by the Committee on Indian Affairs by its majority; but the Senate of the United States and the Congress has no such limited power. It is not governed by law. It makes law; and constantly and ever it applies principles of equity and fair dealing between the Government and its citizens. Unfortunately for the citizens, it does not apply these principles so frequently as it should.

This contractor, having a contract with the Indian Office to supply certain beef cattle to feed the Indians at Pine Ridge Agency, gathered his stock for the purpose of making the supply. He gathered them near the agency that they might be delivered at such times and under such calls as might be made by the agent. It appears from this report that most of the cattle he had gathered were what are known as heavy beef cattle, averaging in weight perhaps 1,000 or 1,100 pounds, and those are the cattle he would have preferred to have delivered under his contract. It was to his advantage and pecuniary gain that he should deliver that class of cattle instead of those lighter in weight.

These cattle, when they come to be distributed by the agent among the Indian families, it is found, are more readily and evenly distributed—there is less trouble in apportioning them from the corral, whether they are delivered on the hoof or whether they are slaughtered and delivered—by having them of lighter weight. The request and desire of the Indian agent, Captain Penney, was that cattle should be delivered of the lighter weight instead of the heavier.

I will now refer to a statement contained in the report, being the affidavit of Bartlett Richards. Let me say in passing that this gentleman is a citizen of the State of white stock of its most reputable citizens, a man who would ask nothing of the Government that he is not fairly entitled to receive, a man who stands eminent in his neighborhood for his virtues, his honesty, and his integrity. And he is asking this comparatively small sum on this contract, not so much because of the amount involved as because it is fair treatment to him, and decent and honorable on the part of the Government that it should recognize and pay his claim. Mr. Richards in making his affidavit sets forth among other things that he has more than 1,000 head of cattle, of those averaging about 900 pounds in weight. He sets forth the facts, about which there is no dispute, and can be no dispute. He says:

The average weight of your petitioner's 3 and 4 year old steers, as shown by deliveries under the above contract and former ones, is more than 1,100 pounds per head; that your petitioner called with special care all the lightest cattle from his herds to comply with the acting Indian agent's request, though it was to his, the petitioner's, disadvantage; that your petitioner had 1,000 heavy beef steers ready for delivery within a few days drive of said agency; that the delivery of cattle weighing less than the prescribed average weight was not because of his inability to comply fully with the requisites of the contract, but solely through his efforts to oblige the acting agent in delivering lighter cattle than he had estimated when entering them out of his herds for the purposes of said delivery; that the 265 beef steers—all steers so delivered—were averaged 900 pounds in weight, instead of 850 pounds each, but that said cattle were inspected by Alfred B. Jackson, first lieutenant, Ninth Cavalry, United States Army, who certified that he found the same to be good, and that the same were delivered fully up to the requirements of the contract of Bartlett Richards, dated May 18, 1894, under which they were delivered; and that Capt. Charles G. Demery, United States Army, acting Indian agent at Pine Ridge Agency, for the Pine Ridge Agency, receipted for said cattle, as follows, after stating numbers and weight:

Thereby certifying that the beef here receipted for is fully equal to the requirements of the contract above mentioned, and that the delivery and receipt of each and every condition, provision, and stipulation of the contract has been fully and honestly complied with, and that payment has not been made for the same until the same have been delivered and receipted for by the Indian agent subsequently informed the Commissioner of Indian Affairs by telegram of November 21, 1894, that said cattle were received under article 6 of said contract, not by reason of inferior quality, but because below stipulated average weight.

Your petitioner further states that his cattle so delivered were in fine condition, and that he delivered the best of his stock, that he received good, mercurial beef, fat and otherwise in fine condition, and that he delivered the same in the frame, and that it is a serious hardship to insist upon a deduction from the contract price of said delivery of beef steers, under a provision of the contract designed solely for protection of the Government against the delivery of beef of inferior quality, and especially is it a hardship in making a deduction from said issue in this case, working an injustice that the Government should find it is believed that not more than 10 per cent of the light weight, i. e., smaller beef cattle, but in excess of flesh and otherwise fine beef cattle, were delivered through a desire solely to turn in such cattle as were below the average weight.

This sworn statement of the contractor does not stand alone. It is corroborated by all those who have knowledge of the facts, the word "lease" to insert "repair," and in line 20, after the word "draftsman," to strike out "at $1,200 per annum;" so as to read:

For support of Indian day and industrial schools, and for other educational purposes, including the purchase, lease, repair, and construction of school buildings, not hereinafter provided for, including pay of draftsman, to be employed in the office of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in line 22, on page 72, after the words "one million," to strike out "one hundred and sixty-four thousand three hundred and fifty," and insert "two hundred and fifty-three thousand four hundred and forty;" and in line 24, after the word "dollars," to insert "of which amount the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, use $5,000 for the education of Indians in Alaska;" so as to read:

For support of Indian day and industrial schools, and for other educational purposes, including the purchase, lease, repair, and construction of school buildings, not hereinafter provided for, including pay of draftsman, to be employed in the office of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, $1,253,440, of which amount the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, use $5,000 for the education of Indians in Alaska.

Mr. QUAY. At that point I understand the committee will agree to strike out the words, in the twenty-third line, "and fifty-three thousand four hundred and forty."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania to the amendment of the committee.

Mr. TELLER. What is the amendment?

Mr. FAULKNER. What is the parliamentary condition? Is this an amendment of the committee we are to vote on, or is it an amendment to strike out from the bill as it came from the House?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state that the vote will first be taken upon the amendment proposed by the Senator from Pennsylvania to the amendment of the committee.

Mr. JONES. A Kansas. What is the amendment?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated. The SECRETARY. In line 23, after the word "hundred," it is proposed to strike from the committee amendment the words "and fifty-three thousand four hundred and forty."

Mr. QUAY. I wish to modify the appropriation so as to leave it an even $1,200,000. That is, with the understanding that the provision on the seventy-seventh page for the Lincoln Institute and Hampton Institute are to be taken in that order.

Mr. TELLER. I should like to find out whether the amendments of the committee, on page 77, have been rejected or not. If they have been rejected, then this amendment is proper. If not, we do not want to make it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Those amendments have not yet been reached.

Mr. QUAY. The propositions were included in the suggestion I made to the Senator from Florida in charge of the bill, and which he accepted.

Mr. FAULKNER. I suggest to the Senator from Pennsylvania that he bring the question up at once as to whether the Senate will agree to the amendment of the committee striking out the House provision. Then, if the Senate does not agree to the amendment of the committee striking out the House provision, we can go back and correct the other.

Mr. QUAY. Then I ask that the vote be taken first on the amendment.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the vote be taken on the amendments on page 77.

Mr. CALL. That is the idea.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendments will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After line 3, on page 77, it is proposed to strike out:

For support and education of 120 Indian pupils at the school at Hampton, Va., $20,000.

For support and education of 300 Indian pupils at Lincoln Institute, Philadelphia, at $107 per annum each, $32,100.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment.

Mr. GALLINGER. Let us have the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. PETTIGREW. Mr. President, I should like to inquire just what the proposition is. Is it to adopt the amendment of the committee?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is.

Mr. COCKRELL. The question is on striking out the provisions as to the schools at Hampton and Lincoln.

Mr. QUAY. Those in favor of the institutions will vote "nay."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

Mr. HUNTON. There are some Senators who do not understand the question to be voted upon. I ask the Chair to restate it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state that the question is on the amendment of the Committee on Appropriations, to strike out the clauses on page 77 of the bill, from line 4 to line 10, inclusive.

Mr. HUNTON. Then the question is upon agreeing to the committee's amendment to strike out?

Mr. FRYE and others. Yes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BURROWS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH] to my colleague [Mr. SMITH] and vote "nay."

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. LINDSAY (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Nebraska [Mr. ALLEN]. I do not know how he would vote on this question if present, but if he were here I should vote "yea."

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD] and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. PETTIGREW (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. CAMDEN]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. POWER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. CAFFEY], but I understand that if that Senator were present he would vote "yea;" so I vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GRAY. I am paired with the senior Senator from Illinois [Mr. CULLOM], who is not present, and therefore I withhold my vote.

Mr. BATE. I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON]. Not knowing how that Senator would vote, if present, I withhold my vote.

Mr. GALLINGER (after having voted in the negative). I have voted, but I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS]. I will transfer that pair to the senior Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN] and let my vote stand.

Mr. VEST (after having voted in the affirmative). I withdraw my vote, as I notice that the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN], with whom I have a general pair, has not voted.

Mr. GORDON. I wish to announce my pair with the junior Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON].

Mr. BATE. The Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON], with whom I have announced a pair, having come into the Chamber, I will cast my vote. I vote "nay."

Mr. BURROWS. I desire to transfer my pair with the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON] to the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH], and I vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 21, nays 32; as follows:

YEAS—21.

Berry,	Hansbrough,	Perkins,	Vilas,
Blackburn,	Jones of Ark.	Power,	Voices
Bryce,	Martin,	Roach,	White.
Cockrell,	Mitchell of Wis.	Stewart,

Clark,	Hill,	Mantle,	Walsh,
Daniel,	Hoar,	Mohell of Ore.	Washburn,
Dixon,	Hunton,	Peffer,	Wilson of Wash.
			Wolcott.

NOT VOTING—33.

Aldrich,	Dolph,	Irby,	Pritchard,
Allen,	George,	Jones of Nev.	Pauch,
Ames,	Gibson,	Lindsay,	Sherman,
Butler,	Gordon,	McPherson,	Shoup,
Caffery,	Gorman,	Mills,	Smith,
Candies,	Gray,	McMillan,	Squire,
Cameron,	Hale,	Murphy,	Washburn,
Carr,	Harris,	Pass,	Wilson of Iowa.
Cullom,	Higgins,	Pettigrew,

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. COCKRELL. Now, I ask the Senate to disagree to the amendment beginning in line 23, on page 72, striking out "$1,104,050" and inserting "$1,253,440," so as to leave the amount just as it came from the House of Representatives.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated. The SECRETARY. On page 72, line 23, after the words "one million," the Committee on Appropriations reported to strike out "one hundred and sixty-four thousand three hundred and fifty," and insert "two hundred and fifty-three thousand four hundred and forty."

Mr. COCKRELL. That is restoring the amount as the bill came from the House of Representatives.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the committee amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. TELLER. I do not want to have any mistake in relation to the language as it stands. The words "of which amount the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, use $5,000 for the education of Indians in Alaska," I suppose are to stand.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is a separate amendment. Let that be voted on.

Mr. TELLER. These words are to be left in?
Mr. COCKRELL. Those words will be agreed to if there be no objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 72, line 24, after the word "dollars," the Committee on Appropriations request to insert:

Of which amount the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, use $5,000 for the education of Indians in Alaska.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. In line 2, page 73, it seems to me, in view of the discussion that has been had here to-day, the word "may" should be stricken out and the word "shall" inserted. If there is a proposition to reduce the appropriation for the contract schools 20 per cent, I think the Secretary should make the contracts for 80 per cent; and it ought not to be left doubtful as to whether he will or will not. I hope that change will be made.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed in line 2, page 73, to strike out "may" and insert "shall"; so as to read:

That the Secretary of the Interior shall make contracts for the education of Indian pupils, etc.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I have an amendment on the desk which was not been disposed of that I think covers this question. I ask that it may be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. When the text is perfected the Chair will recognize the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I think if the amendment of the Senator from Arkansas prevails it may take the place of the one I offered. As I offered my amendment first, I should like to have it disposed of first. I should like to have the amendment I offered read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be read.

The SECRETARY. Strike out all after the word "Alaska," in line 2, page 73, down to and including the word "cease," in line 11 of the same page, and insert:

Approved. That a sum not exceeding $1,254,400 shall be expended in support of school-works with which contract have heretofore been made. Provided further, That the Secretary of the Interior may in his discretion expend 20 per cent of said sum in the purchase of the property of such contract schools, as may be deemed for sale.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I will state in this connection that the sum named is just the amount of money which was expended for contract schools last year for all denominations—$515,000. If we are going to reduce it 20 per cent, a sum equal to that ought to be expended in the purchase of schools which may be abandoned.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I agree in view of the fact that a large number of contract schools have been laid under the contract which has heretofore prevailed, that if these ordinary arrangements are not allowed to go on the buildings ought to be bought by the Government, or at least those which are desirable and available should be purchased. I think the amendment proposed by the Senator from South Dakota covers the point I have suggested, and I am willing to take a vote on that.

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask that the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota be again read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be again read.

The SECRETARY again read the amendment.
Mr. GALLINGER. It strikes me that this is a very radical amendment and that we ought to take time to think it over before we vote it into the bill. If the amendment is adopted it certainly does two things: It strikes from the bill the provision that the contract schools shall be decreased at the rate of 20 per cent a year, which the Secretary of the Interior has suggested, and it likewise eliminates from it the provision that the Secretary of the Interior shall make contracts, but only with present contract schools, for the education of Indian pupils, etc., and instead it gives a lump sum for a certain other purpose.

Mr. PLATT. If the Senator from New Hampshire will permit me, I will state that the amendment would allow the Secretary of the Interior to continue all the contract schools that are now in existence unless he chooses to buy some of them out with 20 per cent of the money.

Mr. GALLINGER. There is no question about that. I think the amendment is not in the line of the legislation which we are trying to accomplish by the bill.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Will the Senator from New Hampshire allow me a moment?

Mr. GALLINGER. Certainly.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I understood the Senator from South Dakota to explain the effect of his amendment to be that he proposes to appropriate the amount of money which was appropriated last year, naming the amount, less 20 per cent. The difference between the present bill and his amendment is that the amount is specified in his amendment and is not specified in the bill. I should be glad to know if I misunderstood the Senator from South Dakota in that respect.

Mr. PETTIGREW. That is correct. If 20 per cent is stricken off I think it should be used for the purchase of buildings which may be abandoned.

Mr. HARRIS. Will the Senator from New Hampshire, as he seems to desire a little time to consider the amendment, yield to me in order that I may move a recess?

Mr. GALLINGER. I shall be pleased to do so.

Mr. HARRIS. I move that the Senate take a recess until 8 o'clock to-night.

Mr. PETTIGREW. For what purpose, I should like to know?
Mr. HARRIS. The question is not debatable, but I have no hesitation in saying that if I can get the floor—

Mr. WOLCOTT. I object to any explanation.

Mr. McLAURIN (at 5 o'clock and 38 minutes p.m.). I move that the Senate adjourn.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I ask the Senator from Mississippi to withdraw the motion to adjourn and yield to me—

Mr. HOAR. Regular order.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I wish to introduce a bill.

Mr. FAULKNER. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair has recognized the Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. FAULKNER. I ask the Senator from Mississippi, who has the floor, to yield to me.

Mr. HOAR. The regular order has been demanded.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The regular order is demanded, which is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. McLAURIN] that the Senate adjourn.

[Mr. McLAURIN and Mr. BUTLER called for the yeas and nays; and they were ordered.]

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH]. I transfer my pair to the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE] and vote "nay."

Mr. GALLINGER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS]. I transfer my pair to the senior Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN] and vote "nay."

Mr. GOLDEN (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON].

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL]. I should vote "nay" if I were not paired.

Mr. DE BOIS (when Mr. SNOTT'S name was called). I announce the pair of my colleague [Mr. SNOTT] with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. HARRIS. I transfer my pair with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] to the junior Senator from New York [Mr. MATHWY] and ask that my vote be recorded. I vote "nay."

Mr. DAVIS, after having voted in the affirmative, I desire to inquire if the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE] has voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted, the Chair is advised.

Mr. DAVIS. I withdraw my vote, as I am paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE].

Mr. HUGHINS. I am paired with the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH]. I am informed he would vote "nay" if present, and I therefore vote. I vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 19, nays 38; as follows:

So the Senate refused to adjourn.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question recurs on the motion of the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS] that the Senate take a recess until 8 o'clock this evening.

Mr. ALLEN. I suggest the absence of a quorum and desire the roll to be called.

Mr. COCKRELL. What is the number of Senators shown on the yea-and-nay vote?

Mr. HARRIS. Will the Chair please state the number of votes recorded upon the roll call?

Mr. FAULKNER. The roll call shows the presence of a quorum, and no business has intervened since the roll call.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The point made by the Senator from West Virginia is well taken.

Mr. ALLEN. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Nebraska that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. McLAURIN and Mr. TELLER called for the yeas and nays, and they were ordered.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HILL. Is it too late to raise the point of order whether a motion to proceed to the consideration of executive business has precedence of a motion to take a recess?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state that he has ordered the roll call to proceed, and it can not be interfered with.

Mr. HALE. Nothing can interfere with the roll call.

Mr. HALL. A motion to take a recess has preference over a motion to proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. HALE. Nothing can interrupt the roll call.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The roll call will proceed.

The Secretary resumed the calling of the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. GALLINGER (when his name was called). I will again announce my pair with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS], and transfer it to the senior Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN]. I vote "nay."

Mr. GORDON (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON].

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). Being paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL], I transfer my pair to the junior Senator from New York [Mr. MURPHY] and vote "nay."

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I again announce, and for the day, my pair with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD].

Mr. TURPIE (when his name was called). I inquire if the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS] has voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted, the Chair is advised.

Mr. TURPIE. I withhold my vote, being paired with that Senator.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I desire to state that my colleague [Mr. CAFEERY] is paired with the Senator from Montana [Mr. POWER].

The result was announced—yeas 13, nays 44, as follows:

YEAS 13.

So the Senate refused to proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair desires to state that the Chair would have sustained the point of order raised by the Senator from New York [Mr. HILL] if it had been made before the first name was called upon the roll; but for the reason that the roll call had commenced the Chair could not entertain the point of order. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS] that the Senate take a recess until 8 o'clock.

Mr. KYLE. I move that when the Senate adjourn to-day it adjourn to meet to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

Mr. HARRIS. The motion I made takes precedence of any such motion.

Mr. KYLE. I think it does not.

Mr. HILL. I rise to a point of order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the point of order raised by the Senator from New York.

Mr. HILL. The point of order I raise is that a motion to take a recess takes precedence of a motion to adjourn to a time certain.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. That is correct.

Mr. MANDERSON. That is not the case.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The rule will be read.

Mr. KYLE. I make the point that a motion to adjourn to a day certain takes precedence.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will have the rule read, and that will determine the question.

The Secretary read as follows:

RULE XXII.
PRECEDENCE OF MOTIONS.
When a question is pending no motion shall be received but—
To adjourn,
To adjourn to a day certain, or that when the Senate adjourn, it shall be to day or to-morrow,
To take a recess,
To proceed to the consideration of executive business,
To lay on the table,
To postpone indefinitely.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Under the rule the Chair will first entertain the motion of the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. KYLE] that when the Senate adjourn it be until 10 o'clock to-morrow.

[Putting the question.] The yeas seem to have it.

Mr. McLAURIN. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were not ordered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The yeas have it, and the motion of the Senator from South Dakota is not agreed to.

Mr. ALLEN addressed the Chair.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question recurs upon the motion of the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS] that the Senate take a recess until 8 o'clock this evening.

Mr. HOAR. On that I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President—

Mr. LODGE. I make the point of order that the roll call has begun.

Mr. ALLEN. I addressed the Chair before the roll call commenced.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nebraska states that he addressed the Chair before the first name was called. The Chair will hear the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. ALLEN. I addressed the Chair before the question was put by the Chair for the purpose of moving to amend the motion of the Senator from Tennessee by substituting 10 o'clock for 8 o'clock.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair did not hear the Senator from Nebraska. The roll call has commenced and it must proceed.

Mr. ALLEN. I appeal from the ruling of the Chair.

Mr. HOAR. An appeal can not be made pending a roll call.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The roll call will proceed.

The Secretary resumed the calling of the roll.

Mr. BERRY (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER].

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. GORDON (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON].

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL] to the junior Senator from New York [Mr. MURPHY]. I vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GALLINGER. I announce my pair with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS], which I transfer to the senior Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN]. I vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 43, nays 12, as follows:

YEAS 43.
Bate,	Faulkner,	Jones of Ark.	Proctor,

EVENING SESSION.

The Senate reassembled at 8 o'clock p. m.

MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, the Committee on the District of Columbia, of which I chance to be chairman, with absolute unanimity some time since reported a bill, the passage of which is recommended by the unanimous report of the District Commissioners, and I am informed, with great unanimity by the Board of Trade and the taxpayers, and citizens of the District generally. The bill was referred to the Senate by the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROCTOR], who is chairman of the subcommittee having it in charge. It is Senate bill 2066, and I move that the Senate proceed to its consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The title of the bill will be stated. The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 2066) to provide for continuing the system of trunk sewers in the District of Columbia; to provide for sewerage disposal, to lay out highways, and for other purposes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Tennessee to proceed to the consideration of the bill. Mr. McLAURIN. I suggest the want of a quorum, Mr. President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.

The Secretary called the roll; and the following Senators answered to their names:

Allen.	Faulkner.	McLaurin.	Quay.
Bate.	Gorman.	Morrill.	McLaurin.
Berry.	Harris.	Mitchell of Wis.	Welcott.
Chandler.	Hill.	Palmer.
Cockrell.	Jones of Ark.	Pascu.
Dubois.	Kyle.	Peffer.

Mr. MARTIN. The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE] requested me to state to the Senate that he is feeling very well this evening, and asks for leave of absence.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Twenty-one Senators have answered to their names. No quorum is present.

Mr. HARRIS. I move that the Sergeant-at-Arms be directed to request the attendance of absent Senators.

The motion was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Sergeant-at-Arms will execute the order of the Senate.

After some call Mr. HUNTON, Mr. ROACH, Mr. PROCTOR, Mr. PERRINS, Mr. TURPIE, Mr. PETTIGREW, Mr. HAWLEY, Mr. TELLER, Mr. WHITE, Mr. BUTLER, Mr. VEST, Mr. PLATT, Mr. ALLISON, Mr. ALDRICH, Mr. McMILLAN, Mr. SQUIRE, and Mr. BRICE entered the Chamber and responded to their names.

Mr. HARRIS (at 9 o'clock and 2 minutes p. m.). Mr. President, if I can have the consent of the Senate to say a few words, I should be glad to do so in explanation of the step that I shall now take.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. MARTIN in the Chair). Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Tennessee? The Chair hears none, and the Senator will proceed.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, I asked for this night's session to consider a bill upon the passage of which largely depends the sanitary condition and the health of the people of this city and District, a bill than which no measure is more important to this locality. In view of the fact that we are the legislative department for 300,000 people who have no voice in the Government, and who rely upon the Congress of the United States and upon the Congress only for such legislation as may be necessary for their well being, the protection of their health, their lives, and their property, I regret more than I can find words to express that there is so little interest felt as that an occasion such as this should meet with the experience we are having to-night.

I feel, however, Mr. President, that I have tried to do my duty in the premises; and at this late day of the session, important as the measure that I asked the Senate to come here to consider to-night is, in view of the fact that a majority of the great appropriation bills have not yet been considered in this body, and that we have barely a week within which to consider them and such other matters as will be forced upon our consideration, as we have patiently waited here for one hour and five minutes and still we are ten short of a quorum, I shall not take the responsibility of asking those Senators who have kindly come here from a sense of duty to remain longer to perform their duties and transact the public business of the country.

I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

Mr. KYLE and Mr. PALMER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota. Mr. PALMER. I ask the Senator from Tennessee to withdraw the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair has recognized the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. KYLE. Before the Senator from Tennessee takes his seat and the Senate adjourns I should like to say just one word.

Mr. HARRIS. I hope the Senator will have permission to do so.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Debate is not in order except by unanimous consent. Is there objection to the Senator from South Dakota proceeding?

Mr. CHANDLER. I shall not object to the statement which the Senator from South Dakota is about to make, but I shall object to debate after that unless there is a quorum of the Senate present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair hears no objection, and the Senator from South Dakota will proceed.

Mr. KYLE. Mr. President, I do not wish to place myself in the attitude of seeming to block the progress of the sewer bond bill. I realize the importance of the measure fully as much as does the Senator from Tennessee. I believe we ought to have good sewers in every part of the city of Washington. I realize that there are now many diseases prevalent in various parts of the city in consequence of the fact that we do not have here a proper sewerage system. I believe also that the expense of the work will be less if the two projects are carried on at one time than if done separately.

The only difference between those of us who so believe and the element represented by the Senator from Tennessee is with reference to paying the bills. The Senator wishes by the provisions of his bill to issue bonds. We do not wish to issue bonds. We are willing to pay for the work out of the Treasury, we are willing to issue silver certificates, we are willing to do almost anything if we can bring about an agreement, and as all measures that are put through Congress are the result of compromise in the end, I believe that the opposition should come halfway to us. We are willing to meet them halfway.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, I rise to a question of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Colorado will state his question of order.

Mr. TELLER. There is nobody here to give unanimous consent. It requires the Senate to give unanimous consent.

Mr. PALMER. Mr. President.

Mr. TELLER. I ask the Senator from Illinois to wait a moment. I notice that the Reporter is making a report of this proceeding. He might as well make a report of a town meeting, as nothing can go into the Record except the mere fact that we did not have a quorum and the proceeding taken to get a quorum. I object now to any further talk. We are dropping into a method of doing business that will rise to plague us hereafter.

Mr. CHANDLER. I object.

Mr. TELLER. Nothing can be done without a quorum.

Mr. CHANDLER. I object to the Senator from Colorado proceeding any further.

Mr. PALMER. I ask the Senate to give me twenty minutes for the consideration of private pension bills.

Mr. HARRIS. There is no quorum here and nothing can be done.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair can not entertain the request of the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. HARRIS. Let the question be put on my motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Tennessee that the Senate do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 9 o'clock and 10 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, February 22, 1895, at 11 o'clock a. m.

Mr. McMILLAN. I am directed by the Committee on the District of Columbia to whom was referred the bill (S. 2714) to authorize the extension of the Columbia Railway Company and the bill (H. R. 6816) to amend the charter of the District of Columbia Suburban Railway Company, to report them without recommendation, there being a difference of opinion in the committee in regard to the bills.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bills will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. GALLINGER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2519) granting an increase of pension to Adelaide Morris, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1707) granting a pension to Caroline Reed, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PASCO, from the Committee on Claims, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 725) for the relief of the trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Bethel Springs, Tenn., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. BLACKBURN, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported an amendment concerning sea-duty pay of officers intended to be proposed to the naval appropriation bill, and moved that it be referred to the Committee on Appropriations and be printed; which was agreed to.

He also, from the same committee, reported an amendment intended to be proposed to the sundry civil appropriation bill, the amendment being to insert in line 7, page 46, after the word "manufacture," the words "and may be constructed of steel or other metal or an alloy," and moved that it be printed, and, with the accompanying papers, be referred to the Committee on Appropriations; which was agreed to.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I submit an amendment which it is proposed to be offered to the sundry civil appropriation bill, and I present it by direction of a majority of the Committee on Appropriations. I move that the amendment be printed and that it lie on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. MARTIN, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 7028) to pension Joseph W. Snyder, crippled son of a soldier of the war of 1812, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. POWER, from the Committee on Public Lands, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2714) granting certain lands in the abandoned military reservation at Fort Maginnis, Fergus County, Mont., to the State of Montana for a soldiers' home, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

BERLIN SILVER COMMISSION.

Mr. GORMAN, from the Committee on Printing, reported the following order; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Ordered, That there be printed and bound in paper covers, for the use of the Senate, 3,000 copies of part I, Senate Miscellaneous Document No. 274, being the proposals submitted to the Berlin Silver Commission of 191, of which 19,000 shall be for the use of the Senate document room.

OREGON STATE SOLDIERS' HOME.

Mr. PERKINS. I am directed by the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the joint resolution (H. Res. 327) authorizing the Secretaries of War and of the Navy to donate to the Oregon State Soldiers' Home, at Roseburg, Ore., certain cannon, etc., to report it without amendment. The joint resolution simply provides for the donation of unused cannon under the control of the Secretary of the Navy. I ask that it be now considered.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it be read for information.

The Secretary read the joint resolution; and by unanimous consent the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BATTERY PARK, BURLINGTON, VT.

Mr. HALE. I am directed by the Committee on Naval Affairs, to whom was referred the joint resolution (S. R. 138) authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to deliver unserviceable or condemned cannon to the mayor of Burlington, Vt., to be used in decorating Battery Park, to report it without amendment. I ask that the joint resolution be put on its passage.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WITHERBY & GAFFNEY.

Mr. HILL. There is a claim bill which has passed the other House and which came over to the Senate and has been reported favorably by the Committee on Claims, not granting the claim but simply referring it to the Secretary of War to take testimony. I ask unanimous consent to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 5402) for the relief of Witherby & Gaffney.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Claims, with an amendment to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to examine into the contract entered into by Witherby & Gaffney with the United States on the 9th day of September, A. D. 1881, to tear down and reconstruct the west wing of the officers' quarters at Madison Barracks, Sackett Harbor, New York, and ascertain what was done and to be done, whether any and what contractors were required by the officers or the Government having the right to do so, and if the cost of construction was thereby increased, and the amount of such increase; also, whether there was any failure on the part of the Government to comply with any agreement or contract made with the contractors for the work; also, whether the water whereby the contractors were injured or damaged; and if so, the value of the material lost and of increased labor caused thereby; also, whether there was any loss to the contractors justly chargeable to the Government in account of the removal of the old building mentioned in the contract and the rejection of any materials it contained which the contractors had a right to expect they could use in the construction of the new building; if so, its amount in value of such loss; also, whether for any other reason or because of any other facts the said contractors are equitably entitled to any additional compensation on account of work performed or material furnished in the construction of said barracks. And the Secretary is authorized to take evidence to ascertain the facts in this case, notwithstanding the terms of the contract, and to determine the aggregate examination into the matters aforesaid; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to cause to be due to them when properly certified by the Secretary of War. And a sufficient amount of money is hereby appropriated, out of the funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to pay the said aggregate sum to the said Witherby & Gaffney.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

JAMES STEWART.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. President—

Mr. KYLE. May I ask what is the pending order of business? The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate is proceeding under the call of reports of standing and select committees.

Mr. SHERMAN. I hope the Senator will allow me to have a bill passed for the relief of a soldier, to enable him to sue in the Court of Claims.

Mr. KYLE. Certainly.

Mr. SHERMAN. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 5294) for the relief of James Stewart.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to refer to the Court of Claims the claim of James Stewart, a private, who served in the First Sergeant Company, second and first lieutenant Fourth Artillery in the late war of the rebellion, for a balance of wages earned by him in the suppression of the rebellion and during his entire time of service in the Army, and not paid to him.

Mr. COCKRELL. Has the bill been referred to a committee?

Mr. SHERMAN. Oh, yes; it has been reported from the Committee on Military Affairs. It is a private bill, and it has passed the House and has been reported unanimously by the Committee on Military Affairs of the Senate. The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. DAVIS] submitted the report.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. President—

Mr. HALE. Let me give a notice. I wish to state that after this bill is disposed of I shall ask for the regular order of business and that the morning business shall proceed more slowly. When that is through, if the Senate chooses, I do not go on and consider bills by unanimous consent. I do not object, but it is getting to be too much of a practice here for Senators in the midst of morning business to ask up matters from the Calendar and break into the routine morning business.

Mr. SHERMAN. This bill will take but a moment. There can be no objection to it.

Mr. HALE. I do not object now, but after the bill is passed I shall object to the consideration of any other bill until after the conclusion of the routine morning business.

Mr. DAVIS. For the information of the Senator from Missouri, I will state that this is one of those cases of which Captain Pullman's is the leading one, often passed upon by the Committee on Military Affairs and concerning which an omnibus bill is on the Calendar for many claims directing the Secretary of the Treasury to audit and pay them.

Mr. WHITE. With reference to the remark made by the Senator from Maine concerning the calling up of bills, I wish to say that there are some Senators upon this floor who have bills of local importance and who do not obtrude themselves sufficiently perhaps to get their bills before the Senate. It seems to me that there ought to be some arrangement made by which every Senator shall have a right to call up some bill of local importance. I have a matter here in my hand which affects a few citizens of the county in which I live, and is an omnibus just bill to which no one would object. While I do not intend to offer any objection to the bill now proposed to be passed, I suggest that the Senators having these matters in charge, in deference to the wishes of all others here who do not care to enforce their particular interests to the disadvantage of public business, should consent to some kind of a programme by which there might be fair deal all around.

Mr. HALE. We ought to have a couple of hours some day for just such business and just such consideration as the Senator from California has referred to, but we ought not to break into the routine morning business with it.

Mr. FRYE. I desire to call the attention of my colleague to facts that always during the last five or six days of a session, when the appropriation bills get into conference, there is ample time to pass local bills.

Mr. HALE. That is the time when there will be more space than any other.

Mr. FRYE. We have always had ample time to pass these bills at the last of the session.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

COMMITTEE ON PACIFIC RAILROADS.

Mr. MORGAN, from the Committee on Pacific Railroads, reported the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, and ordered to be printed:

Resolved, That the Committee on Pacific Railroads be instructed, either by full committee or subcommittee or committees as may be appointed by the chairman thereof, with the full power of such committee, to continue during the ensuing recess of Congress the investigation authorized by resolution of October 15, 1893, with the authority and in the manner and to the extent permitted in said resolution, and in pursuance of such investigation such committee or committees are authorized to make a personal visit to the offices of the road and other properties of the road and Pacific railway companies and their branches, and the country through which they pass, or they are authorized to employ such persons as they may deem necessary for the purpose of ascertaining their present status and their ability to pay their indebtedness to the United States and how that indebtedness can be adjusted and paid. In pursuing such investigations said committee or committees are hereby further authorized to sit during the recess or sessions of the Senate, at such times and places as they may deem advisable, and they shall have power to send for persons and papers, to administer the necessary oaths, and to employ a stenographer and such clerical and expert assistance as they may deem necessary. Said committee or committees shall have authority to cause its proceedings and testimony taken to be printed from time to time as they may see fit, and such expense as may result from said investigation shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate, upon vouchers to be approved by the chairman of the committee or committees to audit and control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate. Any subcommittee appointed by the committee or the chairman thereof shall have all the powers of the full committee.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. WOLCOTT submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the sundry civil appropriation bill; which was ordered to be printed and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. FRYE submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the sundry civil appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. HUNTON submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to the naval appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. TELLER submitted an amendment intended to be proposed to the general deficiency appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

DUES TO ARMY OFFICERS.

Mr. DAVIS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (S. 2297) to provide for the restoration, readjustment, settlement, and payment of dues to army officers in certain cases; which was ordered to lie on the table and be printed.

IMPORTANT PERIODS IN THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. KYLE. I submit a concurrent resolution, and ask for its present consideration.

The concurrent resolution was read, as follows:

Whereas James M. McBride is the originator of the centennial memorial entitled "The Administration of the United States Government at the beginning of its second century," also the Columbian state paper entitled "The Administration of the United States Government at the beginning of the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America," to which the seal of the United States, the seal of the Supreme Court, the seal of the Senate, and the seal of the House of Representatives have been affixed by authority of law. Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives lie, and they jointly and severally be authorized and directed to accept for the Senate and House two copies of the said publication entitled Important Periods in the History of the United States.

The Senate, by unanimous consent, proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. KYLE. I propose to state that this resolution does not involve any expense whatever. A year ago, under a resolution of Congress, Mr. McBride was authorized to use the seal of the United States in preparing a chart for the Columbian Exposition, and the same privilege was also granted to him in 1876 in reference to the administration of the Government at that time. He also made a chart of the Declaration of Independence of 1776, thus making a complete chart of the three periods in the administration of the United States. No doubt many Senators will remember having signed their names to this chart. [Exhibiting.] Mr. McBride, out of gratitude for what the Senate has done, wishes to present one of these charts to the Senate and one to the House of Representatives. That is all the resolution contemplates. It was prepared by the Committee on the Library.

Mr. HOAR. I should like to inquire—I do not know whether the Chair would consider himself at liberty to answer a question from the chair, but some Senator may perhaps do so—whether it requires a concurrent resolution of the two bodies to have a book put in the library of the Senate or the House of Representatives. I suppose that it is within the power of the Librarian as a matter of course. If that be so, the passing of this resolution may embarrass everybody hereafter who wants to send a copy of any book which he thinks may be useful and interesting to the library of either House of Congress.

I think the resolution had better go over or be referred to the Committee on the Library.

Mr. COKKRELL. Probably there may be a good reason for this action of the Senate. What there is an amendment here, offered by the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. Kyle], which authorizes the purchase of quite a large number of these charts.

Mr. KYLE. That has nothing at all to do with this question, I will say to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. VOOHREES. Allow me an observation in reply to the Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. HOAR. I suggest that the resolution should go to the Committee on the Library, if there be no objection.

Mr. VOOHREES. This is a perfectly harmless matter.

Mr. HOAR. If the Senator from Kansas, the Committee on the Library is a perfectly harmless committee.

Mr. VOOHREES. That is true, especially since the Senator from Massachusetts is no longer a member of it. [Laughter.] This gentleman has a very handsome chart, and he asks the privilege of presenting two copies of it, one to the Vice-President

Mr. CALL. I hope the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota will not prevail. The bill has been very carefully prepared with a view of providing strict and impartial justice between the different contract schools. If we propose to interfere with it we shall destroy entirely the harmony and propriety of these provisions. The amendment of the Senator from South Dakota would require an increase of appropriation unless we abandon the whole theory of the bill in its adjustment of the schools. I hope that the Senate will vote down the amendment.

Mr. GALLINGER. I have only to say in reference to this matter that I trust the committee amendment was not adopted. We had a declaration yesterday from the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Appropriations that this amendment was not put in the bill at his instance, but in opposition I think to the position he then held. I understand the Senator in charge of the bill to say that he does not approve of it. It certainly the vital part in the whole matter, and if it is stricken out will enunciate the bill and relegate us to precisely the same condition of things that existed one year ago when this contention was inaugurated.

I trust that the amendment of the committee may be rejected, and if necessary I shall ask for the yeas and nays on agreeing to it. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will state to the Senator from New Hampshire that the pending question is on the amendment offered by the Senator from South Dakota, and not the amendment of the committee.

Mr. GALLINGER. I beg the Chair's pardon.

Mr. GORMAN. What is the question before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is to strike out the proviso on page 73 as amended by the committee and insert the language offered by the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. PETTIGREW].

Mr. GORMAN. Let it be read, so that we may see how it stands. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The proviso will first be read as amended, and then the amendment suggested in lieu of it by the Senator from South Dakota.

The Secretary read as follows:

Provided, That the Secretary of the Interior may make contracts, but only with present contract schools, for the education of Indian pupils during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, to an extent not exceeding 50 per cent of the amount expended for the fiscal year 1895.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending question is on the motion of the Senator from South Dakota to strike out the proviso which has just been read and insert what the Secretary will now read.

The Secretary read as follows:

Provided, That $355,000 of said sum of $1,165,350 shall be expended in support of schools with which contracts have heretofore been made: Provided, That the Secretary of the Interior may, at his discretion, expend 20 per cent of said sum of $355,000 in the purchase of the property of such contract schools as may be offered for sale. And in case of such purchase a sum equal to the money expended for such purchase is hereby appropriated for the support of the schools which became Government schools by such purchase.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. What became of the amendment I moved yesterday to perfect the text by striking out the word "may" and inserting the word "shall," in line 2, page 73?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. In line 2, page 73, strike out the word "may," and insert the word "shall," so as to read:

That the Secretary of Interior shall make contracts, etc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That amendment is now in order, it being to perfect the text proposed to be stricken out. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Arkansas.

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question recurs on the adoption of the amendment offered by the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. GORMAN. I inquire of the Chair whether the committee amendment striking out the clause from line 7 to line 11 has been agreed to?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It has been agreed to, the Chair will state.

Mr. LODGE. Not the amendment beginning in line 7?

Mr. GALLINGER. Certainly not.

Mr. TRYE. It was declared agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It was announced agreed to by the Chair, in the absence of objection.

Mr. LODGE. I did not so understand.

Mr. GORMAN. I certainly did not so understand.

Mr. LODGE. The amendment of the committee in line 3 was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will state that both amendments were agreed to.

Mr. LODGE. I certainly did not understand it, because I myself have an amendment pending to that clause.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The matter can be easily set straight. It was so declared by the Chair in the absence of objection while the attention of the Senator from Massachusetts was probably withdrawn; but by unanimous consent the vote will be regarded as reconsidered, and that will be declared to be the pending amendment.

Mr. LODGE. I understood the Chair to hold that before the committee amendment to strike out that clause could be put it was necessary to put the question on the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is entirely mistaken. Perhaps the Chair was not sufficiently clear in his statement. The statement of the Chair was that the text must first be acted upon and perfected before a motion to strike out is in order.

Mr. LODGE. Do I now understand the Chair to state that the question is on the committee amendment to strike out the clause beginning in line 7?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The text has been perfected by two amendments, one by inserting the words "but only with present contract schools," in the third line, and the other by substituting "shall" for "may" in line 2. The pending amendment is to strike out from line 7 to line 11, beginning with "and" and ending with "cease."

Mr. LODGE. On that amendment I ask for the yeas and nays. The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. COCKRELL. What is the question? Let us understand it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending amendment of the committee will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After the words "eighteen hundred and ninety-five," in line 7, page 73, strike out:

And each succeeding year he shall proportionately so reduce the amount thus used that at the end of five years from the date on which this act goes into effect all contracts for such education shall cease.

Mr. GORMAN. Mr. President, I trust the amendment of the Committee on Appropriations will be agreed to. The bill as it comes from the House is a radical change in the entire system, and attempts on an appropriation bill to determine what we shall do for the next five years. That is bad in principle in any case. The Committee on Appropriations thought we ought to deal only with the next fiscal year, and we have tried to eliminate everything from the bill that would bind the Government to what it shall do in the next five years in the matter of the education of Indian children.

I trust the Senate will sustain the Committee on Appropriations in this amendment, and let the next Congress deal with the fiscal year thereafter. Nobody can tell to-day how this new system will operate, what injustice may be done concerning investments which may have been made in buildings, or the effect upon the schools already in existence. I confess that I do not know that the way these schools have been conducted all over the country has been a very great success, beginning with the highest school and going down to the lowest; but it seemed to the committee, and it seems to me, that in fairness to everybody, to the people who are interested in this work, to the Indians themselves, and to the Government, we ought to deal with the subject for only one year. In the next Congress we shall have had nearly a year of the operation of the system that we are inaugurating in this bill, and we shall have all the facts before us. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs and the people who are engaged in the education of the Indians will be able then to give us further light on the matter, and we can deal with the subject intelligently. It is possible that we may be unable to make a greater reduction, and that such an adjustment of this matter can be had as to enable the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs to present a scheme which can be satisfactorily introduced. At all events, it is bad policy in a matter of this sort that Congress should without due consideration change the whole system for five years in advance. It is unwise.

If this provision had been proposed in the Senate of the United States as an amendment it would have been out of order. It has no place and no right in this bill under the rules of any parliamentary body that I know of. But like some other provisions, it has come to us and we have attempted to correct it, and to correct it without running counter to the sentiment which unfortunately has crept out in this whole matter, and which ought not to be permitted to influence the minds of anyone here. But I do not think we can afford to do simple justice and confine the reduction to one year. I trust the Senator from Massachusetts, who I know to be as much interested in the matter of Indian education as any Senator here, will see the justice and the propriety of doing what the Committee on Appropriations have attempted to do.

Mr. PLATT. Mr. President, much that the Senator from Maryland has said with reference to attempting to control future Congresses in legislation is correct and true, but we have a very peculiar state of affairs here. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, there was spent for contract schools $512,435. In last year's appropriation act a clause was inserted declaring it to be the policy of the Government to change the contract schools to Government schools as rapidly as possible. Yet with that clause in the appropriation act there was spent between June 30, 1893, and June 30, 1894, I understand, an increased amount of money, $515,000, for the contract schools. So instead of the amount having been decreased it has been increased during the past year, although Congress has declared it to be the policy of the Government to have a reduction.

Mr. GALLINGER. The Senator is doubtless right on that point, but still we have submitted the matter to the Secretary of the Interior for his examination and report, and he reports that hereafter we ought to decrease the amount 20 per cent.

While I am on my feet I wish to say a single word further. I listened to the argument of the Senator from Maryland in favor of the committee amendment. I do not agree at all with him. I know of no reason why we may not in a statute, and especially in an appropriation act, where we declare all sorts of things, make a declaration looking to the future as well as to the present. If the bill as it comes from the House of Representatives is enacted into law and works a hardship we can take care of that in the next appropriation bill, where, as my colleague has frequently said, we enact all sorts of legislation.

I was somewhat surprised to hear the Senator from Maryland suggest that if this provision had been offered as an amendment in the Senate it would have been out of order. Mr. President, almost one-half of the bill is out of order to-day, but we are passing upon it. We are not raising the point of order on these various amendments. Hence, that suggestion does not carry any weight. I think we have a clear and plain duty to perform in this matter, and that is to reject the amendment and to pass the bill, so far as this provision is concerned, precisely as it came from the House of Representatives.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, I quite understand, as the Senator from Maryland has pointed out and as I have already said in this debate, that one Congress can not bind another. That is perfectly obvious. But these schools are the schools known as sectarian denominational schools. I believe, and I think that it is the general belief of the American people, that the public money ought not to be appropriated for sectarian purposes or for sectarian schools. I have held that view ever since I have served in Congress. Now, the Secretary of the Interior has recommended their abolition and stated that it can be done in five years by a gradual reduction.

It seems to me it might be done in a much shorter time; but it is admitted on all hands that it is desirable to get rid of these schools. If we are going to do it, I see no objection to Congress making a declaration of policy. On the contrary, I think it is of great importance that Congress should so declare the policy of the Government in regard to these schools. There can be no surprise, no complaint of unfairness. It can be known that they are to be removed in the course of the next three or five years. Undoubtedly the next Congress will not be bound by it, and equally undoubtedly the next Congress will give due weight to the action of the present Congress.

To me, Mr. President, this is far the most important provision in the pending appropriation bill, and I sincerely hope that the amendment of the committee to strike out will fail.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The roll call will proceed on agreeing to the amendment of the committee on Appropriations. The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. RANSOM (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALLE].

Mr. VEST (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN]; otherwise I should vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. Has the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. VILAS] voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin has not voted.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I am paired with that Senator, and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. McMILLAN (after having voted in the negative). I inquire if the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD] has voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana has not voted.

Mr. McMILLAN. Then I withdraw my vote, as I am paired with that Senator.

Mr. BURROWS (after having voted in the negative). I am paired with the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON], but I transfer that pair to the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDEN] and will let my vote stand.

Mr. DUBOIS. I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. WHITE (after having voted in the affirmative). The Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUR] and I are paired. I voted inadvertently, and withdraw my vote.

Mr. GALLINGER (after having voted in the negative). I inquire whether the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] has voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The junior Senator from Texas has not voted.

Mr. GALLINGER. I notice he is in his seat, and therefore will allow my vote to stand.

Mr. HARRIS. I inquire if the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MERRILL] recorded as voting?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont is not recorded.

Mr. HARRIS. I suggest to the Senator from New Hampshire that we transfer our respective pairs.

Mr. GALLINGER. It is not necessary, inasmuch as my pair is present.

Mr. HARRIS. Very well. Then, I withdraw my vote, and announce my pair with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MERRILL].

The PRESIDING OFFICER (when Mr. PASCO's name was called). The present occupant of the chair is paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PITTCREW].

The result was announced—yeas 31, nays 23; as follows:

So the amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question recurs on the amendment offered by the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. PETTIGREW].

Mr. PETTIGREW. I should like to have the amendment read. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out [the proviso] beginning on page 73, line 2, and insert:

Provided, That $15,000 of said sum of $1,164,350 shall be expended in support of schools with which contracts have heretofore been made: Provided further, That the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, expend 20 per cent of said sum of $15,000 in the purchase of the property of such contract schools as may be offered for sale, and in case of such purchase a sum equal to the money expended for such purpose is hereby appropriated for the support of the schools which become Government schools by such purchase.

Mr. GORMAN. I understand it was agreed by unanimous consent that we were first to go through with the committee amendments, and then that amendments were to be submitted by individual Senators. I make that point now. I will suggest to the Senator that this is not the time to offer his amendment; it can be offered later on.

Mr. CALL. I desire to say that I made that point; I think it is a correct point; but the Vice-President, then in the chair, ruled that it was an amendment to the committee amendment, and not to the text of the bill, and therefore was in order. I should be very glad that decision could be reversed. In justice to myself I feel that I should make this statement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will state that when the Vice-President occupied the chair that point was raised and it was determined that the amendment was in order, and it was the pending amendment when the present occupant took the chair. The present occupant is not disposed to overrule the action of the Vice-President, and decides the amendment to be in order. The question is on the amendment.

Mr. GORMAN. Very well.

Mr. CHANDLER. Do I understand that the Presiding Officer now holds the amendment to be in order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment was declared to be in order when the Vice-President was in the chair.

Mr. CHANDLER. As the amendment is to be voted on, I should like to have it again read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be again read.

The Secretary read the amendment proposed by Mr. PETTIGREW. Mr. LODGE. I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. HARRIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL].

Mr. MITCHELL of Wisconsin (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY], and in his absence withhold my vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (when Mr. PASCO's name was called). The present occupant of the chair is paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD].

Mr. WILSON of Iowa (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON], and therefore withhold my vote.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BRICE. I am paired with the junior Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT].

Mr. BURROWS (after having voted in the negative). I wish to withdraw my vote, and announce my pair with the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON].

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I am paired with the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. VILAS], and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. GALLINGER (after having voted in the negative). I inquire if the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] has voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The junior Senator from Texas has not voted.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am paired with that Senator, but I will transfer that pair to the senior Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN] and allow my vote to stand.

Mr. MCPHERSON. I inquire if the Senator from Delaware [Mr. HIGGINS] has voted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware has not voted.

Mr. MCPHERSON. Then I withhold my vote, as I am paired with that Senator.

Mr. HARRIS. In order to make a quorum I will record my vote, notwithstanding my pair with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL], and vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 13, nays 33; as follows:

YEAS—13.

Caffery,	Hansbrough,	Perkins,	Stewart.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will state to the Senator from South Dakota that unanimous consent was given that the committee amendments should first be considered. The Senator will please withhold his amendment until the committee amendments have been acted upon.

Mr. PETTIGREW. Very well, I will withhold the amendment.

Mr. LODGE. I gave notice of an amendment which I intended to offer at this time. It was an amendment making the time for the abolition of these schools three years, but as the Senate has just declined to abolish them in five years, it is obviously quite useless for me to press an amendment declaring it to be the policy to abolish them in three years. So I do not press a vote upon it, but will withdraw the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is withdrawn. The reading of the bill will proceed.

The reading of the bill was resumed. The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 73, line 18, before the word "dollars," to increase the total from "$1,184,350" to "$1,273,440."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 73, line 19, after the word "of," to strike out "two hundred and fifty" and insert "three hundred;" in line 23, before the word "dollars," to strike out "forty-one thousand seven hundred and fifty" and insert "fifty thousand and one hundred;" and, on page 74, line 3, before the word "dollars," to strike out "forty-four thousand seven hundred and fifty" and insert "fifty-three thousand one hundred;" so as to make the clause read:

For support and education of 300 Indian pupils at Albuquerque, N. Mex., at $167 per annum for each pupil, $50,000; for pay of superintendent of said school, $1,500; for general repairs and improvements, $1,500; in all, $53,100.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 74, line 12, after the word "pupil," to strike out "$80,000;" in line 13, after the word "school," to strike out "$5,000;" and in line 15, before the word "thousand," to strike out "$3,000; in all, ninety-eight," and insert "one hundred and five;" so as to make the clause read:

For support of Indian industrial school at Carlisle, Pa., not exceeding $167 for each pupil; for transportation of pupils to and from said school, for general repairs and improvements, $165,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 74, line 21, before the word "hundred," to strike out "two" and insert "five;" and in line 22, after the word "thousand," to insert "three hundred;" so as to make the clause read:

For support and education of 125 Indian pupils, at $167 per annum each, at the Indian school at Carson City, Nev., $20,875; for pay of superintendent at said school, $1,500; for general repairs and improvements, $1,000; in all, $23,375.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 75, line 10, after the word "repairs," to insert "and;" in the same line, after the word "improvements," to strike out "and," and insert "one thousand dollars; for;" and in line 14, before the word "hundred," to strike out "twenty-seven thousand two" and insert "twenty-eight thousand five;" so as to make the clause read:

For support and education of 150 Indian pupils at Plaudreux, S. Dak., at $167 per annum each, $25,050; for general repairs and improvements, $1,000; for water supply, $1,000; for pay of superintendent of said school, $1,500; in all, $28,550.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 75, after line 21, to insert: That any unexpended balance of the amount appropriated for buildings and repairs of buildings for Fort Shaw Reservation and Indian Industrial School, Montana, for the fiscal year 1895, not needed for that purpose, may be used for purchase of seed, agricultural implements, irrigation, and for water and sewer system for said school, and shall be available during the fiscal year 1896.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 76, line 6, after the word "support," to insert "and education;" in line 5, before the word "Indian," to strike out "two hundred and forty" and insert "three hundred;" in line 9, before the word "dollars," to strike out "forty thousand and eighty" and insert "fifty thousand one hundred;" and in line 12, before the word "dollars," to strike out "forty-two thousand five hundred and eighty" and insert "fifty-two thousand six hundred;" so as to make the clause read:

For support and education of 300 Indian pupils, at $167 per annum each, at Indian school, Fort Totten, N. Dak., $50,100; for pay of superintendent at said school, $1,500; for general repairs and improvements, $1,000; in all, $52,600.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 76, line 14, before the word "Indian," to strike out "and fifty;" in line 17, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty-eight thousand four hundred and fifty" and insert "fifty thousand one hundred;" and in line 20, before the word "dollars," to strike out "sixty thousand nine hundred and fifty" and insert "fifty-two thousand six hundred;" so as to make the clause read:

For support and education of 150 Indian pupils at the Indian school, Glacier, Mont., at $167 per annum each, $25,050; for general repairs and improvements, $1,000; for pay of superintendent of said school, $1,500; in all, $27,550.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 77, line 1, after the word "dollars," to insert "for erection of hospital, $1,500; and in line 2, after the word "all," to strike out "twenty-seven thousand five hundred" and insert "twenty-nine thousand;" so as to make the clause read:

For support and education of 150 Indian pupils at the Indian school at Grand Junction, Colo., at $167 per annum each, $25,050; for pay of superintendent at said school, $1,500; for general repairs and improvements, $1,000; for erection of hospital, $1,500; in all, $29,050.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair understands that the two clauses for the support and education of Indian pupils at the school at Hampton, Va., and at the Lincoln Institution in Philadelphia, on page 77, extending from line 4 to line 10, have already been acted upon by the Senate. In all cases the agent making such payment shall be held to the United States in double the amount to be disbursed, until good and sufficient security, to be approved by the Secretary, is furnished for the faithful performance of his duty. All such payments to be made by the tribes and reservations as the Secretary may prescribe.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I propose to suggest an amendment to the committee amendment. In lines 14 and 15 I move that the words "not to exceed $200 per month when actually employed" be stricken out. The purpose of conferring on the Secretary of the Interior the power of employing an agent to pay out these

There is a Senator on this floor who has a photograph, taken by one of those story-telling kodaks, of a man who was shot in the same way. He was condemned to death, and the sheriff gave the order of shooting that man to his worst mortal enemy. He took this gun and deliberately shot the condemned man on the wrong side of his body. Instead of shooting him through the heart, he shot him on the other side, so as to wound him. When the poor creature had been shot, though not yet dead, they laid him upon the ground, sat upon his chest, put their fingers around his throat, and choked him to death. There is the kodak picture telling the story. A Senator on this floor has a photograph of the same kind, and of the barbarous manner in which they execute the decrees of what they call their courts. Any man is convicted against whom the judge and his friends combine, and any man is acquitted who will put up money enough to make his escape or who has power enough in the community to threaten these men with being laylaid and shot.

There is not only no justice in that country, but there is scarcely a mockery or pretense of justice. I have papers lying before me now which, if it is requisite, I will read to show that at the time when we commenced distributing the money amongst the Cherokee Indians, for instance, for the land strip we bought of them, the most horrible and brutal robberies and murders were carried on throughout the Territory. There was scarcely a single store in the Cherokee Nation which was not robbed. A great many of the very best citizens in the country were met upon the highway and robbed. On the day of the distribution of the money, at a place within 2 miles of the telegraph and the capital of the Cherokee Nation, an Indian came riding down the road. He found a couple of commercial drummers in a wagon of some kind. He shot one and arrested them both, and robbed them. Going on down the road he found a very respectable young man with his mother in a wagon. His mother was a woman very much beloved in the country. In his effort to shoot the young man the Indian killed the old lady in the wagon. The young man took up his gun, and killed the Indian and his horse.

Such things go on there in the presence of the courts and judges, who have not the will or the power, either, to administer justice. Such a mockery of justice exposes human life to greater danger than if there were no courts in the Territory. Then men would not rely upon the courts. They would rely upon the power of self-defense, and these murderers and marauders who go about the day and at all hours of the night, on the railroad trains and everything else, might become afraid to do such things in the event that they knew men would go armed for them and would not rely upon the courts for their protection.

In an effort to relieve this situation we established two courts, one at Fort Smith and the other at Paris, and also a court of limited jurisdiction in the Territory. Whoever speaks of those courts, and the testimony abounds in every investigation ever made in that country, say it is an enormous cruelty upon the people. The marshals go out with their deputies, having a hundred deputies at their command to send to different parts of the country. They will pick up this man or that man or the other man to take down to court. There may be a large number of witnesses to go. The marshal makes a slow and circuitous movement through the country with his caravan, picking up prisoners and witnesses, camping at that place and the other, and after awhile he wheels into Fort Smith with a brigade of people following him. When he comes to make up his accounts he has so much for catching a man, so much for the night's entertainment in camp, so much travel per mile. He makes his money by thus going around among the people and collecting prisoners and witnesses and carrying them to court from various distances, anywhere from 10 to 200 miles. I am informed that one of them sent a man for his personal fees in a single year which amounted to $25,000.

The expenses of the courts down there have simply been enormous. There is no occasion for carrying those people outside of the Indian Territory to get juries no better than they can find inside and judges who are no better. There is no reason for removing justice from the door of the culprit because it is worth to take him into a strange land and punish him. If justice is worth anything it is because it seats itself where it is within easy reach of the appeal of the innocent and where the guilty will feel that there is present in the community a power and an instrumentality that is not to be set aside.

Justice does not protect people by running off from them a hundred or two hundred miles to hold its court in some other country or some other place. The United States Government can not protect the people in that kind of a way, no matter what the expense may be, even what the economy might be, if there is any economy about it. It would be a failure of justice, because the influence and effect of justice is not felt among the people. Under such circumstances the whole advantage of our judicial system is lost.

I obtained from the Department of Justice a statement of the expenses of these two courts. The expense of the district court in western Arkansas for the fiscal year 1894 was $184,704.11 in the Indian Territory $184,000.00, in eastern Texas $195,558.49, making $564,192.20. That amount is bestowed upon the trial of a comparatively small number of cases. The convictions in one court were 80, in another perhaps a little over a hundred, but all together the convictions, most of them, I think, for retailing whisky and offenses of that kind, would not amount perhaps to more than three or four hundred out of a population which Mr. Dawes states is 100,000. The census returns show differently. I will put before the Senate the correct statement from the census of 1890. It shows that the total population of all races in the Five Civilized Tribes was 178,667. I am reminded by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES] that the number has increased considerably since that time. Another gentleman informs me that it has almost doubled. So perhaps Mr. Dawes's figures giving them a population of 250,000 are correct.

Now, I wish to call attention to another matter. In the Cherokee country there were in 1890 56,309 people, but the per cent of Indians was 39.10. In the Seminole country there were 2,730, and the per cent of Indians was 64.29. But in the computation of the Indians they do not confine themselves to full bloods. They take all who belong to the tribe, all the citizens of the tribe, and there are a great many white men who are counted Indians because they are citizens of the tribe. But taking it upon the figures of the census, the majority of white people in that country over Indians was 68,704. For the sake of taking care of 39 per cent of the population of the Cherokees, 9 per cent of the population of the Chickasaws, and 25 per cent of the population of the Choctaws, shall we go to all that expense and have this elaborate system of judicial procedure by which whole men are taken up and carried out of the Territory for trial?

There is not a paper, I think, in the whole Five Civilized Tribes, and in so many newspapers there, which does not advocate the abandonment of those outside courts and the creation of the court that is proposed in the amendment of the Committee on Indian Affairs which I have had the honor to present and to try to defend. I do not know that I could justify myself in detaining the Senate by a more protracted statement of the necessities of this legislation than that which I have made. There is one point, however, in regard to the Cherokee country and its inability to do justice, to call attention to.

The Cherokee Indians have presented the strongest objections that have been made here upon the question of the obligation we are under to protect them in their treaty rights. I wish now to show another engagement which we made with those people and the engagement which they insist is stronger than the one we made with the Chickasaws and the Choctaws. It is really not so strong in its language, and it is given with its spirit, and its circumstances it is not so strong as its import. What does it mean? I invite the attention of Senators, who have any doubt or difficulty at all about this case, to article 35.

Mr. CHANDLER. Will the Senator from Alabama allow me to suggest in relation to the amendment which he proposes to the appropriation bill and to which he invites the attention of the members of the Senate, whether there should not be some number of the majority of the Committee on Appropriations on the floor to be convinced by the Senator that the amendment ought to go on the bill?

Mr. MORGAN. I presume they are entirely convinced anyway.

Mr. CHANDLER. I understood the amendment has not yet received the approbation of the Committee on Appropriations, and it seems to me they ought to hear the remarks of the Senator from Alabama.

Mr. MORGAN. It has not received the disapprobation of that committee by any means.

I wish to read article 35. I shall be very glad if Senators will give me their attention for just a moment.

The United States guarantee to the people of the Cherokee Nation the quiet and peaceable possession of their country and protection against domestic feuds and insurrections, and against Appropriations on the floor to be convinced by the Senator that the amendment ought to go on the bill?

If there is any one guarantee needed in that country at this time it is for the protection of one Indian against another, for the Territory is in a condition of feud, and vendetta prevails there. There have been a great number of Indians killed there recently in personal feuds among themselves. I am not exaggerating when I say hundreds of Indians have been killed there recently in feuds among themselves with impunity. The responsibility is to the law, or any dread of it is an all-around weakness possessed by their own courts, and up to this time we have not interfered with any part of the United States position to interfere where one Indian attacks another. But there is no promise to them in the treaty that we will protect them against feud.

What is a feud? Not a political turmoil. It is a personal controversy; it is that which breeds vendetta—private malice and private anger, sometimes running into families and getting up combinations of that kind, one family against another. But the prevalence of this lawlessness and destruction of human life is so great we can well call it a feud, and many, yes, a great number of those people, are looking to-day with extreme anxiety for the people of the United States to come there and suppress those feuds and establish laws in that land.

Now, having stated these points, I will ask the Secretary to read the amendment, in order that the Senate may get in its possession the precise programme that is presented. Then I may submit a few remarks upon the provisions of the amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Alabama will be read.

The SECRETARY. Insert the following

Coke,	Kyle,

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Fifty-two Senators have answered to their names. A quorum is present.

Mr. MORGAN. I ask unanimous consent that I may withdraw the demand for the yeas and nays, and let the decision of the Chair on the question stand as the judgment of the Senate.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. WOLCOTT. What is the request? We could not hear it.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Alabama asks unanimous consent that he be permitted to withdraw the demand for the yeas and nays, and that the decision of the Chair on the viva voce vote of the Senate, that the amendment of the Senator from Arkansas is not in order, stand as the judgment of the Senate.

Mr. MILLS. I now move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. CALL. I ask unanimous consent that further debate on this bill may be deferred under the five-minute rule, and that we agree to take the final vote upon the bill to-day.

Mr. KYLE. I shall have to object to that.

Mr. CALL. Then I will say at 6 o'clock this evening.

Mr. MILLS. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will first submit the request of the Senator from Florida to the Senate. Is there objection to the request?

Mr. PETTIGREW. Mr. President—

Mr. CALL. I ask the Senate to allow me, by unanimous consent, to say a single word.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CALL. If this bill is not finished to-day or early to-morrow the appropriation bills will not be concluded at this session. I ask that the vote may be taken at 2 o'clock to-morrow.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. PETTIGREW. I shall object to the request of the Senator from Florida, in the first place, for the reason that there are a large number of amendments to this bill which I desire to offer. I have made no opposition to the consideration of the bill for the purpose of delay, but this is the most important appropriation bill which comes before Congress, so far as my people are concerned. There are nearly 30,000 Indians in my State, and there are many amendments to be still considered which interest the people of my State which can not be disposed of under the five-minute rule. Further than that—

Mr. MILLS. What has become of my motion to proceed to the consideration of executive business, Mr. President?

Mr. PETTIGREW. I have made no objection to the disposition of the appropriation bills, but I understand—

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair must state that debate is not in order, objection being interposed. The Chair entertains the motion of the Senator from Texas to proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I hope the Senate will give unanimous consent to me to make a very brief statement of not more than a minute.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from South Dakota?

Mr. MILLS. What is the request?

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. That he be permitted to make a statement.

Mr. PETTIGREW. That I be permitted to finish my sentence. I shall only take a moment.

I wish to state further, it is well understood in this Chamber that at 3 o'clock to-morrow an effort is to be made to get up the railroad pooling bill and to sit it out, to hold a session to-morrow evening and on Sunday. So long as such a notion is entertained, I want to say emphatically that when the legitimate consideration of this bill is disposed of, for my part I shall proceed to interpose delay in every way possible, and I want it distinctly understood that the railroad pooling bill, if I am unable to prevent it, will not become a law at this session of Congress, much less will it be considered on Sunday.

Mr. MILLS. I object to further debate.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection to further debate.

Mr. CALL. I ask the Senator from Texas to allow me to make a request for unanimous consent that the vote may be taken upon the pending appropriation bill to-morrow before the Senate adjourns.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Florida?

Mr. ALLISON. Will the Chair state the request?

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Florida asks unanimous consent that the vote may be taken upon the pending bill to-morrow—at what hour?

Mr. CALL. I will say at 4 o'clock to-morrow.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. PETTIGREW and others. I object.

Mr. GORMAN. If I may be permitted, I ask that we may have a unanimous consent agreement that the vote on the pending appropriation bill shall be taken before the Senate adjourns to-morrow.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Maryland?

Mr. HARRIS. Why not fix the hour at, say, 3 o'clock?

Mr. FRYE. You can not do that.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair hears no objection.

Mr. MILLS. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. CHANDLER. I object, Mr. President.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair did not hear the Senator Mr. CHANDLER. To the request that the bill be finished to-morrow I object.

ple of Philadelphia and the river towns on the Delaware River to the head of the western Major Raymond, and the question to be determined is whether or not the report of Major Raymond was ill-considered and ill-conducted. They ask for a board of review from the War Department. Traversing the finding of Major Raymond, they ask for a determination whether or not their statement as contained in the pamphlet read by the Senator from Maine or the report of an officer of the Engineer Corps is correct, so that Major Raymond's statement, for the purpose of this discussion, goes as waste paper.

In April, 1894, the Senate entertained, on report from the Committee on Commerce, two bills for the construction of bridges between the Pennsylvania and New Jersey sides of the Delaware River at or about the city of Philadelphia. One was limited to the cities of Camden and Philadelphia in its termini, the exact location to be determined by the Secretary of War. The other was located also with one terminus on the east shore of the city of Philadelphia and one on the western shore, a little north of the city of Camden.

The first bill was reported here April 12, as I have said, by the Senator from Missouri. It provided for an elevation of 150 feet. Two weeks afterwards the other bridge bill was reported, providing for an elevation of only 40 feet. The first bill was not considered, I presume, because the requisite capital did not appear to back it. The second was supported by a powerful corporation, a corporation which had been very beneficent in its operations in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and which was abundantly able to carry out the design of Congress. That bill was passed. It went to the Committee on Commerce on the 26th of April, and it went to the War Department the same day; it went from there to Major Raymond, at Philadelphia, on the next day, and on the evening of that day his report was in the mail on its return path to the War Department—the report the Senator from Maine has read here. Major Raymond displayed great acumen and energy. His investigation was not protracted. Of course the distinguished Secretary of War acted promptly and properly upon the report of his officer, the fairness of which is disputed. The bill was finally passed.

The bill which passed the Senate, as Senators will remember, was one providing absolutely for an elevation of 40 feet only. It was thought at that time—I know not how the impression came—that the board of port wardens of the city of Philadelphia entertained no jurisdiction over the construction of the bridge. Applications were made to them for an endorsement of the plans, and the business people of Philadelphia prepared to go there for a hearing. On the 8th of January last the city solicitor, a distinguished member of the bar, who has since been elevated by a great majority to the office of chief magistrate of that city, delivered an opinion that the board of port wardens of Philadelphia had no jurisdiction in the case. His opinion was undoubtedly correct.

The railroad company at once proceeded to the construction of the bridge, and the Trades League and the business people of Pennsylvania commenced a movement in the direction of this Senate. Meanwhile, the corporation had broken ground for the construction of the approaches to the bridge, and that was all. There was nothing done toward the erection of the bridge proper. Of course, the work was practically abandoned during the late severe weather, but they have employed a number of men—I know not how many—up to within three or four weeks past. There is no question about that.

I introduced, at the request of a number of business organizations, and the request of gentlemen of the very highest respectability, of Mr. John H. Converse, the vice-president of the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia, and the president, I think, of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, who send their locomotives all over the world; also of the gentlemen of the Trades League, the Produce Exchange, and others, the joint resolution which is now the subject of controversy. It provides merely that the business people located along the Delaware River shall have a day in court on this question, which they have lost, not entirely, but largely. I think, because of the confusion in the public mind in Philadelphia between the two bridge bills which were reported to the Senate in April, 1894, and partly from their impression that the board of port wardens of the city of Philadelphia would be able to control the elevation of this bridge. All that is asked of the Senate is that these persons shall be heard. They traverse, as I said, the entire finding of Major Raymond, which the Senator from Maine has read in support of his opposition and upon which he absolutely relies. The question to be tried out, which we ask to have tried out, is this: Is the committee's report true or not?

The joint resolution was passed without opposition. The Senator from New Jersey [Mr. McPHERSON] moved the next day after its passage to reconsider it, stating that he would withdraw his motion and dispose of the question on the next day; but it has been suspended here since. The Secretary of War having exhausted his original authority, having approved the original plan of the bridge, a joint resolution in the nature of a law is required to give him power to reopen the question and to give these people a hearing, and unless it is passed, and passed to-day, it will very certainly not become a law during this Congress. The situation is analogous to that presented in relation to the legislation required the other day by the proclamation of the President in relation to the question of lights and signals at sea.

I believe, Mr. President, this is about all I have to say. I wish to have read what these gentlemen have stated, and I will state who they are. I will then send the papers to the Secretary's desk, and ask to have read first the preamble and resolutions of the Trades League of Philadelphia, of which the Senator from Maine and Major Raymond have spoken somewhat contemptuously. That league is composed of 1,700 business firms, and is one of the strongest business organizations in the world. I also ask to have read the resolutions of the Manufacturers' Club—all Republicans, at least, are fully acquainted with that organization—which is composed of 700 business firms; the Commercial Exchange of Philadelphia, which is composed of 400; the Philadelphia Produce Exchange, of 150 business firms, and the Hardware Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, composed of 75 business firms. In addition to those I have from the State of New Jersey resolutions of the Board of Trade of the city of Trenton, the capital city of New Jersey; the city of Burlington, practically at the head of tide-water navigation; the resolutions of the common council of the city of Beverly, N. J., a little below, and the preambles and resolutions passed by the boroughs of Liverton and Palmira, N. J., and Bristol, Pa.

I send these memorials and statements to the Secretary's desk to be read, and after they have been read I shall move to lay the memorial of the Senator from New Jersey on the table.

Mr. MCPHERSON. I wish to say only a word by way of addition to what I said yesterday.

I hold in my hand some resolutions passed by commercial organizations, clubs, etc., of the city of Philadelphia and of towns and cities along the Delaware River in the State of New Jersey. This is the first time that my attention has been called to this matter. In fact, it is the first time that any resolutions or notice of any action taken by any New Jersey cities have been placed in my hands.

It seems that the Trenton Board of Trade on May 24, 1894, addressed a protest to the Secretary of War, and also another, like protest on January 10, 1895. Nowhere does it appear that these protests were sent to Senators in this body, but they were forwarded to the Secretary of War, and therefore never came to my attention or into my hands. I remember, however, that I was absent from the Senate by reason of illness, and if sent to me they escaped my attention. There is one by the mayor and city council of Burlington, N. J., one by the common council of Beverly, N. J., one by the mayor and council of the borough of Liverton, N. J., one by the township committee of the township of Palmira, N. J., and one from the burgess and council of the borough of Bristol, Pa., none of which have I seen before this morning.

The statement made by the Board of Trade of the city of Trenton is as to the insufficiency of the elevation of the bridge; that it might prove a serious obstacle to navigation, particularly if the proposed ship canal across New Jersey should become an accomplished fact.

Mr. President, if I had seen these protests on the part of the people of New Jersey, I certainly should have entered no motion to reconsider a vote by which the joint resolution of the Senator from Pennsylvania was passed; but, as I say, these papers were directed to the Secretary of War, and have only now come into my hands.

But the argument of the Board of Trade of the city of Trenton is not a very good one as they make it, because there is another bridge at Arthur Kill, which will become a part of this great waterway. The Congress of the United States passed an act in 1886 authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Arthur Kill, which, as I say, must become a part of this great ship canal. The span opening there is less than that of the proposed bridge on the Delaware; the height of the bridge is the same, while the channel spans are even narrower. So that in reality that bridge will have to be changed also to give any additional advantage to the proposed canal.

Mr. President, if it be true that the commerce of the Delaware River at this point is of sufficient importance that it is necessary that a higher bridge should be constructed there, then it nowhere appears in any of the statistics of the commerce of the Delaware. The commerce of the Arthur Kill is ten times greater than that of the Delaware River at this particular point. I read over the reports last night, which had been sent to me by some gentlemen in Pennsylvania, which go to show that above a certain point in the river, where there are shoals which may easily be dredged out, the depth of the water is from 25 to 30 feet, and that when will show that great and irreparable injury to commercial and other interests of magnitude would be done by the erection of the bridge in accordance with the plans heretofore approved by the War Department.

No action upon the part of the commercial interests involved in the preservation from hurt of this natural and national highway has heretofore been taken on account of the confidence of the community that all the interests thus concerned would be protected by the judicious action of the board of wardens of the port of Philadelphia or by the board of harbor commissioners. But you will perceive upon examination of the report made by the War Department to the wardens, under date of January 8, 1895, that the board has discovered, to the surprise of the community, that it has been declared to have no jurisdiction over the matter, and that the subject of the report, from the said board, were adopted on the 10th instant, only two days after the report of the board of wardens (b). It has thus been determined that all the interests thus concerned are great wrong upon the large body of American citizens whose right to free and unobstructed use of Delaware River is threatened with restriction and destruction, absolutely without any need for such injury, by the contemplated action of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company.

Much has been said of late, in the public prints and elsewhere, of the necessity that the great natural highways, the rivers, shall not be obstructed by bridges. The report, for example, upon the proposed North River bridge has made clear the fact that the attempt of a private corporation to invade the river to injure an important natural channel of commerce belonging, in fact, to the people of the whole country should not be permitted to have success.

With respect to the proposed bridge over the Delaware, the public mind, rarely closely fixed upon such matters in their earlier stages of promotion, has been confused by the variety of legislation presented from time to time or finally proposed in the interest of bridge enterprises across the Delaware at Philadelphia.

1. National legislation (three, if not four bills).
2. Legislation by the State of New Jersey.
3. A charter from the State of New Jersey.
4. A charter from the State of Pennsylvania.
5. An ordinance from the councils of Philadelphia.

Thus it has been difficult to follow or clearly to discern the purpose of all the movements toward a conclusion which menaces their interests in a serious manner. This may be argued as a reason of weight why the whole matter should be brought before the country, and that the course pursued by engineers United States Army before damage shall be done beyond probability of repair.

The board of engineers having in charge the task of considering plans for a new bridge over the North River at New York required that the structure should have a height of 130 feet clear above mean high water, with no pier or other obstruction in the river, and a single length of span of 430 feet between the pier-heads.

The plans for the bridge over the Delaware at Philadelphia propose an extreme height of only 50 feet with four piers within a distance across the stream of 150 feet. In the case of the proposed bridge, where there is nearly 80 feet of clearance at low water, there are to be located within a distance of 335 feet piers aggregating 100 feet in width. The mere statement of such a case, contrasted with the facts regarding the necessity that the North River, surely, must be kept free of obstruction with the necessity that steps shall be taken to check this attempt to injure the navigation of the upper Delaware.

We invite your attention to the fact that between April 2 and June 14, 1891, an unusual number of bills relating to a bridge across the Delaware at Philadelphia were introduced to the Senate or House at Washington. On April 2 Senator QUAY presented a bill (S. 1846) proposing such a bridge, and on this on April 12 was returned to the Senate by Senator VEST, of Committee on Commerce, with amendments. "Provided, That no piers or other structures shall be constructed within the roadway of the Delaware River above the established pier head lines; And provided further, That the bridge shall have a clear height of 150 feet above mean high water."

On April 25 Senator CANNON introduced a bill for a new and very different bill, providing for a bridge across the Delaware at Philadelphia, and with a height of only 40 feet, and for five piers between the pier head lines. It was the necessary compromise in this matter between the advocates of an impending wrong, which will be forever beyond correction if the bridge shall be built as is now proposed, will be as apparent to you as it is to us, we would respectfully urge you to grant the request for a hearing for the committee at your earliest convenience.

We are, respectfully, yours,

WM. W. FOULKROD, President.

THE COMMERCIAL EXCHANGE OF PHILADELPHIA.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Commercial Exchange, held January 22, 1895, the following preambles and resolution were unanimously adopted:

Whereas permission has been obtained and plans have been prepared by the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company for the construction of a drawbridge across the Delaware River at Philadelphia, which plans provide for a least height of only 50 feet above mean high water; and

Whereas the Delaware at Philadelphia by a bridge at so low an elevation as that aforesaid would create a serious impediment to the free navigation of a national waterway and tend to interfere especially with the natural growth of the commerce of the city of Philadelphia and contiguous territory; and

Whereas the legislation granting the right to construct the proposed bridge has been obtained without sufficient publicity having been accorded to the mercantile and commercial interests affected to be heard in regard to the project. Therefore,

Resolved, That the Commercial Exchange of Philadelphia respectfully petition the Secretary of War to appoint a commission of expert engineers at an early date to hear testimony on the subject and to determine if the interests of the commerce of the city of Philadelphia and contiguous territory should be protected by a naturally greater elevation above the water than is contemplated and authorized in the present plans.

E. L. ROGERS, President.
C. ROSS SMITH, Secretary.

PHILADELPHIA PRODUCE EXCHANGE.

Philadelphia, January 23, 1895.

The following preambles and resolution were unanimously adopted by the board of directors of the Produce Exchange of Philadelphia at its meeting today, and copies of same were forwarded to Hon. Daniel LaMont, Secretary of War:

Whereas the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company contemplates the erection of a drawbridge across the Delaware River, the proposed elevation of which is more than 100 feet above mean high water, would be insufficient to permit the free navigation of an important national waterway, and would therefore impede the natural growth of the commerce of Philadelphia and the contiguous territory; and

Whereas the legislation granting the right to erect the proposed bridge has been secured before proper public realization of its effect upon business interests had taken shape, and in violation of the provisions of the act of March 3, 1878, which authorized the Philadelphia Produce Exchange to unite with the Trades League and other commercial organizations in an appeal to the Secretary of War to appoint a committee of expert engineers to determine if the interests of the commerce of the city of Philadelphia and contiguous territory should be protected by a naturally greater elevation above the mean high level of the channel than that contemplated by the present plans.

WM. S. EMLEY, President.
HOWARD AUSTIN, Secretary.

MANUFACTURERS' CLUB OF PHILADELPHIA.

At the monthly meeting of the Manufacturers' Club held on January 21, 1895, the following preambles and resolutions relative to the proposed bridge across the Delaware River between Philadelphia and New Jersey were unanimously adopted and committee appointed to present the same to the Secretary of War:

Whereas the plans for the construction of a proposed bridge over the Delaware River at Philadelphia provide that the greatest height of the structure above mean high water shall be but 50 feet; and

Whereas it is believed that this elevation is not sufficiently great to permit the safe and free navigation of a stream which is an important natural and national highway belonging to the whole body of the American people; and

Whereas the public mind has recently been directed to this important matter, justice would appear to require that a hearing shall be given to other interests than those represented in the bridge project before a structure of this magnitude be erected across the Delaware River;

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be respectfully but urgently requested to appoint a committee of expert military engineers to examine the matter, to take testimony, and to determine if the plans for the bridge should not be changed so as to require the further elevation of the structure.

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be respectfully requested to convey and transportation with instructions to present these resolutions to the Secretary of War, and to take such other action as may be deemed necessary in the premises.

WM. S. STOCKTON,
Assistant Secretary.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., January 24, 1895.

SIR: Herewith I beg to inclose a copy of preambles and resolutions unanimously passed on the 21st instant by the Manufacturers' Club of this city with respect to the proposed construction of a drawbridge across the Delaware River at Philadelphia.

I trust the reasonableness of the request embodied in these resolutions (which have been dictated solely in the spirit of fair play toward all) will commend itself to your judgment, and that you will see your way to take the beneficial action to which, if consummated, would be a grave, though perhaps unintentional, injustice to the commercial interests of the Delaware River. The bridge in question will, if constructed, be the first between the city of Philadelphia and the waterway of this nation. No one, I think, is it just and reasonable that so important a project as this (which, I repeat, has for its object the erection of the first bridge across the Delaware between the cities of Philadelphia and New Jersey) should be undertaken until the public has been granted ample opportunity to be heard pro and con, and the neglect of such precaution would create what in the future might prove to be a most serious and regrettable error.

I might mention that the local authorities, the harbor commissioners of Philadelphia and the port wardens, who have been led to exercise a supercilious attitude toward the project, have declared their lack of jurisdiction in the premises; hence the appeal to you.

A committee of the Manufacturers' Club purpose waiting upon you in person on the 26th instant by appointment with a copy of the resolutions here with inclosed.

Yours, respectfully,

JOHN H. CONVERSE,
Vice-President.

Hon. DANIEL S. LAMONT,

Secretary of War, Washington, D. C.

Protest of Trenton (N. J.) Board of Trade against a bridge of insufficient clearance.

On May 24, 1894, the following resolution was unanimously passed by the Trenton Board of Trade, and a copy sent to the Secretary of War and to each of the New Jersey members of Congress:

Resolved, That the Trenton Board of Trade has been made by certain parties for authority to construct a railroad bridge across the Delaware River between Camden and Philadelphia; and

Whereas the construction of said bridge, unless built at a sufficient elevation, might prove a serious obstacle to navigation, particularly if the proposed ship canal across New Jersey should become an accomplished fact; Therefore,

Resolved, That the Board of Trade, while heartily approving, in a general way, the idea of a railroad bridge at the location specified, does most emphatically protest against its construction at a height insufficient to permit the free navigation of the Delaware River by vessels of the largest size.

Resolved, That a copy of the above be transmitted to the New Jersey members of Congress.

Resolution of Board of Trade of Trenton, N. J.

TRENTON, N. J., January 30, 1895.

At a meeting of the Board of Trade of Trenton, N. J., held on the 3d instant, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas the plans for the new railroad bridge at or near Philadelphia, seem to indicate that there will be only a clearance of some 50 feet above high water for the passage of vessels of the same; Therefore,

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Board of Trade the clearance should be at least 70 feet above high-water mark for the needed free passage of many of the larger craft in that point.

Very respectfully,

WM. W. STEELE, Secretary.

The above has been sent to the Secretary of War.

Preambles and resolutions passed by the city of Burlington, N. J., February 5, 1895, and copy of same sent to Secretary of War.

Whereas the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company contemplate the construction of a drawbridge across the Delaware River at Philadelphia, in accordance with authority granted under a recent act of Congress; and Whereas the prosperity of the city of Burlington is vitally connected with the maintenance of the unobstructed navigation of the upper Delaware, which is a competitive means of transportation of the greatest benefit to this community; Therefore,

Resolved, That the mayor and city councils of Burlington earnestly and respectfully petition the Secretary of War to appoint a commission of expert engineers who shall hear testimony and provide that the aforesaid drawbridge shall be constructed at a sufficient height above the water to permit the free and unhampered passage of the upriver traffic, and so preserve to the public their rightful advantage in this national waterway.

Resolution of common council of city of Beverly, N. J.

Whereas the authority has been given to the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company to build a drawbridge at Philadelphia across the Delaware River, which, unless constructed at a sufficient height above the surface of the water, will seriously impede the movement of craft plying between the towns along the upper Delaware and points below the location of the proposed drawbridge; Therefore,

Resolved, That the mayor and city council of Beverly respectfully petition the Secretary of War to appoint a commission of expert United States engineers to hear testimony from all the interests concerned and decide upon the clearance above the water which would be fair and equitable to all.

And above resolution adopted by the common council of the city of Beverly at a meeting held February 15, 1895.

Attest:

ELLWOOD P. RODMAN, City Clerk.

Preambles and resolution passed by the borough of Riverton, N. J., January 23, 1895, and copy of same sent to Secretary of War.

Whereas the citizens of Riverton, realizing the advantages accruing from a free competitive water route, are deeply interested in the preservation of the unobstructed navigation of the upper Delaware River for both passenger and freight craft of the largest practicable size; and Whereas it is apparent that the proposed drawbridge of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company across the Delaware at Philadelphia will prove a serious impediment to the free passage of the upriver traffic unless the bridge is constructed at a considerably greater height above the water than now contemplated; Therefore,

Resolved, That the mayor and council of the borough of Riverton respectfully petition the Secretary of War to appoint at an early date a commission of United States engineers to hear testimony and decide whether or not an equitable regard for the rights of the people of this city requires that a bridge in question, if built, should be elevated above the height now provided for in the plans.

EDWARD H. OGDEN, Mayor.
E. C. STOUGHTON, Clerk.

Preambles and resolution passed by the township of Palmyra, January 23, 1895, and copy of same sent to the Secretary of War.

Whereas permission has been given and plans drawn by the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company for the erection of a drawbridge across the Delaware River at Philadelphia; and

Whereas the said drawbridge, if not constructed at a greater height above the water than is specified in the present plans, will materially interfere with the free navigation of the river between Philadelphia and so tend to the detriment of this and neighboring communities; Therefore,

Resolved, That the township committee of the township of Palmyra respectfully urge upon the Secretary of War to appoint a commission of expert engineers to decide upon the proper height at which the aforesaid bridge should be built without infringement upon the rights of any of the interests concerned.

R. L. TEMPLE, Chairman.
R. L. SMITH, Clerk.

BOROUGH OF BRISTOL.

Whereas the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company has been granted authority to construct a drawbridge across the Delaware River at Philadelphia, the plans for which provide for a height of only 50 feet above mean high water;

Whereas a bridge at so low an altitude would prove a needless obstruction of the most serious character to the free navigation of the upper Delaware River; and tend to restrict the growth of the important city of Bristol and adjacent river towns, whose traffic is largely river borne; and

Whereas it is of vital importance to the prosperity of these towns and the extensive country tributary to them that the freest possible navigation of the Delaware River be preserved; therefore

Resolved, That the burgess and council of the borough of Bristol respectfully petition the Secretary of War to appoint a commission of expert engineers to hear testimony from the various interests affected by the erection of the proposed bridge, with a view of granting justice to all and preventing a great wrong being wrought to the communities situated on the shores of this national waterway.

Attest:

THOMAS B. HARKINS, Burgess.

[SEAL.]

J. WESLEY WRIGHT, Clerk.

BRISTOL, Pa., January 23, 1895.

I certify that the above was unanimously adopted at a regular meeting of the burgess and council of Bristol Borough, held this date.

J. WESLEY WRIGHT, Clerk.

JANUARY 15, 1895.

Whereas the Hardware Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Philadelphia has full sympathy with the action of representative organizations of Philadelphia—such as the Trades League, the Manufacturers' Club, and the Commercial Exchange—in their protest against the construction of the proposed drawbridge across the Delaware River at Philadelphia; and Whereas the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company across the Delaware River at Philadelphia, at the low clearance above the water, contemplated in the present plans; Therefore,

Resolved, That the Hardware Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Philadelphia, in the interests of fair play and justice to all, hereby unites with the commercial bodies aforesaid, in respectfully petitioning the Secretary of War to provide for the siting of a Board of United States Engineers at Philadelphia, to receive testimony on this important subject, and to afford an opportunity for a full and free consideration of the question in all its bearings.

W. N. SUPPLEE, President.
T. JAMES FENLEY, Secretary.

Resolution of the Corinthian Yacht Club of Philadelphia at the second general meeting on February 14, 1895.

Whereas authority has been given by Congress to the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company to construct a drawbridge (with six piers between shore and shore) across the water of the Delaware River at Philadelphia; and

Whereas the plans for the said bridge contemplate a height of only 50 feet above mean high water, and a width of but 125 feet for the drawspan; and Whereas the erection of the bridge at so low an altitude above the water, and with so narrow a drawspan, would prove an obstruction to the free passage of a large number of the pleasure yachts, which now include in their sailing course the beautiful portions of the Delaware River; and Whereas the proposed bridge, and would accordingly curtail seriously a legitimate and healthful recreation; Therefore,

Resolved, That the Corinthian Yacht Club of Philadelphia earnestly petition the Secretary of War to appoint at an early date a commission of expert engineers to review the plans of the projected bridge and allow to all parties interested an opportunity to present their views.

EDGAR T. SCOTT, Commodore.
ADDISON F. BANCROFT, Secretary.

CUSTOM-HOUSE, COLLECTOR'S OFFICE.

Trenton, N. J., January 14, 1895.

SIR: I write you concerning the new bridge across the Delaware River, above Philadelphia, Pa. The measurements, as they have been given to me, give only an average height of 50 feet above the water level. This is a very low height for a great mistake and seriously interfere with navigation. This bridge, in my judgment, should be at least from 70 to 75 feet above high-water mark. Having had over twenty years' experience on the river, would be very sorry to see navigation obstructed by this bridge.

Respectfully, yours,

JOHN A. WILSON, Collector.

HON. SECRETARY OF WAR,
Washington, D. C.

The resolutions in protest against present plans of bridge across Delaware River to be built by the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company, as adopted by the Philadelphia Yacht Club at their annual meeting, held February 6, 1895, are as follows:

The Philadelphia Yacht Club condemn the plan of the proposed bridge of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company across the Delaware River from Bridesburg, Pa., to Fishers Point, N. J., because of the insufficient height of the structure (50 feet) above the water. There are few yachts owned in this city that could pass thereunder without striking their topsails, but many which could not, at a height of 50 feet, and the use of the draw for yachts (who generally are not in the habit of waiting) owned the river, or think they do, or have the same opinion themselves) suit their own sweet will in the opening of the draws, and no time is in their power to wait for the boats, and especially in the winter. This has been the experience of yachtsmen and vessel owners everywhere, and we have no reason to believe that the present proposed structure across the Delaware will be changed.

The officials of the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Railroad Company and the United States engineers, with little or no consideration for the interests of the river, have even for the welfare of the city, have approved the plan herein condemned.

This fact should have little weight with the authorities at Washington or with the people, for some of these same United States engineers have approved the dumping of earth, etc. (taken from the islands opposite the city), into the harbors of the leading Philadelphia yacht clubs, between Little Timon's Island and the mainland, without the consent of the riparian owners, when they knew, or should have known, if they were competent, that the same earth, etc., would soon wash (as a large portion, if not the most of it, has washed into the main channel below).

It is not true that the location of the bridge will not interfere with the clearance of craft that navigate this part of the river. Hundreds of freight vessels will be unable to pass this point under the bridge.

We believe that the only proper way to do justice to all interests in the location and construction of this bridge is to submit it to a commission of competent persons to take testimony and to fully consider all the interests that will probably be affected.

The Philadelphia Yacht Club, believing that the location of the proposed bridge across the Delaware River would be a great injury to the interests of owners of vessels and yachts, earnestly request our Congressmen to do all in their power to secure the appointment of the Commission referred to, so that the interests of the city and vessel owners generally may be protected.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Secretary of War, Gen. Thomas L. Casey, and to each of our Senators and city Congressmen.

FRANK H. SHUNK BROWN, Commodore.
J. G. RAMSDALE, Secretary.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 8659) to authorize the construction of bridges across the Emory and Clinch rivers, in the State of Tennessee, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The bill (H. R. 8900) to amend section 9 of an act entitled "An act to authorize the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company to construct and operate a railroad, telegraph, and telephone line through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes," was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the Choctaw Nation of Indians relative to the claim against the United States on account of the lands of the Wichita Reservation, and praying that they may be allowed to plead their cause before the Court of the Senate, as the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, has already adopted an amendment to the paragraph.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let it be considered as open.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. By unanimous consent, the paragraph as amended will be considered as open. The Chair hears no objection, and that is the order.

Mr. VEST. It is very evident that the purposes for which the office was created have been accomplished or abandoned. This officer is not now required to report any plan for the education of Indian children, and he is simply and purely an inspector. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs already has five inspectors who can go to the Indian schools, and it is within my personal knowledge, for I was for some years a member of the Committee on Indian Affairs, that these inspectors perform the duties of going to the Indian schools and making a report in regard to their condition. It will be seen by subsequent statutes that all pretense that this officer is anything else than an ordinary inspector has been abandoned. It will be found that in 1880, four years after the position was created, the inspector was simply recorded as an ordinary inspector, and received $4,000, as was provided in that law, and $1,000 for his traveling expenses. In 1890 it was reduced to $3,000, and $1,500 for traveling expenses.

Now, this officer is, to a large extent, independent of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. He is at the head of a minor bureau. I see by the amendments that he is to have a secretary, and the secretary's expenses are to be paid in going around through the country, together with the inspector. Why can't the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, who has absolute control of all Indian matters, detail an inspector or send one of his five inspectors to investigate these schools? Or, if it is necessary, give him another inspector, so as to make the number six. Why should we have a superintendent of Indian schools under a Commissioner of Indian Affairs, an imperium in imperio, with additional expense, and from year to year with increasing cost? There is no necessity, in my judgment, for any such position, and I therefore make this motion.

Mr. PLATT. I hope the amendment will not be agreed to. I regard the office of superintendent of Indian schools as a very important office. I think if the Senator from Missouri will take the report of the superintendent of Indian schools and read it he will be surprised that it is not a sincere by any means and that it is not an important work which he is doing.

With regard to the Secretary, I will state that it was appropriated for in the bill last year, but for some reason it was left out in the other House. The committee has simply restored it. It is not the creation of a new office at all. It is an office that existed last year. I do not wish to take up time in discussing the matter, but if any Senator will take the report of the superintendent of Indian schools and read it, I think he will be entirely satisfied that the office is doing good.

The Senator from Missouri said he does not know who the official is. The office was formerly held by Mr. Dorchester, but upon the incoming of the present Administration a gentleman by the name of Heilman, from Indiana, I believe, was appointed. The Senator from Indiana [Mr. TERRY] assured me at the time of his appointment that Mr. Heilman was perhaps as good a man for the place as could be found in the United States. All that I know of the work since that time justifies what the Senator from Indiana said with reference to him.

Mr. VEST. Will the Senator from Connecticut tell us why an inspector could not perform those duties?

Mr. PLATT. Because the superintendent has the general supervision of the entire matter of education at the Indian schools of the country, and an inspector can not do it. An inspector can be sent here or there upon special work, but the superintendent is given a higher duty than any inspector is called upon to perform.

Mr. VEST. The act which created the office of Commissioner of Indian Affairs, as will be found by reference to the Revised Statutes, expressly gives the Commissioner of Indian Affairs control and supervision of all matters affecting the Indians, including education. As I have shown here the office of superintendent of Indian schools was originally created for a specific purpose, and that purpose has either been accomplished or abandoned. This is nothing but an inspectorship with increased salary, and now he is furnished with a secretary.

I have read those reports. I know Mr. Dorchester's reports. They were adopted by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and then the report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs was incorporated in the report of the Secretary of the Interior and transmitted by the President to Congress. But that does not at all affect what I have said, to the effect that this is simply an inspectorship, with certain duties put upon the inspector by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and not by the statute. It is now provided by the amendment, as it was in 1880 and 1886, that the Commissioner of Indian Affairs shall assign such duties to this officer, the superintendent of Indian schools, as he sees proper. He does the same thing as to other inspectors. It is an entirely unnecessary office.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. JAMES KEAR, its Clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (S. 285) granting a pension to Annie M. Green.
A bill (S. 684) for the relief of Mrs. Evelyn N. Van Vliet;
A bill (S. 2783) to postpone the enforcement of the act of August 19, 1890, entitled "An act to adopt regulations for preventing collisions at sea;" and

A bill (H. R. 6323) to amend the Articles for the Government of the Navy relative to punishment on conviction by court-martial.

SURVEYOR OF DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. PROCTOR submitted the following report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 444) making the surveyor of the District of Columbia a salaried officer, and to provide for more efficient service in the survey of said city, having met after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the House and agree to the same with the following amendments:

In line 6 of section 1, page 1, after the words "shall be," insert "appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia for a term of four years, unless sooner removed for cause, and shall be," and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 6 of section 1, page 1, after the word "the" where it first occurs in said line, insert "said," and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 6 of section 1, page 1, strike out "of the District of Columbia;" and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 1 of section 3, page 2, after the words "per annum," insert "and such employees as may in the judgment of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be required for the survey of said city, and operations at an aggregate expense of not exceeding $3,000 in any one year. Amend the proposed amendment by striking out "$3,000" and insert "$3,200" in line thereof; and the Senate agree to the same.

In section 4, line 1, after the word "per annum," in line 6, down to and including line 10, and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 6 of section 1, page 2, strike out the word "cities" and insert in lieu thereof the word "city;" and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 4 of section 1, page 2, strike out the words "and Georgetown;" and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 2 of section 3, page 2, strike out "cities" and insert in lieu thereof the word "city;" and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 1 of section 3, page 2, after the word "Columbia," insert "and all records and papers of the office of the surveyor shall be delivered by each surveyor to his successor in office. Amend by inserting at the word 'office' the words 'survey of land and water' and in line 4, after the word 'surveyor of the District of Columbia' except it be certified to as correct by the surveyor of the said District," and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 1 of section 4, after the word "and" in line 1, down to and including line 4, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed;" and the Senate agree to the same.

REDFIELD PROCTOR,

CLERK OF THE HOUSE.

H. C. HANSBROUGH,

Minorities of the present conference.

J. E. COBE,

G. W. COOPER,

J. A. T. HULL,

Minorities of the House.

Mr. GORMAN. I trust we will have some explanation of the conference report. I should judge from hearing the report read that there was a large increase of salaries of the officers of the District of Columbia. We ought to have some explanation of it.

Mr. PROCTOR. The important amendment agreed to is in section 3. The bill as it passed the Senate provided for a surveyor at a salary of $3,000, an assistant surveyor at a salary of $1,800, and a draftsman, a computer, a clerk, two rod men, two chain men, aggregating, besides the salaries of the surveyor and the assistant surveyor, $7,340. The other House struck out all of those subordinate officials except the surveyor and assistant, and inserted in lieu thereof a provision authorizing the Commissioners to employ necessary assistants outside of the two first officers at an expense of not exceeding $4,000 in place of the $7,340 that was in the bill as it passed the Senate.

Mr. GORMAN. I should like to ask if we have made a provision for the payment of those officers for the current fiscal year.

Mr. PROCTOR. No provision has been made for meeting the purpose to ask that an amendment be made so that the bill, providing the proposed act became a law in season, it met of course it will be a deficiency. The fees, according to the statement of the Commissioners, and I have no doubt it is correct, will considerably more than pay the expenses of the officials.

Mr. GORMAN. Will the fees be applicable without some legislation, I ask the Senator from Vermont?

Mr. PROCTOR. The fees are not applicable without legislation.

Mr. GORMAN. I will say to the Senator that the conference report on the District of Columbia appropriation bill where these items would probably go is already pending in the Senate. The appropriation bill has reached a stage where it would be impossible, in my judgment, to put on it a provision of this kind. Therefore, I suggest to the Senator whether it is not wise for him to let the report be printed and see if we can get to the pay of these officers. It inserts a provision in this bill as to the pay of these officers. It would require a very radical change of existing law to make provision for their compensation during the next fiscal year, and it is vision for their compensation during the next fiscal year, and it ought not to be mixed up with the sundry civil or any other bill except the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

Mr. PROCTOR. Providing that the fees may be used for this purpose?

Mr. GORMAN. During the next fiscal year.

Mr. COCKRELL. Just make an ordinary appropriation for it, like the others.

Mr. PROCTOR. The sum, as the report now stands, is precisely $10,000—$4,800 for the surveyor and his assistant, and $5,200 for such other assistants as the Commissioners may think necessary.

Mr. GORMAN. I suggest that the Senator, as was suggested yesterday about the conference report on the District of Columbia bill, have the report printed, and we can take it up Monday.

Mr. PROCTOR. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection it will be so ordered.

AMENDMENT OF INTERSTATE-COMMERCE ACT.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, I now move that the pending appropriation bill be laid aside informally and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 7273) to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887.

Mr. KYLE. Mr. President—
The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state the motion. The Senator from South Carolina moves that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of the bill indicated by him.

Mr. BUTLER. And that the regular order be informally laid aside.

Mr. ALDRICH. That can not be done.

Mr. FRYE. That would require unanimous consent.

Mr. ALDRICH. That is not in order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair has stated the parliamentary motion.

Mr. HARRIS. I suggest to the Senator from South Carolina that his motion in effect is to proceed to the consideration of a bill. I am inclined to think that it would be wiser policy for him to wait until the Indian appropriation bill shall be passed, if it is ever passed, which I doubt; but if ever, that he make his motion when that bill is passed.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President—

Mr. HALE. I make the point of order that the motion is not debatable.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair sustains the point of order. The motion is not debatable.

Mr. BUTLER. Then I move to strike out the last clause in the bill pending before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state to the Senator that a motion is pending.

Mr. PETTIGREW. On that motion I demand the yeas and nays.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from South Carolina that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill which he has indicated, on which the yeas and nays are demanded.

Mr. GEORGE. Mr. President—

Mr. HALE. I make the point of order that the motion is not debatable.

Mr. GEORGE. I move to amend the motion by striking out the bill mentioned and inserting the bill (H. R. 4699) to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair must hold that the motion of the Senator from Mississippi is not in order. The vote must be first taken on the motion of the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. GEORGE. I will take an appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Mr. HALE. I move to lay the appeal on the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maine to lay on the table the appeal of the Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. GEORGE. Can a motion be made to lay my appeal on the table until after I have surrendered the floor?

Mr. HALE. The Chair has entertained the motion.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair did not hear the inquiry of the Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. GEORGE. I suggest that I had not surrendered the floor. The Senator from Maine can not make the motion until I have surrendered the floor.

Mr. GRAY. The Chair had recognized the Senator from Maine.
Mr. GEORGE. I took an appeal. That appeal is debatable, and I was going to proceed to debate that question.

Mr. HALE. After a motion had been made to lay it on the table it is not debatable.

Mr. GEORGE. But the Senator could not make the motion when I had the floor.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair did not intend to take the Senator from Mississippi from the floor, but the question is not debatable.

Mr. GEORGE. The appeal is debatable.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The appeal is not debatable. The motion is made to lay the appeal on the table.

Mr. HALE. I call for the regular order.

Mr. GEORGE. That motion was made before I surrendered the floor. The Senator from Maine had no right to make the motion while I occupied the floor.

Mr. HALE. I call for the regular order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair must state that the pending motion is that of the Senator from Maine to lay on the table the appeal of the Senator from Mississippi.

The motion to lay the appeal on the table was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER].

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President—

Mr. GORMAN. Regular order.

Mr. BUTLER. I call for the yeas and nays on my motion.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BURROWS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON].

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH]. If he were here I should vote "nay."

Mr. GORDON (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON].

Mr. HANSBROUGH (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER]. Were he present I should vote "nay."

Mr. MITCHELL of Wisconsin (when his name was called). Has the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY] voted?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted, the Chair is advised.

Mr. MITCHELL of Wisconsin. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. ROACH (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from California [Mr. PERKINS]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

The roll was concluded.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS], who is not in his seat. I suggest to the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. MITCHELL] that we transfer our pairs, so that the Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] will stand paired with the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY] on this question, and that will enable us to vote.

Mr. MITCHELL of Wisconsin. Very well; that is satisfactory.

Mr. GALLINGER. I vote "yea."

Mr. MITCHELL of Wisconsin. I vote "yea."

Mr. LODGE. My colleague [Mr. HOAR] is absent from the Senate. I desire to announce that he is paired with the Senator from Alabama [Mr. PUGH].

Mr. ROACH. I am informed that if the Senator from California [Mr. PERKINS] were present he would vote "nay." As I would vote the same way, I will record my vote. I vote "nay."

Mr. GALLINGER (after having voted in the affirmative). Since making the transfer of the pairs I notice that the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY] has come into the Chamber. The transfer will be annulled and I will stand paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS].

Mr. PUGH (after having voted in the negative). I have a pair with the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR], which, I understand, has been announced. I take it for granted—having been announced by his colleague—that if present the Senator from Massachusetts would vote "yea." If that be true, I withdraw my vote.

Mr. ALDRICH. The remark of the Senator from Alabama was not understood on this side of the Chamber.

Mr. PUGH. If there is anyone who is authorized to state that the senior Senator from Massachusetts would vote "yea" if present, I withdraw my vote. I have a general pair with him.

Mr. ALDRICH. I do not think he would; but I am not certain.

Mr. PUGH. That is the reason why I required some statement to the contrary.

Mr. GALLINGER. It strikes me that the pair ought to be observed. I shall take the liberty of voting on the other side and break my pair if the Senator from Alabama breaks his.

Mr. DUBOIS. I wish to announce that my colleague [Mr. SNOUT] is paired with the Senator from California [Mr. WHITE].

If my colleague were present he would vote "nay." The Senator from California would vote "nay" if present.

Mr. PUGH. I will transfer my pair to the Senator from California [Mr. WHITE] and let my vote stand.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I transfer my pair with the junior Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER] to the absent Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUP], and will vote. I vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 24, nays 42; as follows:

YEAS—24.

So the motion was not agreed to.

Mr. BUTLER. May I inquire what is the question before the Senate?

Mr. COCKRELL. The Indian appropriation bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate resumes consideration of the Indian appropriation bill; and the pending question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] to the bill.

Mr. BUTLER. Then I propose to address a few remarks upon the Indian appropriation bill. I believe that is in order now.

I think, perhaps, sir, it is due to myself that I should make a statement to the Senate. The bill known as the pooling bill was passed through the Committee on Interstate Commerce, introduced there by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN], and, as I understood, supported by him cordially and by a very decided majority of that committee. As chairman I was charged with the duty of presenting it to the Senate and asking for the action of this body on it. I have from time to time made an effort to get the bill up. It is one in which the entire business of the country is very deeply and profoundly interested, as I am informed. Beyond that I have no interest in it. That effort has been obstructed by dilatory proceedings, by having it antagonized with appropriation bills, and by various methods, Mr. President, which, I submit, in a bill of this kind, are not fair and just to the public or to this body.

Yesterday (I do not think I am violating any confidence when I refer to it) the committee charged with the order of business—certainly on this side of the Chamber charged with the order of business—had a meeting and decided that at 3 o'clock to-day the bill would be taken up for consideration and would be considered until disposed of in one form or another. I immediately discovered that there was put on foot a movement to delay the discussion of the Indian appropriation bill and to run that discussion before the hour designated by that committee. The opponents of the so-called pooling bill have succeeded in doing that. I have simply discharged my duty.

I want to say in connection with the discharge of that duty that a great many intimations have been made here and elsewhere, notably by the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. CHANDLER], that this is a great eleven-billion combination to oppress the people. As I stated in the remarks I made the other day, one of the effects in which the great majority, the masses of the people of this country, are more interested than in this measure. We have complained since the organization of the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1887 that that Commission did not have power enough to deal with the corporations in the interests of the people. This bill enlarges the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and in its operation upon railroads is, in my judgment, extremely drastic. As I stated in the remarks I made the other day, one of the effects will be, in my judgment, if it should become a law, to prevent the large trusts and combines and monopolies of this country from taking the railroads and the people by the throat, as they have them to-day.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Will the Senator from South Carolina allow me to ask him a question at this stage?

Mr. BUTLER. With pleasure.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I realize perfectly as a member of the committee the earnest and unselfish character of his work, but inasmuch as from three-fourths to nine-tenths of the railroad stocks and bonds in the United States are held in New England and New York, and inasmuch as more than four-fifths of the representation from that section is opposed to taking up the pooling bill, I suggest to the Senator that he is relieved from much further responsibility respecting it.

Mr. BUTLER. If that opposition will develop itself and exercise its influence upon this body I have nothing more to say; but all I ask, and what I think I have a right to ask, is that the Senate shall act upon this bill, favorably or unfavorably; and to me personally it would make no difference what the action of the Senate might be.

But I am told, and I have good reason for believing, that there are certain monopolies in this country who have been getting the benefit of the repeal of the pooling clause, the fifth section of the act of 1887, who are themselves opposing the bill, because they have, as I said, the railroads by the throat and they have the country by the throat in deriving special privileges, preferential rates, rebates, making them rich, and everybody else, including railroads, poor. That, sir, is my reason for what appears to be persistency upon my part to get action by this body.

I have been told that there is a very decided majority of this body in favor of the bill. I have no personal knowledge of that fact, because I have made no special inquiry in regard to it; but I am reminded of the eloquent appeal made by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] the other day when opposing a change of the rules, in which he said with great truth and force that any measure which had a majority of this body generally had action by the body. I have seen, sir, for ten days or two weeks, methods adopted on this floor to defeat the consideration of the bill. The Senator from South Dakota [Mr. PERRIN] asserted yesterday that he did not intend to permit the consideration of this bill by this body if he could prevent it.

I have felt it due to myself, as chairman of that committee and as being in charge of the bill, to make this statement, and I give notice here and now that I intend, if I can, to have consideration of it fairly, frankly, and fully. If the Senate votes it down, I say to you, Mr. President, and to the Senate, I have no further concern with it; but I think it is insist that it be put to fair consideration at least. Other bills have been brought in here pending the consideration of the appropriation bills, notably the bill by my friend the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES], which occupied twenty-four hours of the time of the Senate, and not one word was said about impeding the appropriation bills.

Mr. HALE. And it was then withdrawn.

Mr. BUTLER. It was then withdrawn. Give me twenty-four hours, I say to the Senator from Maine, and if I can not pass the bill in that time I will withdraw it.

Mr. HALE. Let me say a word to the Senator. Of course the Senator has the privilege every lawyer has, after he has lost his case, of scolding the jury. The Senator has had a fair day in court. The question was whether the Senate in the present exigency would vote to take up his bill, thereby practically confiscating, it may be, the rest of the time. The Senator knows there has been no tactics resorted to to defeat the bill. The appropriation bills must necessarily be passed or we will be left with some one or more of them upon our hands and an extra session, which nobody wants, will be called. All that the Committee on Appropriations is doing, all that the Senate is doing in sustaining that committee, is in keeping strictly to the business of passing those bills. If the Senator with the bill which he has so much at heart has let it drag along until this exigency has arisen, he ought not to complain of the Senate nor of anybody else. All that we are seeking to do is to do the necessary business, and his bill is necessarily crowded out.

I do not think that the Senator will get any opportunity when the Senate will vote to take up his bill, because everybody understands, with the determined opposition that there is to it, that he can not pass it in twenty-four hours, not forty-eight hours, not seven or two hours, nor ninety-six hours, nor in the rest of the session, and none with the exception of a few are in favor of confiscating the time for the benefit of the pooling bill.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, that is the same plea we heard two weeks or ten days ago.

Mr. HALE. It is growing more imperative.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator from Maine is repeating precisely what he said when I attempted to get the floor under the dispensation of the Senator from Maine, and the Post-Office appropriation bill was up and which the Senator knows have passed this body, one of them passing it in three hours.

Mr. HALE. The plea and the reasons for it are growing more imperative every day. We are getting nearer the end of the session.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Will the Senator from Maine permit me to ask him a question? Ask him if he thinks that the opponents of this side of the Chamber have been requested to speak upon amendments to appropriation bills in which they did not have the slightest interest and upon which they would not otherwise have spoken, for the sole and unconcealed reason that they might consume time and prevent the consideration of the pooling bill.

Mr. HALE. I will answer the Senator directly. I not only do not know of any such instance, but I know in my case I have sought early and late, and it may be in season and out of season, to prevent needless debate upon the provisions of appropriation bills, because, Mr. President, as surely as we stand here, with all the expedition that the human mind and human wit can give us, with limited debate upon appropriation bills, and with the five-minute debate, which I hope will be adopted upon amendments to the bill, I think we shall find ourselves crowded in passing those bills. So I say to the Senator I know of no such thing as he has mentioned.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Of course the Senator from Maine knows, as I know, that I have not made the slightest personal reference to him.

Mr. HALE. The Senator put the question to me, and I had to answer it.

Mr. BUTLER. I am not making charges against anybody. I am perfectly satisfied with the action of the Senate so far as I am personally concerned. I am making no complaint about it, and I am not scolding anybody. I am simply adverting to well-known and conceded facts, which the Senator himself can not deny. Personally I make no charges against him of indulging in any dilatory methods or proceedings; but yesterday, when it was announced that the committee on the order of business of this body had decided on 9 o'clock to-day as the time when the bill in my charge should be taken up, what did we see in this body? The Indian appropriation bill was proceeding. We could have concluded it in two hours. Instead of that we had an executive session, and then an adjournment very much earlier than usual.

Mr. President, that may deceive some people, but does not deceive me, and is not going to deceive anybody here. It was plainly announced that the object of that delay was to prevent the consideration of the bill in my charge. It was also announced, and there was no concealment about it, when the consular and diplomatic and the Post-Office appropriation bills were being considered, that the debate would be strung out; and I think about ten days were occupied in the discussion of those two bills when I was making an effort to get up the bill in my charge.

All I ask is that the Senate take a vote on the bill. If the Senate votes it down, that will be the end of it; and if it passes it, that will be the end of it.

Mr. HALE. Let me say to the Senator that he can not get a vote on his bill until the Senate votes to take it up. He has to pass it by the regular process.

Mr. BUTLER. That is what I wanted to do.

Mr. HALE. The Senator has to proceed under the rules. He has tried it just now, and has been beaten. He can not get a vote on his bill until he can get the Senate to take it up, and he will find every hour and every day the difficulty of securing a vote to take up his bill will increase, and he will never be as strong as he is to-day.

Mr. BUTLER. Will the Senator vote to take it up after the appropriation bill is disposed of?

Mr. HALE. I will not.

Mr. BUTLER. Of course not.

Mr. HALE. I will not until I am sure we can see our way to the end of the session in disposing of appropriation bills.

Mr. BUTLER. And yet we saw the Senator sitting perfectly quiet when the bill of the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES] was being discussed the other night until 9 o'clock, with not one word of protest against it. I have, however, no complaint to make of that. I was in favor of that, but not one word of protest was made by the Senator from Maine or any other Senator as to the consumption of time.

Mr. HALE. I protested then, as I did to-day, by voting against the bill of the Senator from Arkansas. That bill seemed to represent the sentiment of the Senate, inasmuch as the Senate voted to take it up, and it involved a great question which lies at the bottom of the financial controversy, a deeper, a wider, a larger, and a nobler question than this, and when the Senator from Arkansas saw what the effect would be if he determined upon keeping that bill before the Senate, instead of insisting upon it he gracefully withdrew it, as he always does in such cases. He did not complain of the Senate because the disposition was to consider appropriation bills, as the Senator from South Carolina does, but he yielded to that monition and at once the bill went out of the way.

Mr. BUTLER. If the Senator from Maine will permit me to get the bill in my charge taken up, and if I find that it can not pass, I suppose the Senator from Arkansas may do the same in grace, but certainly he will not exceed me in candor in withdrawing the bill.

Mr. HALE. When the Senator from South Carolina can get a majority to take his bill up, as the Senator from Arkansas did, then the Senator from South Carolina will be entitled to consider it.

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator from Arkansas was not at the disadvantage that some members of the Appropriations Committee opposed an appropriation bill to his motion, as the Senator from Maine and other Senators are doing and have done to the bill in my charge.

Mr. PEPPER. Will the Senator allow me to make a suggestion?

Mr. BUTLER. Certainly.

Mr. PEPPER. I know the Senator from South Carolina has been very hardly pressed to secure a hearing for his bill, and unavoidably that situation has prevailed for many days; but the Senator has worked faithfully and worked arduously and continuously to perform his part of the work of getting the bill before the Senate.

The suggestion I wish to make is, that it may be some relief to the Senator to know that he can not get the bill passed in twenty days. I can assure the Senator that I know personally at least twelve members of the Senate who are determined to fight that bill to the uttermost. I myself am prepared to occupy at least one full day in continuous discussion of it. [Laughter.]

Mr. BUTLER. In other words, Mr. President, the Senator from Kansas has had the frankness to do what many other Senators have not had the frankness to do, to state that he and 12 others will filibuster against a bill where there is a majority in favor of it.

That, I understand, to be the position of the Senator.

Mr. KYLE. Mr. President—

Mr. BUTLER. One moment.

What I should like to do would be to give the Senator from Kansas and the other 12 Senators an opportunity to filibuster for a while, and let us see just how far they will go in carrying out this filibustering programme, which the Senator has so frankly admitted is in store for this bill.

Mr. PEPPER. I have no idea of filibustering.

Mr. BUTLER. Of course not.

Mr. PEPPER. I will say to the Senator, however, with perfect frankness, we will talk his bill to death, if we can not kill it in any other way. [Laughter.]

Mr. BUTLER. That is another form of filibustering.

Mr. KYLE. The Senator from California [Mr. WHITE], who was obliged to go to New York yesterday evening, told me if the bill came up he wanted me to notify the members of the Senate that he would return this evening, and that he had a five days' speech to deliver against the bill of the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. BUTLER. I doubt very much whether he could stand out as long as the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. ALLEN]; but still I felt that it was my duty to make this statement. If the Senator from California, the Senator from South Dakota, the Senator from Kansas, and the Senator from Nebraska have made up their minds to perpetuate monopolies and trusts in this country by filibustering, they must take the responsibility.

Mr. ALLEN. If the Senator will permit me, I desire to contribute my portion to this entertainment, by saying that I shall take my full portion of time if his bill comes up.

Mr. BUTLER. I think it quite unnecessary for the Senator to state that, because he always takes his full portion, and a good deal that is not his full portion. [Laughter.]

Mr. GORMAN. Mr. President, I know the Senate will indulge me for a moment after the very remarkable statement of the distinguished Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] who has made a formidable assault upon me.

Mr. BUTLER. Not at all.

Mr. GORMAN. Entirely unexpected and uncalled for by any relations between that Senator and myself, and unjustified by any action of mine in relation to this bill. The Senator began his remarks by alluding to the fact that I had introduced a bill to permit pooling.

Mr. BUTLER. That is true.

Mr. GORMAN. Yes, Mr. President, it is true, and my opinion upon that question is as well known to the Senate as my opinion upon any other question. I think a fair and moderate bill permitting pooling is right, and in the interest of the people and in the interest of the railroad companies. I introduced a bill, as I introduced hundreds of bills, providing as it did, for permitting pooling, but I was not committed to that bill in any of its provisions, except the general idea. It was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, of which the distinguished Senator is chairman, and of which I am a member, in the early part of this Congress; it was discussed in committee and considered in all of its details. Nobody knows better than the distinguished Senator from California that I offered and sustained amendments of which I considered vital to the bill, and without which I could not support it.

That bill was considered carefully and for a long time, but no report whatever was made upon it, and no conclusion was ever

On amendment numbered 121: Appropriates $8,000, instead of $15,000 as proposed by the House and $15,000 as proposed by the Senate, for the emergency fund.

On amendment numbered 122: Appropriates $40,000, instead of $35,000 as proposed by the House and $40,000 as proposed by the Senate, for support of convicts.

On amendments numbered 124 and 125: Provides that the appropriations for employees of the court house of the District and the wardens of the jail shall be expended under the direction of the Attorney-General.

On amendments numbered 126 and 127: Makes a verbal correction in the text of the bill, and appropriates $15,000 as proposed by the Senate, instead of $12,000 as proposed by the House, for the Central Dispensary and Emergency Hospital.

On amendments numbered 128 and 129: Appropriates $30,000 as proposed by the House, for the Columbia Hospital for Women, instead of $22,000 as proposed by the Senate, and $20,000 as proposed by the Senate, for heating apparatus and furnishing the new building for the hospital.

On amendment numbered 130: Appropriates $8,540, instead of $8,000 as proposed by the House and $9,000 as proposed by the Senate, for the Homeopathic Hospital.

On amendments numbered 131 and 132: Appropriates $16,000, instead of $15,000 as proposed by the House and $17,000 as proposed by the Senate, for salaries of employees of the Women's Hospital and Asylum.

On amendment numbered 133: Appropriates $1,000 as proposed by the Senate, for the Young Women's Christian Home.

On amendments numbered 134 and 135: Appropriates $9,900, as proposed by the House, for the Industrial Home School, instead of $12,400 as proposed by the Senate, and strikes out the provision proposed by the Senate changing the corporate character of said institution.

On amendment numbered 136: Appropriates for salary of agent of the Board of Children's Guardians $1,000, instead of $1,500 as proposed by the House and $1,800 as proposed by the Senate.

On amendments numbered 137, 138, and 139: Appropriates for salary of superintendent of the water department at $1,800, instead of $1,900 as proposed by the House and $2,000 as proposed by the Senate, and strikes out the increase proposed by the Senate of $1,000.

The committee of conference have been unable to agree on the following amendments of the Senate, namely:

On amendment numbered 91, authorizing the application, annually, of $10,000 to the police relief fund and $25,000 to the firemen's relief fund out of the receipts from fines in the police court.

On amendment numbered 114, striking out the appropriation of $4,000 proposed by the House to prevent the spread of scarlet fever and diphtheria, and on amendment numbered 115, appropriating $20,000 for the above object and also for the propagation of diphtheria antitoxine and the establishment of a bacteriological laboratory and a disinfecting service.

On amendment numbered 116, appropriating $30,000 for the erection and equipment of a smallpox hospital.

On amendment numbered 117, adding $750,344 to the bill. Of this sum the conference committee recommended that the Senate recede from $365,818, and that the House agree to $388,536, leaving $46,000 involved in the amendments upon which the conferees have been unable to agree.

J. R. WILLIAMS,
ALEX. M. DOCKERY,

Managers on the part of the House.

The SPEAKER. This is a partial agreement.

Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I move the adoption of the report.

The conference report was adopted.

On motion of Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the conference report was adopted was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will now report the amendments that are still in controversy between the two Houses.

The Senate amendments numbered 91, 114, 115, and 116 were read.

On motion of Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois, the House insisted upon the amendments severally, and agreed to a conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses.

The SPEAKER appointed as conferees on the part of the House Mr. WILLIAMS of Illinois, Mr. DOCKERY, and Mr. HENDERSON of Iowa.

SURVEYOR OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. COBB of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, I desire to present a conference report.

The report was read.

[For conference report see Senate proceedings.]

The SPEAKER. The statement of the House conferees will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

STATEMENT.

The only change in the bill as it passed the House is an increase of $1,320 in expenses for the surveyor's office. The House appropriated $4,000, the conferees agree to $4,320.

Also, to add to House amendment to section 5 the words, "and no plat or survey of land shall be recorded in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia except it be certified to be correct by the surveyor of said District." The Senate agrees to all other House amendments.

J. E. COBB,
G. W. COOPER,
J. A. T. HULL,

Conferees on the part of the House.

The conference report was adopted.

On motion of Mr. COBB of Alabama, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the conference report was adopted was laid on the table.

GENERAL DEFICIENCY BILL.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole for further consideration of the general deficiency bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole. Mr. TAYLOR in the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is ready to rule upon the pending point of order. It is conceded that all the items in the pending amendment are kindred in character, growing out of the same or like transactions, and standing upon an equal footing. The parties named in this amendment were contractors with the Government for carrying the mails at the breaking out of the late civil war. Prior to that time a statute existed which authorized the Postmaster-General to suspend contracts for carrying the mails, and providing that upon such suspension the contractors should be entitled to one month's extra pay. The contracts with the claimants in this case were suspended by the Postmaster-General, and the claim arises in each case for the extra month's pay resulting from such suspension.

In 1874 a statute was enacted directly bearing upon these matters, providing for their examination by the Treasury Department and for their being reported to Congress for consideration. A statute similar in its provisions was enacted in 1878. If this was a bill providing directly for the relief of these claimants, and not a proposition to amend an appropriation bill, the Chair would then, as a member of the House, have to consider the merits and justice of the claims; but the only question for the Chair to consider now is the question whether this is the proper remedy for the claimants to seek.

In view of the fact that this proceeding is not new; in view of what is conceded here, that one at least of these claims has been presented on former occasions for the consideration of the House under conditions exactly similar to those under which the amendment is now presented—that is, offered as amendment to a general deficiency bill and the point of order raised, that it was not germane to such a bill; in view of the fact that at the first session of the Fiftieth Congress, when the claim was first presented, these points were elaborately argued, and the gentleman then presiding over the Committee of the Whole, the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. DOCKERY], having carefully reviewed the authorities and arguments, held that the amendment was not in order; in view of the fact that at the next session, the last session of the Fiftieth Congress, the same claim appeared again, was again offered as an amendment to the general deficiency bill, the point of order was again raised, and it was held that it was not germane to that bill, and the then occupant of the chair, the present Speaker of this House, concurred in the ruling previously made by the gentleman from Missouri, holding that the matter was not germane and was not in order upon a general deficiency bill; in view of these facts, and in view of the further fact that no precedent has been cited contrary to these, the present occupant of the chair would not feel warranted, no matter what his own personal conviction might be, in disturbing this line of unbroken precedents; and he therefore sustains the point of order.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE. I now call for the reading of the next amendment; that in relation to the Bering Sea awards.

The Clerk read as follows:

After line 9, on page 2, insert:

"Bering Sea damages: For the payment to the Government of Great Britain under the agreement reached by exchange of notes of August 21, 1894, in full satisfaction of all demands for damages against the United States growing out of the controversy between the two Governments as to the fur seals in Bering Sea under the award and findings of the tribunal of arbitration at Paris, $25,000."

The CHAIRMAN. The present occupant of the Chair was not presiding at the time this matter was brought up on Saturday, and will be glad to know whether there is a point of order pending.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE. There is not. Mr. Chairman, when general debate on this bill was dispensed with there was an agreement between the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. CANNON] and myself, assented to by the Committee of the Whole, that when one or two particular questions should be reached time should be given for discussion in the nature of general debate. I now ask the gentleman from Illinois whether we can agree to dispose of this question with half an hour's debate on each side.

Mr. CANNON of Illinois. After consultation with my associates I find I can not agree to less than an hour on each side.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE. Very well.

Mr. DINGLEY. It is very likely I shall desire to occupy ten or fifteen minutes.

Mr. CANNON of Illinois. My colleague on the committee had not notified me of his desire for time. I may be able to yield him a part of the hour which will, I presume, be under my control; and perhaps the gentlemen from Kentucky, after consultation, will be willing to yield him a part of his time.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE. I suggest that the gentleman from Illinois give the gentleman from Maine five minutes of his time and I give him five minutes of mine.

Mr. CANNON of Illinois. I shall give him what I can, but I should like to have it understood that if necessary the gentleman from Maine may have ten minutes outside of the two hours.

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE. Very well. Mr. Chairman, we have

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The regular order is the sundry civil appropriation bill.

SURVEYOR OF DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. PROCTOR. I ask to withdraw a conference report on the bill (S. 444) making the surveyor of the District of Columbia a salaried officer, and to provide for more efficient service in the surveyor's office, for the sake of correcting a clerical error. Reference was made to line 4 of one of the amendments, which should have been line 6. I submit the report with the error corrected, and move its adoption.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The report will be read.

The report was read, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 444) making the surveyor of the District of Columbia a salaried officer, and to provide for more efficient service in the surveyor's office, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the House and agree to the same with the following amendments:

In line 6 of section 1, page 1, after the words "shall be," insert "appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia for a term of four years, unless sooner removed for cause, and shall be;" and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 6 of section 1, page 1, after the word "the" where it first occurs in said line, insert "and," and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 1 of section 3, page 2, after the words "per annum," insert "and the salary shall be in the judgment of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia be required for the surveyor's office and operations, at an aggregate expense of not exceeding $400 in any one year." Amend this proposed amendment by striking out "$400" and insert "$500" in lieu thereof; and the Senate agree to the same.

In section 2, page 2, strike out all after the words "per annum," in line 4, down to and including line 13; and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 3 of section 4, page 2, strike out the word "cities" and insert in lieu thereof the word "city," and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 4 of section 4, page 2, strike out the words "and Georgetown;" and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 5 of section 4, page 2, strike out "cities" and insert in lieu thereof the word "city," and the Senate agree to the same.

In line 11 of section 5, page 3, after the word "Columbia," insert "and all records, plans, and other papers or documents now existing or hereafter made and acquired by the office of the surveyor shall be delivered by each surveyor to his successor in office." Amend by inserting after the word "office," and no plat or survey of land shall be recorded in the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia except it be certified to as correct by the surveyor of the said District; and the Senate agree to the same.

In section 8, page 6, strike out all after the word "law," and insert down to and including line 13, in place thereof the following: "Inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed;" and the Senate agree to the same.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on concurring in the report.

The report was concurred in.

SUNDY CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8518) making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes.

The Secretary proceeded to read the bill.

The first amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 2, after line 3, to insert:

For the public building at Charleston, S. C.: For completion of building, $50,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, after line 7, to insert:

In order to provide accommodations for the Government officials in the city of Chicago not occupying the present building, during the erection of the proposed new building, the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to accept for use temporarily any site that may be offered for such use free of cost and rent, and to erect thereon a temporary building, the sum of $200,000 is hereby appropriated, to be immediately available, of which amount the sum of $75,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, may be used for the rental of buildings for one year; said temporary building so erected shall be removed by the Government when said new building is completed and ready for use.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, after line 20, to insert:

In pursuance of the act of Congress of the 31st of January, 1895, the sum of $100,000 is hereby appropriated, for the sum of $25,000, to be used for the completion of the building of which amount the sum of $25,000 is hereby authorized to be expended by the Secretary of the Treasury, to be expended by draughtsmen and skilled service, with such temporary help as may be necessary in the preparation of plans and specifications for the design and construction of the building, and for the purchase of any materials that may be authorized to be used for the purchase of engines, draughtsmen, and other persons employed in the preparation of plans and specifications for any other public buildings.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 3, after line 10, to insert:

For the public building at Fort Dodge, Iowa: For completion of three additional rooms in said building and placing additional dormers in the roof, $1,200, in addition to the balance of the appropriation now available.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 4, after line 8, to insert:

For court-house and post-office at Meridian, Miss.: The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized, if in his discretion he thinks it to be in the public interest to do so, to exchange the site formerly purchased for said building and now owned by the United States for another and more suitable site; provided, That the exchange can be effected without cost to the United States.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 5, after line 23, to insert:

For public building at Richmond, Ky.: For an additional amount for the completion of building, $100,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 6, line 3, after the word "dollars," to strike out:

Provided, That before any work is done upon this building or contract let therefor, a board of three engineer officers of the Army shall be detailed by the Secretary of War to carefully examine the nature of the soil and bed of foundation of the site that has been purchased for said building at San Francisco, and whether the character of the same is proper for said building, and report to the Secretary of the Treasury on or before the last day of July, 1895, the results of their examination, together with an estimate of what will be the cost of making a foundation for said building, and if, in their opinion, the construction of said building shall be proceeded with on said site, the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to proceed with the construction of the building, and to enter into contracts for any part or the whole thereof, within the limit of cost fixed by law; the expenses of such examination and investigation shall not to exceed $5,000, to be paid out of the appropriations made for the erection of said building.

And insert:

Provided, That before any work is done upon this building or contract let therefor, the Secretary of the Treasury shall cause to be carefully examined the nature of the soil and bed of foundation of the site that has been purchased for said building at San Francisco, and whether the character of the same is proper for said building, and report to the Secretary of the Treasury on or before the last day of July, 1895, and what will be the cost of making a foundation for said building, and whether the construction of said building should be proceeded with on said site; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to proceed with the construction of the building, and to enter into contracts for any part or the whole thereof, within the limit of cost fixed by law; the expenses of such examination and investigation shall not to exceed $5,000, to be paid out of the appropriations made for the erection of said building.

Mr. PERKINS. Before this amendment is adopted I ask the Committee on Appropriations to make it mandatory upon the Secretary of the Treasury to have detailed engineer officers of the Army for the purpose of making the examination. Therefore, I move, in line 6, to strike out the words "may detail one or more," and insert in lieu thereof "shall detail three engineer officers."

Mr. COCKRELL. I hope the House will insist upon all of them being army officers. Let it be mandatory upon the Secretary of War, and not a request, that he shall detail one or more. He may not want so many.

Mr. PERKINS. The reason I desire to have the detail made from the corps of Army Engineers is that the Secretary of the Treasury has already detailed two special agents to make an examination of this lot. It is presumable that they were appointed by reason of their political qualifications, rather than of their scientific knowledge of the proper foundation upon which a public building of the Government should be erected. Therefore, to save the President from the importunities of those who desire to make a pleasure trip to the Pacific Coast, I desire that the army officers who are there now, located in San Francisco, who have the confidence of the Government, the confidence of the people, and all who have business with them, be so designated. I insist upon all of them being army officers. Let it be mandatory upon the Secretary of War, and not a request, that he shall detail one or more. He may not want so many.

Mr. PERKINS. The reason I desire to have the detail made from the corps of Army Engineers is that the Secretary of the Treasury has already detailed two special agents to make an examination of this lot. It is presumable that they were appointed by reason of their political qualifications, rather than of their scientific knowledge of the proper foundation upon which a public building of the Government should be erected. Therefore, to save the President from the importunities of those who desire to make a pleasure trip to the Pacific Coast, I desire that the army officers who are there now, located in San Francisco, who have the confidence of the Government, the confidence of the people, and all who have business with them, be so designated. I insist upon all of them being army officers. Let it be mandatory upon the Secretary of War, and not a request, that he shall detail one or more. He may not want so many.

The reading of the bill was resumed.

The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, beginning at the top of page 8, to strike out:

The engineer or officer of the Army or Navy detailed to act as superintendent of the State, War, and Navy building shall also be superintendent of the said post-office building in the city of Washington, when completed, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of the Interior, and the Postmaster-General, who are hereby constituted a commission for the purposes of the care and supervision of said building; said officer shall have charge of said building and of all the engines, machinery, water supply, heating, lighting, and ventilating apparatus, and all elevators and fixtures therein, and all necessary repairs and alterations thereof, as well as the direction and control of such force of engineers, watchmen, laborers, and others as may be engaged about the building or the apparatus under his supervision of the cleaning of the corridors and water-closets, of the approaches, sidewalks, lawns, courtyards, and areas of the building, and of all rooms in the basement which contain the boilers and other machinery, or so much of said rooms as may be indispensable to the proper performance of his duties as herein provided; and the said superintendent, before the completion of said building, shall submit estimates in detail for the salaries of all necessary employees and other expenses for maintaining said building.

The commission herein created for the care and supervision of said building shall, before the completion thereof, detail to the supervision of the same, first, what space therein shall be used by the Washington City post-office, and what bureaus and offices of their respective Departments occupying rented buildings shall be moved into and accommodated in said building, and what space shall be allotted to each; second, what bureaus and offices of their respective Departments occupying public buildings shall be removed, because of overcrowding, and otherwise, into said building.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 9, after line 10, to insert:

To enable the Secretary of the Treasury to repair the roof of the governor's building in Alaska, $500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 9, after line 13, to insert:

To enable the Secretary of the Treasury to select, designate, and procure, by purchase or otherwise, suitable sites and to commence the construction of public buildings thereon, in the city of Cheyenne, the Territory of Wyoming, in Boise City, the capital of Idaho; in the city of Helena, the capital of Montana, and in the city of Annapolis, the capital of Maryland, $75,000. Each of said sites shall contain at least 16,000 square feet of ground, and shall leave an open space around the building to be erected thereon, including streets and alleys, of at least 40 feet; neither of said sites shall cost in excess of $30,000; and neither of said buildings, each of which shall be fireproof, shall cost, including the site, in excess of $120,000.

Mr. KYLE. I should like to know whether the amendment referring to public buildings in four Northwestern States has been approved by some committee of the Senate. May I ask the Senator from Wyoming?

Mr. CAREY. The amendment has been reported favorably, with the exception of Annapolis. I do not know whether there has been a favorable report on that case, but as to the others the proposition has not only been reported favorably, but bills for that purpose have passed the Senate.

Mr. KYLE. There is only one question in regard to the amendment. It provides for the purchase of a site for a building in each of those Western towns at a cost not to exceed $20,000. I know the matter has been under consideration; we have talked about a public building in my own city, and the committee thought it was nothing more than fair and right that the town should contribute the ground for the building. The ground is worth nothing, so to speak, in those Western towns. A whole square can be obtained for a couple hundred dollars. In most places they are willing to give the ground. Here $20,000 is proposed to be appropriated for the site.

Mr. CAREY. It says neither of the sites shall cost in excess of $20,000. It is supposed that it will cost about $15,000 to get a suitable site in the capital city of my own State.

Mr. HALE. Does the Senator from South Dakota, in the statement he has made, refer to a site for a building at the capital of his State?

Mr. KYLE. I venture to say that in the capital of my State a site would be given for a building if they could have one to-day.

Mr. HALE. This provision merely carries out the rule that has been adopted heretofore, to give a public building to the capital of each State. These four cities are capitals of different States.

Mr. KYLE. I understand that, but the ground is not very valuable in those Western towns.

Mr. CAREY. The amendment does not compel the payment of $20,000 for the site. That is the maximum amount.

Mr. BLANCHARD. As a member of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds I wish to say that favorable action by that committee was taken on bills relating to the construction of public buildings at the three places first named, but I have no recollection of any action having been taken on a bill or an amendment proposing a public building at Annapolis, Md. I desire to ask the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations if a bill for the erection of a public building at that place has previously been introduced, or has an amendment proposing such a building been considered by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the Senate.

Mr. COCKRELL. Not so far as I remember.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I see the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] is now present, and I will ask him.

I will state to the Senator from Maryland that the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. KYLE] called attention to the amendment beginning on line 14 of page 9 of the bill, relating to the acquisition of sites for public buildings at the capital of Wyoming, the capital of Idaho, the capital of Montana, and the capital of Maryland. He asked if any previous action had been taken by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds relating to the construction of public buildings at those several places. I stated, as a member of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, that I recollect that action had been taken with reference to the first three, but I did not recollect that action had been taken in reference to the construction of a public building at Annapolis. Thereupon I asked the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations if a bill had ever passed Congress authorizing the construction of a public building at Annapolis, and he said he knew of none. Is it a fact that a bill has or has not passed?

Mr. GORMAN. Yes, such a bill has been passed, but not at this session. I think the Senate has twice passed a bill for a public building at the capital of Maryland. I wish to say a few words to the Senator from Louisiana, if he will permit me to interrupt him, on this point.

Mr. BLANCHARD. Certainly.

Mr. GORMAN. For the second time a provision has come into an appropriation bill for a public building in the capital of the State of Maryland. The Senator from Louisiana has introduced a similar provision was inserted in an appropriation bill in the Senate. Maryland is the only State of the original thirteen States in which there is no public building for post-office and other purposes. We have adopted a rule of providing public buildings for capital cities, and it has been done in every State in the Union except the one stated in the bill. I therefore inserted Annapolis. That is all there is of it.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I understand it is a fact—I ask the Senator from Maryland whether it is or not—that no bill has passed Congress authorizing the erection of a public building at Annapolis in Maryland.

Mr. GORMAN. Not at the present session.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I ask the Senator if any bill has been passed by Congress at any time authorizing the construction of a public building at Annapolis?

Mr. GORMAN. Yes; twice.

Mr. VEST. We reported the bill. I think it was in the last session or the session before that. I wish to say to the Senator from Louisiana—

Mr. BLANCHARD. Just allow me a moment. Was that bill passed?

Mr. VEST. Not at the present session.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I mean at the last session.

Mr. VEST. Either the last session or the session previous to that.

Mr. BLANCHARD. Is the appropriation for that building placed in the pending bill pursuant to that authorization?

Mr. VEST. Not that I know of.

Mr. GORMAN. No, sir.

Mr. VEST. It does not come from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, but I wish to say to the Senator from Louisiana that the rule adopted by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, which was the rule when I went upon the committee sixteen years ago, was that every State in the Union should have at its capital a Federal building. Maryland is to-day the only one of the States, I think, that has not either a public building or legislation looking to that result.

Mr. BLANCHARD. That may be, and I am not challenging the policy of the erection of a public building at State capitals. But I find here an appropriation for a public building at Annapolis, Md., which has not heretofore been authorized by act of Congress, or by act of the Senate, or one of its committees. That appears to be the fact.

My desire was merely to call attention to it because if there is any feature of new legislation or general legislation in the bill the proposition now under discussion is one. It is not my purpose to object to it at all, but to call the attention of the Senate to the fact. I wish merely to emphasize the fact now, because as we proceed in the consideration of the pending bill it may become pertinent.

Mr. GORMAN. All of these four States of the Union are on identically the same footing. There is no law providing for the construction of any one of these buildings, and Annapolis has been put in only because of the rule that has been adopted, to give each one of the States a public building. I state frankly to the Senate that there is no law authorizing it, and if the Senator from Louisiana, under the circumstances, desires to strike out Annapolis, I shall be very glad to have it struck out. Indeed, upon second thought, I did do now as I did at the last session of Congress. I will ask the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations to modify the amendment by striking out Annapolis.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I do not desire to strike it out and have made no such motion or suggestion.

Mr. CALL. I object.

drawing of this provision ought to have left out all after the word "lot," in line 20, and before the word "and," in line 21. If it provides for the conveyance of her title, and her title only, then it is not only subject to a ninety-nine-year lease, but subject to any other claim in equity or any other conveyance that she may have made. If this is done, it would be subject to the remainder, which would go to her heirs, because she has conveyed that away. If the Senator from New Hampshire is correct in his statement of his belief of what this lease contains, she has conveyed everything away, except her right to the rents, issues, and profits for the next ninety-nine years.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BERRY in the chair). The question is on the amendment offered by the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE] to the amendment of the committee. Putting the question. The yeas seem to have it.

Mr. McLAURIN. I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. McLAURIN (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the junior Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON], but I transfer that pair to the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. IRBY], and vote "yea."

Mr. PALMER (when his name was called). As the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. HANSBROUGH], with whom I am paired, is not present, I withhold my vote.

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD]. In his absence I withhold my vote.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. WASHBURN. I am paired on this vote with the Senator from Washington [Mr. WILSON]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. GIBSON. On this question I am paired with the junior Senator from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS], and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. COKE. I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLAN]. Not knowing how he would vote if present, I withhold my vote.

Mr. McLAURIN (after having voted in the affirmative). I announced a transfer of my pair with the junior Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON] to the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. IRBY]. The Senator from South Carolina having since entered the Chamber and voted, I withdrew my vote.

Mr. McLAURIN (after having voted in the negative). I ask if the yeas from Tennessee [Mr. HANCOCK] has voted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He has not voted.

Mr. MORRILL. Then I withdraw my vote, as I am paired with that Senator.

Mr. McLAURIN. I transfer my pair with the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON] to the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. JONES], and will let my vote in the affirmative stand.

The result was announced—YEAS 22, NAYS 29; as follows:

YEAS—22.

So the amendment to the amendment was rejected.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from California [Mr. WHITE] to the committee amendment, which will be read.

The SECRETARY. After the words "United States," in line 21 of the committee amendment, insert:

And also conveying the rent, issues, and profits of said property—

Mr. HALE. I suggest that we insert right there "under said lease."

The SECRETARY—

under said lease, from the date of said purchase.

Mr. HALE. That is right. There is no objection to that amendment.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had agreed to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 4507) for the relief of Witherby & Gaffney, with amendments; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 444) making the surveyor of the District of Columbia a salaried officer, and to provide for more efficient service in the surveyor's office.

WITHERBY & GAFFNEY.

Mr. PASCO. I ask that the action of the House of Representatives on the bill for the relief of Witherby & Gaffney may be laid before the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives on the bill (H. R. 4507) for the relief of Witherby & Gaffney, agreeing to the amendment of the Senate, with amendments.

The first amendment of the House of Representatives was, in line 30 of the first amendment, after the word "aforesaid," to insert:

Provided, That in no event shall a sum exceeding $5,414.28 be allowed against the Government.

The next amendment was, in line 35 of the first amendment, after the word "appropriated," to insert "not exceeding $5,414.28."

Mr. PASCO. The amendments do not essentially change the bill. They are proper amendments, and I ask the Senate to concur in them.

The amendments were concurred in.

POST-OFFICE APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. BLACKBURN submitted the following report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 8252) making appropriations for the service of the Post-Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, having met, after full and free conference have agreed to recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 2, and 1, and agree to the same.

On the committee numbered 3 the committee of conference have been unable to agree.

JO. C. S. BLACKBURN,

A. P. GORMAN,

Managers on the part of the Senate.

JOHN S. HENDERSON,

EDW. J. DUFFY,

E. F. LOUD,

Managers on the part of the House.

The report was concurred in.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendment and ask for a further conference with the House of Representatives. There is only one amendment upon which the conferees have not agreed.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate; and Mr. BLACKBURN, Mr. GORMAN, and Mr. CULLOM were appointed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 8173) making appropriations for current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department and fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes, asked a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and had appointed Mr. HOLMAN, Mr. ALLEN, and Mr. PICKLER managers at the conference on the part of the House.

INDIAN APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. COCKRELL. I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives on the Indian appropriation bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives on the bill (H. R. 8479) making appropriations for current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department and fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes, disagreeing to the amendments of the Senate and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill and amendments.

Mr. COCKRELL. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendments and accede to the request for a conference.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. CALL, Mr. COCKRELL, and Mr. TELLER were appointed.

PROPOSED EVENING SESSION.

Mr. COCKRELL. While the Senate is quite full, I desire to state that about 6 o'clock this evening I shall hope that the Senate will take a recess until 8 o'clock, and then continue in session until 10 or 11 considering the pending bill.

Mr. BLACKBURN. And nothing else.

Mr. COCKRELL. And nothing else.

Mr. GALLINGER. I suggest to the Senator from Missouri to make the recess from 5 or half past 5.

Mr. BLACKBURN (to Mr. COCKRELL). Make it from half past 5 o'clock.

Mr. COCKRELL. Six o'clock.

Mr. GALLINGER. That gives us a very short time.

Mr. HALE. Say half past 5 o'clock.

Mr. COCKRELL. About that time.

Mr. HALE. That is better.

SUNDRY CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8318) making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes.

Mr. PALMER. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE] to the amendment having been rejected, I beg to know if I am now giving the proper construction to the amendment:

Which sum shall be paid by the Secretary of the Treasury to Harriet Stanwood Blaine, her legal representatives or assigns, upon the execution and delivery by her of a quit-claim deed to be approved by the Attorney-General conveying her title to said lot.

I ask now if any Senator is prepared, if the Committee on Appropriations or any other committee of this body is prepared to say that the title of Mrs. Blaine to this property is absolutely perfect? By the terms of the amendment all that she can be required to do is to execute a quit-claim deed, as we say in Illinois. The amendment provides that she shall, by a proper deed, convey her title to the United States. Unnecessarily, I think, the very important question has been delegated to the Attorney-General of inquiring whether her quit-claim deed is in proper form—a duty that might be delegated, I think, to any fairly respectable notary public or justice of the peace. But the Attorney-General is not charged with the duty of investigating her title. We are paying here $150,000 for the quit-claim deed of Mrs. Blaine to this property.

I ask the question, Is any Senator prepared to say that her title is perfect? I think in all the bills that we have passed in relation to the acquisition of property by the United States for the construction of public buildings it is provided that the sufficiency of the title shall be determined by the Attorney-General. In this case we walk by faith. We do not propose to delegate to any person the duty of passing upon the title. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars of the money of the United States Government is proposed by the amendment to be given for the quitclaim deed of Mrs. Blaine. I ask if there is a Senator here who will consent in his own proper person to buy property in that way? Is this $150,000 so much less consequence than the acquisition of a site for a public building in any of the minor towns in any of the States of the Union?

I have said all I desire to say in regard to the condemnation, but I observe that my friend from Delaware [Mr. GRAY] is present, to whose remarks I shall reply briefly. The Senator from Delaware has the reputation of being, as he is in fact, a distinguished lawyer. He has had occasion often, no doubt, to proceed or prepare proceedings, or examine proceedings for condemnation in the courts of his own State, perhaps in the Federal courts also. I ask that any Senator this question. How can answer it if he pleases? Did any lawyer ever prepare a petition for the condemnation of property for public purposes without stating in the bill or petition what the purpose was? I have had very considerable connection with condemnation proceedings in Illinois, and I have always supposed it to be necessary that the distinct and exact public purpose for which property is taken shall be stated. How much it may be contested I am not prepared to say, but I venture to say that no lawyer in this body ever prepared a petition or bill for the condemnation of property for public use without having stated what that use was.

I submit to the Senate and the lawyers of the Senate, if any Senator here was about to prepare, under the pending bill, a petition to a court in the District, what purpose would he indicate as being that for which the Government seeks to acquire the property? Would he say for a Supreme Court building; for the extension of the Department of Justice; or would he state that it was desired or sought to be acquired because it was thought that the theater would be offensive to the President, or that a theater would be injurious to the neighborhood? What would it be? There would be a negative condemnation there—condemned because the owner would employ it for some improper purpose. That seems to me to be the statement of this argument. It is not that the property is needed now, but the public purpose for which this amendment is proposed is because the property may be used offensively to some interest of the public.

Of course, Mr. President, I am deploring the necessity of this attempt to condemn the interests of this lessee. I do not know what the rule of damages would be in such a case. I do not know how to determine the value of the lease. It has been suggested by the Senator from New Hampshire that contracts have been made. I do not know whether that would come within any just rule of condemnation or not. I know what the friends of this measure may define as being of public use. The phrase "public use" is rather negative than otherwise. It is to preserve it from private use, or an improper private use. I say what these purposes are for which these men must give up their rights I do not know.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. May I suggest to the Senator from Illinois, in addition (because I agree fully with what the Senator has been saying as far as I am concerned), that in order to condemn this property it is necessary that a complaint to state not only that the property is desired for public use, but the particular use for which it is desired must be stated. Then if the court hold that that statement designates a public use, that is an issue that is not traversable, but in order to make it an issue that is not traversable it must be stated.

Mr. PALMER. I understand the law to be well settled that where the proper authority has determined upon the appropriation of private property, that is not traversable.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. It is not traversable.

Mr. PALMER. But I understand it must be stated, because the court must proceed without a jury. It is not a question for the jury, but the court must, from the bill or complaint, determine whether the use is public or not.

I wish to submit gravely to the Senator from Delaware if, as a lawyer, he were to-day the Attorney-General of the United States (and he deserves a much better place, for I should much prefer seeing him a judge rather than the Attorney-General), and if he were to undertake to prepare a petition to show the particular use the judge might pass upon, what would he say?

Mr. GRAY. I do not know that the point of the criticism of the Senator from Illinois is just, but I would suggest that the explanation made by the Senator from Iowa [Mr. ALLISON] awhile ago would seem to come within the four corners of a good reason why this language is sufficient for a proceeding in condemnation. The Senator from Iowa has stated that the Government of the United States already owns the vacant corner adjacent to the Department of Justice, and that this lot separates it from a public building or lot of 30 feet away; and that unless the Government of the United States owns the property the lot is now a question it will practically diminish the area of available building space already owned by the United States, because it is a policy pursued invariably, so far as I know, in regard to buildings of the United States in other places than the city of Washington, that there is required to be at least 40 feet space all around a public building, that it may be protected from the risks of fire and may have that area in which to protect itself from encroachment otherwise. So unless we can describe as a public use the acquisition of land that will increase the holding, we have already for the purpose of giving us this required area a public use worthy of consideration. It would seem that the United States is more hampered and handicapped in this matter than we have here supposed it to be, and that from reading the language of the memorial by the lessee, it is the United States that is helpless and not this lessee.

Mr. PALMER. Mr. President, the United States is not helpless, but the public use must be first determined by law. It may be said against this property would be convenient for many purposes, but until this Legislature has declared the public necessity either in express terms or by some necessary implication, no condemnation can take place. I venture to say as a matter of law that no proceeding for the condemnation of the rights of this lessee is possible upon the existing state of the law. Why condemn his interest?

Mr. GRAY. Will the Senator from Illinois allow me?

Mr. PALMER. With great pleasure.

Mr. GRAY. Admitting the force, as I did a while ago, of the criticism in some respects, although I do not think a court would adjudge the petition void or incompetent by reason of not more specifically stating the use, I do think that there ought to be a specific statement of public use; and I propose to insert as an amendment, in line 15, after the word "dollars" and before the word "which," the following:

For the erection of the buildings for the Department of Justice or for the transaction of other public business of the United States.

Mr. PALMER. I am not prepared to say whether that would bring the case within the established legal rules or not.

The SECRETARY. After the word "dollars," in line 15, on page 11, it is proposed to insert:

For the erection of buildings for the Department of Justice or for the transaction of other public business of the United States.

Mr. HALE. I thought that had been adopted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It has not been adopted. The question is on the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HALE. Now, let us have a vote on the amendment of the Senator from California [Mr. WHITE].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question recurs on the amendment proposed by the Senator from California [Mr. WHITE], which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After the word "premises," in line 24 of the amendment, it is proposed to insert:

Or any outstanding interest in the premises, which may not be included in or transferred by a deed as aforesaid, from said Harriet Stanwood Blaine.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the amendment to the amendment.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. VEST. I move, in line 8, to strike out the words "all the right, title, and interest of," and to insert "a fee simple title from," so as to read:

For the purchase of a fee simple title from Harriet Stanwood Blaine.

Mr. HALE. That is precisely what the Senate has already voted upon, and voted down.

Mr. VEST. Let us have the question of order decided. I do not think the Senate has voted that amendment down.

Mr. HALE. It has been voted down once.

Mr. VEST. That amendment has not been offered in these words.

Mr. HALE. Not this amendment, but substantially that proposition. Let us have a vote on it, however. I shall not take up the time of the Senate.

Mr. LINDSAY and Mr. GEORGE called for the yeas and nays. The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GIBSON (when his name was called). I again announce my pair with the junior Senator from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS], and withhold my vote.

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD]. In his absence I withhold my vote.

Mr. PROCTOR (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUP]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. COKE. I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH]. I do not know how he would vote, and I therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. CAFFERY. I am paired with the Senator from Montana [Mr. POWELL].

Mr. CAREY. I desire to inquire whether the junior Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. MITCHELL] has voted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He has not voted.

Mr. CAREY. I withhold my vote, as I am paired with the junior Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. MITCHELL] and do not know how he would vote.

Mr. GALLINGER. The junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH] was called from the Chamber a few moments ago and asked me to pair with him, saying he was in favor of the general proposition. I presume if he were present he would vote "nay" on this amendment, and I should vote "yea."

Mr. BLACKBURN. I desire to inquire whether the senior Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON] has voted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He has not voted.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I am paired with the senior Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON], and withhold my vote in his absence.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I am paired with the Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER].

Mr. BLACKBURN. I am assured that if the senior Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON] were present he would vote "nay." Therefore I will vote. I vote "nay."

So the amendment to the amendment was rejected.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee as amended.

Mr. WHITE. I offer a substitute for the committee amendment.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out all from and including line 8, page 11, down to and including line 10, on page 12, and insert:

That the Secretary of the Treasury be and is directed to acquire by condemnation, in the same manner and in the method provided for the condemnation of certain real estate in the city of Washington by sections 3, 4, 5, and 6 of the "Act to authorize the acquisition of certain parcels of real estate embraced in square No. 823 of the city of Washington to provide an eligible site for the city post-office," approved June 25, 1894, the following parcels of real estate in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, namely: All of lot 9 in square 221, and part of lot 8 in said square adjoining said lot 9, said parcels of land being what is known as the James G. Blaine premises, situated on Lafayette Square, in the city of Washington aforesaid; and for this purpose a sum sufficient is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Mr. WHITE. I desire simply to state that the substitute which I propose is the original amendment suggested by the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY]. It proposes to condemn the interest of everybody in the property without in advance providing for the payment of any specific sum to any part owner.

Mr. HALE. I hope the amendment of the Senator from California will be voted down. We had much better do nothing. There could be nothing more unjust than that, with the clearly defined interest which Mrs. Blaine has, she should be put to the mercy of a jury. I do not believe there are many Senators here who desire to do that. I hope the amendment will be voted down. It would be better to do nothing.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from California [Mr. WHITE] to the amendment of the committee.

Mr. HALE and Mr. VEST called for the yeas and nays, and they were ordered.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CAREY (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. MITCHELL]. Not knowing how he would vote, I withhold my vote.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. GIBSON (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS].

Mr. PERKINS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ROACH]. Not knowing how he would vote upon this amendment, I withhold my vote.

Mr. PETTIGREW (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from West Virginia [Mr. CAMPDEN]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. PROCTOR (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL].

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUP]. Were he present I should vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH]. If he were present he would vote "nay," probably, and I should vote "yea."

the influence of Senators or Congressmen to one appointed by the civil-service methods.

I trust this amendment of the committee will not go into the bill. If in the judgment of the committee they think $60,000 is enough, very well; but I would prefer to have $90,000.

Mr. BATE. Mr. President, I do not think I am amenable to the charge of any personal interest whatever in this matter, as I have not been the subject of any patronage of consequence from that Department. But when I hear it said here, and conceded by all who have spoken, that the head of the Land Office, Judge Lamoreux, is a man of the highest order of integrity, of vigilance, and of economy in the administration of his official duties, it strikes me that we ought to listen to what he says in regard to this matter; and in doing so I am informed through the Senator from Arkansas, who has just spoken, that $120,000 is the lowest amount by which this service can be carried on successfully.

Mr. President, one thing we ought to do, in my opinion, is to discard this law requiring such appointments altogether and withdraw all agents, or we ought to provide for a sufficient number of agents to effect the object for which they are appointed. If that is so, we ought, for this purpose, to give $120,000 instead of adopting the amendment of the committee, which is $60,000. Upon looking over the bill I find that the committee have stricken out $30,000 and inserted $60,000. The other House, after a full and fair investigation of this matter, as I understand, have seen fit to appropriate $90,000 and not $60,000. That would enable the employment of perhaps some thirty agents.

Now, I understand there are only about thirteen employed. In my opinion we had better do away with the altogether, and we are not only to be content, considering the amount of work there is to do, or else we ought to provide for a sufficient number as is required by the Department. There are 600,000 acres of land that belong to the Government, scattered over twenty-seven States and Territories. On the present basis of thirteen agents each of them must look after more than 46,000,000 acres. On the basis of thirty agents, which number can be carried with $90,000, each will then have 20,000,000 acres to protect from depredation and fraud, which is by far too much for any one agent.

Added to that, we find, as has been stated by my colleague, by reference to the report of the Secretary of the Interior, in the last eight years, which, I believe, was the date of the beginning of this law in regard to protecting timber from depredations and to protect from frauds being practiced upon lands and titles, there has been a clean net amount of $109,000 paid into the Treasury by virtue of these agents operating under the law. It is true that in the last four years there has been a deficit of some $200,000, but taking the eight years together there is $109,000, as shown heretofore, which actually came into the Treasury from this source.

It is only in this case, but Congress has recently legislated so as to require greater vigilance by creating forest reservations and granting permission to cut timber in certain cases. That has to be guarded and watched, and it increased the necessity for greater number of agents. In addition to all this, we have the recommendation of the Secretary of the Interior concurring in what is said by Judge Lamoreux. We have, in addition to that, the President, who has in his message recommended this. The President says that the force is inadequate, and that there should be a larger appropriation made to carry out the purpose and intent and spirit of the law.

That being so, Mr. President, I am inclined to support the amendment offered by the Senator from Arkansas. I do not believe these men are any more useful, as has been stated by the Senator from Maryland, as useless officers, as has been shown by them here; and I shall vote for the purpose of giving a greater number, so as to increase those officers, for I believe them to be necessary to the interest of the Government.

Furthermore, as to the point made by the Senator from Colorado, the remedy is right here. If a few bad men have gone into that country under the appointment of the Administration, and have acted badly, it is no reason that all of them should be so. I have the acquaintance of one or two whom I know to be very high and honorable and capable men. One of them is from my own State; and he informs me that the process which was going on there in investigating these matters has been stopped, and stopped right at a point that is dangerous to the Government; and the appropriation ought to be made so as to complete the work that is already on hand.

To remedy the objection made by the Senator from Colorado, there is a clause in this very paragraph of the bill that puts it under the civil service. Then if the parties who are there are objectionable, here is the relief in the very amendment to the bill itself. I do not believe in the civil service going on so far as to take out of this country, but I believe in the presence of by the committee, and it gives the remedy for the evil spoken of by the Senator from Colorado.

He should not object, while I do, to putting these agents under civil service rules.

Taking it all together, when I look at these strong facts, that there are 600,000 acres of land, that there are only 13 agents, and that some 36, 40, or 50 more, in all, would be needed, I think we ought either to wipe out the law or give that which is required by the men who stand at the head of the Land Department, and who is supposed to know what is necessary, and in whom we have faith and believe him to be economical, honest, faithful, and capable. Therefore I shall favor the amendment of the Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. TELLER. Mr. President, I do not care to continue this discussion. I believe in the last Congress we appropriated $60,000 for this service. The committee thought that it was ample, and proposed to keep the appropriation the same. At the session before we appropriated $40,000.

The Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY] has stated very clearly, and I will not repeat it, why we do not now need these great appropriations. It is because of the changed conditions of the land system and the timber system. In my judgment thirteen men will select the land, for the purpose of the law, and very well satisfied that with $60,000 we shall get better service and better men than we would get with $120,000.

I have not any fault to find with the present force so far as I know anything about it. I have not heard any complaint of it, but I do know that when a great number of them are employed you are liable to have the same complaint that has been very justly made here on the floor of the Senate. That is not the fault of any official. Nobody condemns the Secretary of the Interior when these men are spoken of disparagingly, because he can not know. I have had some experience in the matter. I found after I had gone out of office that I had had just as bad men in office under me in this service as anybody ever did have, I think. I believe that in the present condition, considering the changed conditions of the people to the timber of the land, and by reason of the enactment of new laws, $60,000 is better now than $120,000 was five years ago. I think it is ample for all practical purposes, provided the Department will select good men.

I repeat I am not complaining that the men who are in the service now are not good, for I do not know anything against them. I now are not good, for I do not know anything against them. I have an idea that a small force is always more efficient than a large one, and that when there are only a half dozen men to be selected the Department will give a great deal more attention to the matter and select them with a great deal more care than they would if there were twice that number to be appointed, and they will be quite as efficient.

A few years ago there were large depredations in the lumber regions which showed the great recoveries. There never was any recovery in my section of country that amounted to anything at all. There were two or three cases where railroad companies went in and cut timber. The railroad companies were assailed and judgments rendered, but the Supreme Court declared afterwards that the railroad companies had under the law the right to cut the timber, and those cases were reversed.

There was a great deal of complaint under former Administrations, I think much more so than now, as to the abuses by these agents. Last year we had an appropriation of $60,000, and everything went well. I believe the stealing of timber from the public land has practically stopped. There is very little of it done now. I do not think it is safe to entirely dispense with the services of some of these people. There should be somebody in the country who can keep a general supervision and see that the depredations do not go on. No complaint, I think, has been made that these people have been capable of finding out all the depredations which have been committed, and when they do find them out they have nothing further to do with them, except to turn them over to the legal department of the Government.

Mr. VEST. Mr. President, I should like to suggest to the Senator from Arkansas, for I partially agree with him in this matter, that it would be better for us to take a vote upon agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Committee on Appropriations. For myself, I should like to support the appropriation in the bill, but I do not see one other abuse in regard to spoiliations upon public land exist in the State of Montana. I saw myself a few years ago in that State, then a Territory, canyon after canyon absolutely denuded of every stick of timber in it by portable sawmills belonging to a great lumber company called the Montana Improvement Company. Millions of feet of lumber were cut and exported from that Territory and the Government of the United States never recovered a dollar, and never will recover a dollar.

Mr. TELLER. I think the Senator is mistaken. I think one of the judgments the Government recovered was against that company.

Mr. VEST. I believe a small judgment was recovered, but I happen to know, because a friend of mine sent me not long since, in newspaper clippings published at Missoula, in Montana, an account of enormous ravages upon the public timber in that vicinity, and appealed to me as a Senator whom he knew personally to devise some legislation that would stop this outrage upon the public domain.

Mr. BELKY. If the Senator from Missouri will permit me, I wish to call his attention and the attention of the Senate to the charge of Judge Laughlin, in New Mexico, printed in a New Mexico paper of January 7. Judge Laughlin says:

The depredations of trespassers on the Government domain, devastating the timber growing thereon, is becoming a most threatening menace to the forests and limited timber lands of New Mexico. This seems to be a growing evil and a source of revenue to those engaged in the illegitimate traffic.

That is from Judge Laughlin's charge to the grand jury in New Mexico.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I should like to ask the Senator from Arkansas if there is not a United States attorney in New Mexico.

Mr. BERRY. I presume so.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Any citizen who is aggrieved can go to the United States attorney and have an information and indictment found. It is not necessary to have as a middleman a depredation agent before you can punish a depredator.

Mr. VEST. I take it for granted you must exercise the ordinary instrumentalities in order to institute litigation. It goes without saying that in these subordinate officials you will find bad men, men who can be bought, and men who do not discharge their duty, but if you adopt the objection made by the Senator from Colorado as to this class of officials you stop all attempts on the part of the Government to reform abuses that exist in the public service. You must use human instrumentalities, and as a matter of course you frequently find them imperfect and even corrupt. I have not the slightest doubt that some good, and a good deal of evil, has come from this system, but you can not find a better one if you use the same. To change the entire system, and handing over the public lands of the country to bad men and corrupt men, who seek to use the timber for their own purposes. That great corporations have abused this system there can be no doubt. But I simply rose to say that I should like to vote for the provision as it came to us from the House.

Mr. BERRY. Very well, then; if there is no objection upon the part of those who agree with me, I shall be glad to withdraw the amendment and take the vote on the amendment proposed by the committee, which I hope will be voted down. If the amendment is voted down it leaves the appropriation $90,000, as proposed by the other House. I do not want to detain the Senate on the matter. If the Senator from Missouri and others who are friendly to it think $90,000 is enough, very well, I withdraw the amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Senator from Arkansas is withdrawn.

[Mr. CALL addressed the Senate. His remarks are withheld for revision and will appear hereafter.]

Mr. PETTIGREW. Mr. President, I am inclined to think, on the whole, that special timber agents have done more good than harm. It is true that men have been appointed who have levied blackmail, and they have become very unpopular in the Western States; but, on the whole, I believe that these timber agents have checked in a great degree the destruction of the forests, and therefore conferred a great benefit upon that country. I think their powers should be enlarged, and that a law should be passed by Congress to change the law as to all the forests of this country, withdrawing the land from sale, that the trees should be classified, only the ripe trees that will grow no larger or better cut, and the younger trees preserved.

Under the present system great mining and milling corporations cut down whatever timber they choose to use, leaving the branches and tops, which shortly become dry, and after a few years are blown through the forests, destroying all the small trees, and as there are no large trees to furnish seed the utter destruction of the forest follows. As much timber can be cut as is cut now and the forests maintained in their primitive strength and splendor and never destroyed. We can put men in charge of these forests, selling the timber, selling the stumps, and cutting only the trees which are so large that they can grow no longer, destroying the tops and the limbs and giving the young trees a chance to grow, preserving trees which are too thin, and thus perpetuate the forests forever.

It seems to me the most important duty we can perform with regard to the forests in the arid region, where timber is so scarce and so valuable, is to enact laws for their preservation, as I have indicated, selling the timber fit to be cut and using the proceeds to preserve the smaller trees and replant the forest, and thus confer a great benefit upon the whole country, without any expense whatever to the Government. The first law I introduced in the Senate provided for the trees in all the forests of France to be measured and classified, and only those of a certain size were marked and cut each year, and thus her forests were preserved. The system which he inaugurated has been continued to this day to the great benefit of France, preserving her wealth in this direction. So jealous was he of this system, so determined that it should be carried out, that he supervised the Government. The first law I introduced in the Senate indicated where mistakes had been made in the selection of trees for cutting, and he severely criticized his agents if trees below the size indicated by the law were selected or destroyed.

Napoleon was the world's greatest civil administrator, and we can well profit by his example and preserve forever these grand forests from destruction and confer a great blessing upon posterity.

Mr. VILAS. Mr. President, I wish to make a few observations in respect to this matter, which I think will be entirely devoid of any of the feeling which has been exhibited from various quarters on both sides of the Chamber.

We have, as has been said, a very large body of public land scattered through a great many States, covered with valuable timber. The question is, Whether that land ought to be protected from depredations, and, if so, by what means can it be best protected? That very great depredations are made upon it is proven by the recoveries, which represent probably but a very small part of the actual injury inflicted, as was well said by the Senator from Missouri.

We now have a system of appointing officers or agents, who go about over the public lands seeking to discover the guilty authors of the depredations upon timber.

Is there any better system to be devised? If not, ought not this system to be maintained? We have been reckoning here this morning the amount of recoveries as contrasted with the expenditures made, which represent a very poor way, however, to reckon the value of the agents employed. They ought to do a great deal more service in protecting the timber lands from depredations than merely in recovering damages for depredations made. If it be true that the recoveries of actual damages far exceed the expenditures made, how much that tends to prove the necessity for maintaining a system of this kind. Until some better system can be suggested—I never heard of any better one being proposed—why should we not maintain this one fairly? If we are to appoint special agents, if we are to undertake to maintain this system, to submit it to the government of the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the General Land Office, we ought to deal with them in respect to those as we deal in other matters with respect to other officers of the Department. We take their judgment and reason. Here is a case in which it is proposed to give to the Department in such an important matter as the recovery of the value of the timber as estimated to be absolutely necessary in order to protect the public property from common plunder. It certainly seems to me that the House of Representatives made a very moderate provision, and I, for one, trust that the amendment which the committee has proposed will not be agreed to, but that the provision which the other House has made, moderate as it is, little more than one-third of what the Department esteemed necessary, will be allowed to remain.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment reported by the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. GORMAN. I call for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BUTLER (when his name was called). I have a general pair with the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON]. Not knowing how he would vote on this question, I withhold my vote.

Mr. VOKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. DAVIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE].

Mr. LODGE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from New York [Mr. HILL]. Not knowing how he would vote on this question, I withhold my vote.

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUR]. Not knowing how he would vote, I withhold my vote.

The roll call was completed.

Mr. HIGGINS (after having voted in the affirmative). I inquire if the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. MCPHERSON] has voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted.

Mr. HIGGINS. I withdraw my vote, not knowing how that Senator would vote.

Mr. VILAS. I have a general pair with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL]. Not knowing how he would vote, I withhold my vote.

Mr. McLAURIN. I desire to say that my colleague [Mr. GEORGE] is unable to attend the sessions of the Senate to-day by reason of sickness.

The result was announced—yeas 39, nays 25; as follows:

So the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BERRY. I give notice that I reserve the amendment which has just been offered for a separate vote in the Senate.

I desire to make the point of order on the next amendment in regard to putting these officials under the civil-service law. The question was decided the other day upon the same point. The Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. Lodge] offered an amendment to put consuls of the United States under the civil-service law, and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. Cockrell], as I remember, made the point of order against it, and the amendment of the Senator from Massachusetts was held not to be in order. I make that point against the amendment which is proposed to place these officers under the civil-service law.

Mr. DUBOIS. I desire to offer an amendment as a substitute for the amendment now under consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the point of order made by the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. Berry] be acted upon, and that will end the question, I think. The amendment changes existing law.

Mr. HARRIS. It is general legislation.

Mr. STEWART. Let the substitute of the Senator from Idaho [Mr. Dubois] be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The proposed amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 70, line 12, it is proposed to strike out all after the word "selected" and insert "from and serve in the States from which they are appointed."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That is the amendment proposed by the Senator from Idaho. The amendment reported by the committee will now be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 70, line 12, after the words "shall be," the Committee on Appropriations report to insert "selected under the civil service law, rules, and regulations, and shall be," so as to make the proviso read:

Provided, That agents and others employed under this appropriation shall be selected under the civil service law, rules, and regulations, and shall be allowed per diem, subject to such rules and regulations, as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, in lieu of subsistence, at a rate not exceeding $3 per day each and actual necessary expenses for transportation.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Arkansas please restate his point of order.

Mr. BERRY. I make the point of order that this amendment is general legislation on a general appropriation bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What was the suggestion of the Senator from Missouri?

Mr. COCKRELL. My suggestion was that the amendment is subject to the point of order, being general legislation.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair has no doubt about that, but, and the point of order is sustained. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Idaho [Mr. Dubois], and the amendment proposed by him will be stated.

Mr. GORMAN. That amendment is out of order now.

Mr. DUBOIS. Then I will offer my amendment as an original amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The committee amendments are not all disposed of, the Chair will state to the Senator. The next committee amendment will be stated. The Chair will recognize the Senator subsequently.

The SECRETARY. On page 71, in line 11, before the word "thousand," the Committee on Appropriations propose to strike out "one hundred and seventy-five" and insert "three hundred;" so as to read:

For surveys and reserves of public lands, $300,000, at rates not exceeding 39 per linear mile for standard and meander lines, $7 for township, and $45 for section lines.

It is proposed by the Senator from Idaho [Mr. Dubois] to strike out of the committee amendment, in line 11, the words "three hundred" and insert "four hundred."

Mr. DUBOIS. I do not feel like detaining the Senate with any argument in regard to this amendment. I think every Senator here will agree that there should be a larger appropriation for surveys of public lands. I know the Committee on Appropriations think so, and there never has been a time when the Senate has not voted an increase of this item.

From my own State alone petitions have come from men living on farms which have not been surveyed, but have been cultivated, and which would use up more than $80,000 during the next year. These petitions are from men living on farms which they have cultivated. Out of this appropriation of $300,000 our share fairly would not be more than twenty-two or twenty-three thousand dollars. We should appropriate at least a million dollars a year for this purpose, in order to the advantage of the Government to do so. When those lands are surveyed they are taxed. In their present condition neither the General Government nor the States nor the counties derive any benefit from them. When they are surveyed the Government gets the final payment of $1 an acre. The expenditure for the survey comes back to the Government, and is to its advantage in every direction.

I trust the Senate will vote in this appropriation of an additional $100,000, and that the Committee on Appropriations will sustain it in conference.

Mr. SQUIRE. Mr. President, I never could understand why Congress should not be willing to make sufficient appropriations for the survey of the public lands, so that they may be occupied, and that settlers may obtain title to them. There is every reason for wanting the people who are congesting in the great cities to go to the West and establish themselves there and take up lands and make them their homes in a legitimate way. Still, there seems to be an almost insuperable inability to secure sufficient appropriations to have these surveys made.

Mr. President, according to the statement of the surveyor-general of the State of Washington there were last year 8,523,838 acres of public lands in the State of Washington which were occupied, but which were unsurveyed. Just think of it. These settlers or squatters are doing nothing but the action of the Government to survey that land; they can not get a title; they go on from year to year, hoping and waiting for the Government to survey this land. They are already occupying the land, but can get no title to it.

What sense is there in continuing this policy? It is true we have in some years appropriated fairly reasonable amounts; but then again we relapse into merely insipid provisions. As was well stated some time ago in the last session by the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, there was appropriated in the year 1885, $350,000; for the year 1886 there was appropriated $300,000; for the year 1887 there was appropriated $50,000; for the year 1888 the appropriation was $50,000; for the year 1889, $100,000; for the year 1890, $200,000; for the year 1891 we appropriated $425,000; for the year 1892, $400,000; and for the year 1893, $375,000; and for the fiscal year 1894, $200,000. That appears in the statement of the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. President, what about the receipts of money from the sale of public lands? It appears that during about eight years, from 1886 to 1893, inclusive, the sale of public lands in the United States amounted to over $50,000,000, upon an expenditure for the surveys of only $1,790,000.

Certainly this is a profitable business for the Government. Besides, after sale by the Government these lands become tax-paying. Does it not appear that it is a proper thing for the Government to provide the settlers to an adequate extent with means of obtaining their homes—that is, as to the technical mode of securing title to the land?

It appears from the Land Office reports for 1892 and 1893 that there were received from the sales of public lands in the State of Washington in 1893 $453,059, and that the net proceeds above the expenses of the sale of public lands in that State in the same year were $401,399. There are net proceeds of over $400,000 in one year. In 1892 the gross receipts from the sale of public lands in the State of Washington were $456,432 and the net receipts in that year were $440,391. So it appears with reference to other States. But I speak especially in regard to my own State, because in that State there have been the greatest sales of public lands of any State in the Union.

It appears that the receipts from public lands in the State of Montana in 1893 were $506,150, and the net receipts in that State for the same year were $274,013. In the State of Wyoming the gross receipts were $90,610 and the net receipts $78,495. In Idaho the gross receipts were $162,230 and the net receipts $138,147. In Oregon the gross receipts were $122,600 and the net receipts $380,235. In Utah the gross receipts were $91,457 and the net receipts $81,387.

In the State of Colorado the gross receipts were $993,347, and the net receipts $255,881. It will be seen that the net amount received from the sale of public lands in the State of Washington alone in 1893, and the same is true of 1892, was largely in excess of the entire amount appropriated for the surveys of public lands in the whole of the United States.

I do not think it is necessary to argue this question any longer, but I appeal, in behalf of the people of my State, who want to be able to get title to the land on which they have already settled, for an adequate amount. As the Senator from Idaho [Mr. Dubois] has well stated, there ought to be a million dollars appropriated annually for the surveys of public lands.

Some of the other States have had more money expended in them relatively than the State of Washington. I do not know but that there ought to be some system of division of the money better than that heretofore adopted. At least $50,000 is required for surveys in the State of Washington this year. I am assured that surveys in the State of Washington have not been ahead of the actual needs of the settlers of that State, as 39 per cent of the vacant lands in that State are occupied by bona fide settlers, while 76 per cent of all its surveyed lands are so occupied.

I have before me a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of the city of Seattle, Wash., setting forth at considerable length the reasons for desiring an increase in the amount of money for the survey of public lands, specifically stating that the bona fide settlers in various parts of the State are clamoring for surveys, as in the western ends of Jefferson and Chittenden counties and in the Grays Harbor region at the southwest corner of the State; and it is stated there that there is a large demand for surveys of public lands in the county of Okanogan and Stevens County, in eastern Washington. The same urgent needs exist as to other portions of my State. The petition concludes in these words:

Feeling that the demands of these homebound thrifty and courageous workers should be met with reasonable consideration from our Government and that

The service is older than the Navy, five years older, and it is no discredit to the Navy to say that it is the equal in importance of the duties it is called upon to perform. There were read letters yesterday which showed how the lives of these men were in danger in every storm upon the ocean which beats upon our coast; how they saved thousands of lives. If you will go back to the history of this country you will find that in the first war, the war of 1798 to 1801, with the French, there were eight of these cutters acting under the Navy in the United States service. In the Seminole war there were ten of them in the service. In the Mexican war there were ten or twelve. In the war of 1812, in the civil war, in every war this country has fought, one of the important arms of the war service has been that of the revenue marine of the country, and it has in every war, too, been conspicuous. They were called upon to destroy the pirates. They have been called on for the last half-dozen years to protect the seals. Their service is more perilous than any service on the sea in the Navy.

Now, remember, too, Mr. President, that these men have not shore duty; that these men are compelled to beat sea in every storm; that they have no homes except on board their vessels; that their lives are in constant and daily peril.

It may be said in reply that this is an arm of the civil service and that there ought not to be a retired list. Mr. President, in 1799 the following law was passed:

The revenue cutters shall, whenever the President so directs, cooperate with the Navy, during which they shall be under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy, and the expenses thereof shall be defrayed by the Navy Department.

I have just said, in every war, they had been ordered by the President of the United States to enter the service under the Navy.

Mr. BUTLER. That is the law now.

Mr. FRYE. That is the law now, and it has been the law since 1799.

Mr. GRAY. They are in the Bering Sea service.

Mr. FRYE. They are in the Bering Sea service now.

Mr. GRAY. And controlling.

Mr. FRYE. They are in constant service, Mr. President. As I said, in every war the President has ordered them in the service of the United States. If you will look at the statutes you will find they provide for pensions when they are disabled while in the naval service and for promotions. How can this be compared to any civil service of the United States? It is essentially a war service, and it is an adjunct of an annex of the Navy whenever ships of war are required for naval service in battle.

Mr. GRAY. In military service?

Mr. FRYE. In military service.

Now, both Secretary Chandler and Secretary of the Navy Tracey reported in favor of the transfer of this arm of the service to the Navy. The Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY] has charge of the bill here. For two Congresses we fought in the Senate to transfer this service to the Navy in order to save it from its crippled condition, and we were opposed in seeking to make that transfer. It was urged that it belonged under the Secretary of the Treasury; that it ought not to be transferred; and the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL] and the Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN], distinguished and influential as they are, succeeding in defeating it.

Mr. GRAY. By preventing a vote?

Mr. FRYE. By preventing a vote. Still the crippled condition continues. Now here is a chance to do our duty and to save this service.

The Senator from California [Mr. HUNTER] suggests to me that our ships were lost in the Arctic Ocean; this service was called upon to rescue and to search for them. It is called upon in every occasion of peril.

The Secretaries of the Treasury for twenty-five years have called the attention of the Congress to the condition of this service and have insisted that Congress should put these men on the retired list, and yet Congress has been deaf. Secretary Richardson, when Secretary of the Treasury, called the attention of Congress to it.

Mr. LINDSAY. What was the report of the Committee on Commerce?

Mr. FRYE. In favor of it. The bill is on the Calendar, and a similar bill has been reported favorably in the other House. I understand that 160 or 170 Members of the House signed a paper asking a day to consider the bill.

Secretary Folger called attention of Congress to it in 1881. He says:

The service is seriously embarrassed by the large and constantly increasing number of officers who, through old age or physical disability, have become unequal to the performance of the duties.

He asked Congress to place these officers on the retired list. That was in 1881. Secretary Sherman also says:

The operations of the Revenue-Cutter Service are seriously embarrassed and its efficiency impaired through the want of some provision of the character proposed in the communication referred to.

That was a communication in favor of retiring these officers. He says:

A similar measure was recommended by my predecessors in their several annual reports for the years 1871, 1872, 1873, and 1876. The necessity for the relief contemplated increases with time, and is greater now than when the recommendations referred to were made. The number of line officers of the service is limited by the law to one of each grade for each revenue vessel. The exigencies of the service require several of its officers to be constantly engaged upon special service, and so forth.

Secretary Carlisle sent a communication to the very last Congress, in which he called attention to the fact that this service was so terribly crippled that something must be done. And he said that if nothing could be done he must send these old men, who had served their country for fifty years, perhaps, over the hill to the poorhouse. No Secretary of the Treasury desires to do that. Secretary Carlisle sent only day before yesterday to the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations a letter asking him to place this amendment on one of the appropriation bills, so that this service might be saved. He says that letter.

The efficiency of the Revenue-Cutter Service has already been seriously impaired on account of the inability of a large proportion of its officers to perform active duty, and the Department has been frequently much embarrassed in its efforts to secure competent and experienced officers of proper grade to conduct important operations for the enforcement of the customs and other laws.

I beg, therefore, to recommend the adoption of the proposed amendment.

Now, Mr. President, I can say nothing more. Surely the Senate of the United States, from what I have said (and there is not a word of it open to contradiction), can see the absolute necessity, if this important and valuable branch of the service is to be preserved, of doing something now and on the appropriation bills.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. President, as the Senator from Maine has said, some three or four years ago I united with the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL] and with other Senators in opposing the measure which would have put the Revenue-Marine Service under the Navy. It was a bad measure. It seemed so to me in every aspect in which it was presented to my mind. But the proposition now made meets with my hearty approval.

There is no branch of the civil or military or naval service of the United States that is more valuable to the country at large than this force. It has been engaged since the beginning of the Government in protecting the revenue, in saving lives, and in rendering a great variety of service that could not possibly fall within the line of the Navy. It is a peculiar service. It is not a naval service, but it is a mercantile service. It is a service organized to protect the Treasury on the ocean, at the ports of the United States. It has been composed from the beginning of hardy, able, and brave men; men, as my friend from Maine says, who have been distinguished in war as well as in peace.

There is no part of the naval service that is more valuable or more useful, and it is used on every occasion whatever, when a naval force is probably not adapted to the peculiar service. It is used now in connection with Alaska, and it is used in all branches of the naval service, but it is a distinct body of men.

There is no reason in the world why the officers who perform such important duties should not have the same privilege of retiring at a suitable age and of being protected, opening the door by their retirement to junior officers in the full vigor of life. The proposition, so far as I can appreciate it, meets with my hearty approval. It is very unlike the measure that was proposed two or three years ago.

I shall therefore vote for this amendment with the greatest pleasure. I believe it will be a valuable aid to this important branch of the service. This is all I desire to say in regard to it.

Mr. COCKRELL. Mr. President, I shall make the point of order on the amendment, but I reserved the point of order because I did not want to cut off Senators from a plain statement of the case. I desire simply to say in reply that this is as much a branch of the civil service as the collectors of internal revenue and the deputy collectors whose lives are endangered in the suppression of illicit distilling.

This is just as much a branch of the civil service of the United States as the ocean mail service, and those who go upon the high seas in charge of the mails which are transported to and from our country. I am opposed to it in principle. It is the first step towards a civil pension list. I am astonished that the Secretary of the Treasury and other officers approve and indorse and recommend the establishment of a civil pension list, for that is practically what this proposed establishment is. It is giving to this corps the right of retirement upon three-fourths pay, and then follows the right to pension.

Mr. GRAY. Will the Senator from Missouri allow me?

Mr. COCKRELL. With pleasure.

Mr. GRAY. I interrupt the Senator, as he has given notice he will make a point of order immediately, and I shall not have an opportunity of saying what I would like to say. The statement of the Senator has just made seems to me to be the object of the point of all the criticism that can be made or has been made, so far as I know, upon this proposition. I would remind the Senator and the Senate that the only matter that distinguishes this from the other military service of the United States is that it is put where it ought not to be, under one of the civil departments of the Government. But this service itself in every other Government of the world, and, as far as we are aware, is a part of the military arm of that Government. In England it is a part of the navy, and is entitled there the coast guard. In France it is a part of their military service. It is an essential feature of that service in this country; it is as much a military service as that of the Navy itself.

Mr. COCKRELL. Now, Mr. President, what do they do? It is for the protection of the revenue, just as the Senator from Ohio says. It is no more for the protection of the revenues than the internal-revenue collectors or customs officers—not one particle. I know the effort has been made to transfer them, and thereby make them a part of the permanent Navy and give them the right to pensions and to retirement.

This amendment is legislation pure and simple. It is to make a revised list for the first time in the history of this country for officers of the civil service, the Revenue-Cutter Service, those who are simply engaged in protecting the Treasury from false importations. They are here in this port, they are there in that port, and they have an easy time, just as much so as the collectors of customs, except that they have the greater privilege of sailing all around the coast. It is true when war comes they are called into it, and so are all civilians of the United States liable to be called into it, and so are all the other civil officers. There is no distinction to be drawn.

If this is not general legislation upon an appropriation bill there can not be any. I make the point of order against the amendment to the amendment.

Mr. GORMAN. I trust the Senator from Missouri will not make a point of order on the amendment.

Mr. COCKRELL. I am bound to make it.

Mr. GORMAN. I hope he will allow a vote of the Senate upon the proposition. Will the Senator withdraw it?

Mr. COCKRELL. I will withdraw it for the Senator to make remarks, but I shall renew it when he concludes.

Mr. GORMAN. Mr. President, a very determined effort has been made during the last Congress and the present to put this service exclusively under the Navy Department, which I have opposed. I believe it ought to be retained in the Treasury Department for various reasons. The naval officers ought to have nothing to do with the execution of the customs laws. But the justice of making some provision for the officers of this service is so perfectly clear that it seems to me there ought not to be the slightest hesitation on the part of the Senate to do it. We are appropriating now in this very bill for the Revenue-Cutter Service, and have been for the last year or two. The question came up yesterday on the appropriation to construct a revenue cutter on the Pacific Coast. Those steamers are being constructed now. They are practically war vessels, and they are more effective for the service south and in the Pacific and on the Atlantic than the cruisers we have built which have cost millions of dollars.

In examining this very question in connection with the Navy, I find that the opinion of the best officers in the service to-day is that the great want of the service is vessels of this class. In time of war they are of as immense service. They can do this coasting without being put in dry dock every five or six months. One of these vessels will last twelve months or two years without being scraped off. The testimony of the officers is that they are most efficient vessels in every respect, and the Navy is most anxious to duplicate some of them for their service.

At first they wanted the whole organization in their corps, so that nobody could enter it except through the Naval Academy. Mr. President, this is the only branch of the service that relates to war that the sons of fishermen and watermen, the captains who are thoroughly equipped for the service and have grown up from generation to generation in it, can enter the national service and serve not only in time of peace but during time of war. I do not wish to see that door closed by transferring the service to the Navy Department, but I do want to see provision made, as is made in the Navy, so that when they are called upon for some relief may be given them, and it may be kept an efficient service.

Mr. COCKRELL. Renew the point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FAULKNER in the chair). The Senator from Missouri has made a point of order against the amendment of the Senator from Maine, which point of order the Chair submits to the Senate. Senators who are of the opinion that the amendment of the Senator from Maine is in order will say "aye."

[Putting the question.] Those of a contrary opinion "no." The ayes have it.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let us have the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HILL (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE].

Mr. McPHEE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Delaware [Mr. HIGGINS].

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. FRITCHARD]. In his absence I withhold my vote.

Mr. QUAY (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN], and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHORE]. If he were present, I should vote "aye."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. DUBOIS. I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

The result was announced—yeas 46, nays 13; as follows:

So the amendment to the amendment was decided to be in order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question recurs on the adoption of the amendment to the amendment.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question now is on the amendment of the committee as amended.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. On page 65, at the end of line 5, an amendment comes in proposed by the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN] will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After line 3, on page 65, it is proposed to insert:

Twenty on sugar. That there shall be paid by the Secretary of the Treasury to the producers and manufacturers of sugar in the United States from maple sap, beets, sorghum or sugar cane grown or produced within the United States, who complied with the provisions of the bounty law as contained in Schedule E of the tariff act of October 3, 1890, a bounty of 2 cents a pound on all sugars testing not less than 80 by the polariscopic and 1 cent a pound on all sugars testing less than 80 and not less than 80 degrees by the polariscopic, manufactured and sold by them from October 1, 1891, to the 28th of August, 1895, inasmuch as the bounty has previously been paid, and for this purpose the sum of $238,299.08 is hereby appropriated, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

There shall be paid to those producers who complied with the provisions of the bounty law as contained in Schedule E of the tariff act of October 1, 1890, by filing the notice, application for license and bond thereon required, prior to July 1, 1891, and who would have been entitled to receive a license as provided for in said act a bounty of eight tenths of a cent per pound on the sugars actually manufactured and produced in the United States testing not less than 80 degrees by the polariscopic from beets, sorghum or sugar cane grown or produced within the United States during that part of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, comprised in the period commencing August 28, 1891 and ending June 30, 1895, both inclusive, and for this purpose the sum of $5,000,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary, hereby appropriated. Provided, That no bounty shall be paid to any person engaged in refining sugars which have been imported into the United States or produced in the United States upon which the bounty herein provided has already been paid or applied for.

The bounty herein authorized to be paid shall be paid upon the presentation of such proof of manufacture and production as shall be required in each case by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury and under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury.

And for the payment of such bounty the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to draw warrants on the Treasurer of the United States for sums as shall be necessary, which sums shall be certified to him by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, as aforesaid, and shall be paid to the producers of sugar, or to any person as aforesaid upon any quantity of sugar less than 500 pounds.

For examination of claims and ascertaining the amount due and the prevention of frauds in relation to the bounty herein provided for, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue is hereby authorized to employ two internal revenue agents in addition to those already provided for and upon the same terms as to compensation.

And if any person or persons shall be guilty of any offense who shall with intent to defraud apply for or receive the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine not exceeding $5,000 or be imprisoned for a period not exceeding five years, or both, in the discretion of the court.

Mr. MILLS. I make the point of order on that amendment that it is general legislation on an appropriation bill.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I simply desire to say a word—I have no objection to meeting the question of the point of order—

Mr. MILLS. I make the point of order, but I will wait to hear from my friend from Kentucky.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I do not propose to discuss the amendment at this time, nor at all, unless it is made necessary. I simply desire to explain to the Senate why this proposed amendment is not printed in the bill. The amendment, however, was submitted by me under instructions from a majority of the Committee on Appropriations, the final vote upon the amendment not having been taken until after the bill had gone to the printer.

I simply desire to make this statement by way of explanation. The amendment I have offered is a committee amendment, sent here by a majority vote of the Committee on Appropriations, and I make the explanation of it not appearing in the print of the bill.

Mr. MILLER. Now, I make the point of order, Mr. President, that the amendment is general legislation on an appropriation bill, and forbidden by Rule XVI of the Senate.

Mr. MANDERSON. I hope the Senator from Texas will not make the point of order to this amendment at this time. It is a matter which certainly should have very careful and free discussion, and I know there is no dispute on the part of anyone to do more than present it fairly in argument to the Senate. I realize that it is somewhat embarrassing to present an argument in favor of a proposition and address one's self to its general merits on a point of order. Of course, it is possible, under our liberal rules, to debate the merits of the subject. The point of order, but that is rather an evasion of the rule, and those of us in favor of the amendment desire to debate it fairly and without any waste of time. If the Senator from Texas insists upon the point of order we shall have to meet it by those indirect processes.

Mr. MILLER. I will withhold the point of order, Mr. President, so that the Senator may be heard upon the question.

THE CHIEF CLERK. The Senator from Texas withholds the point of order. The Senator from Nebraska is recognized.

Mr. MANDERSON. Mr. President, this proposition is one that comes to us with the approval of the Committee on Appropriations. In somewhat different form it came to the Senate with the approval of the Committee on Claims, quite different in its wording and somewhat different in its provisions, which differences I will briefly explain.

The amendment, as it came from the Committee on Claims, with the approval of its majority, provided for the payment of the entire bounty granted under the McKinley act on the sugar produced from the 1st day of July until the 28th day of August, 1894, when what we call the Wilson bill went into effect. It provided further for the payment on all sugar produced from the crop of 1894 of one-half of the bounty provided in the McKinley act, or at the rate of 1 cent per pound.

It will be remembered that under the McKinley act 2 cents a pound and 12 cents a pound bounty was to be paid upon all sugars produced from either sugar cane or sorghum or sugar beets, or from maple sap, dependent as to the amount to be paid upon the polarizing test of the sugar. I shall not take the time of the Senate to show in detail the enormous advantage that came to the country by this bounty provision of the McKinley law.

Under its fostering provision, there resulted not only an enormous increase in the sugar production of Louisiana and great additional investment there, but a new industry, most important and of vast value to the country. In large measure, it was the cause of the exportation of which it had taken many many years to bring to the fruition of full success in Germany and France, in a very short space of time became successful in parts of this country, and as the result of the direct promise of the Government of the United States that, commencing in the year 1890 and continuing to the year 1905, for a period of fifteen years, bounty should be paid for sugar produced, men who understood the business, who had the intelligence, the skill, and the experience needed to start it, embarked in this industry, and in the State of Nebraska at great expenditure of money, running into over $1,000,000 for the mere plants themselves, built and have operated for nearly four years two splendid sugar-beet factories.

In the territory of Utah and in the State of California, also, sugar factories were started, all built under rather adverse conditions, notwithstanding this flattering promise of a bounty, for the farming element in the vicinity of all these factories had to be educated to that degree of intelligence required for the growth and production of sugar beets. There has been no profit, at least in the State of Nebraska, even with the bounty awarded by the Government under the McKinley act, as yet, to those who have produced sugar.

What profit has been made has accrued to the farmers of that State who have produced the sugar beet, for every year, by contract made before the crop was planted, the farmers have been promised and have finally received 25 per cent for the sugar-beet product of their farms; and at this rate per ton they can make a little money. At least this is what, if they are to be paid but $3.50 or $4 a ton for sugar beets, the sugar-beet culture of that section of country will certainly cease, and I doubt whether there is any place in the North, in any of its agricultural sections, however rich they may be, however well adapted to the culture of this Northern sugar plant, where beet sugar can be produced at a profit if but $3.50 or $4 per ton be paid for the beets.

Mr. RAY. May I ask the Senator what is the average production of sugar beets to the acre?

Mr. MANDERSON. As I now recall it, about fifteen tons to the acre where the conditions are the best possible. Of course, that depends on many things; it depends largely on the way in which the soil is prepared, the extent of the fertilization of the soil, the skill and intelligence with which the beets are thinned out, as the process is termed, during their growth, and the selection, in the first instance, of the seed of the beets which contain the greatest amount of saccharine substance.

Mr. SQUIRE. May I ask the Senator a question at that point?

Mr. MANDERSON. Certainly.

Mr. SQUIRE. I should like to ask whether the Senator can state to the Senate the relative value of the best sugar beets produced in America, in the State of Nebraska or in any other State of the Union, as to saccharine matter, and give a comparison of the value in that respect with the sugar beet products of Germany and France?

Mr. MANDERSON. I can give it in general terms, and I am not very desirous of getting along rapidly, and of taking no more of the time of the Senate than is absolutely necessary, I could give it in detail and with exactitude.

Mr. SQUIRE. I only desire the Senator to state it briefly, if he will.

Mr. MANDERSON. I think it will suffice to say that under the cultivation in this country, particularly in California and Nebraska, where the climatic conditions are favorable for the growth of the sugar beet, it being remembered—for the sugar beet is largely a sun plant, seeming to derive its saccharine substance from the rays of the sun, where these conditions exist the saccharine principle in the sugar is very much greater than in Germany or France.

I think you may say in general terms that, with the saccharine in the German beets averaging at this time perhaps 13 to 14 per cent, the average of saccharine in the beets produced in the State of Nebraska is 18 to 19 by the latest developments. Indeed, there is on record one experiment in California where, taking not a single beet, not a few beets, but taking quite a large product of beets, the amount of saccharine substance was over 26 per cent—the astonishing fact being that over one-fourth of the beets which were thus tested was pure sugar.

We have made very great progress in the direction of the increase of the saccharine substance by simply making selection of the fittest beet. The doctrine of the "survival of the fittest" has been carried out to very excellent purpose and to an admirable degree in the cultivation of this most interesting of all our valuable food-giving plants.

Mr. President, with this impetus given to the sugar-beet industry it received a staggering blow when, by the action of Congress at the last session, the bounty and adequate protection was divorced from the sugar industry. It seems to me that that act was a piece of unfair, unjust, and unjust legislation. It was in the highest degree inequitable, and why?

In the first place, here was the contract upon which this industry was based. I call it "a contract," for had the transaction been between private individuals there would have been no question of the fact that it was contractual, and here the Government said to these people, "If you will invest your money and embark in this industry, which is for the public good, if you will embark in an enterprise which will permit this country to produce all the sugar which it shall consume—instead of producing one-tenth, produce all, saving to this country an exportation in money of from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 every year, which we pay to other countries—we will for fifteen years pay you this bounty."

Citizens relying upon this governmental promise embarked upon the industry with enormous incidental expenditure. In the spring of 1894 before planting commenced, and before the spring plowing, during the winter of 1893-94, the sugar-beet factories made their contracts with the farmers, supplying to them the seeds which they were to plant, and contracting with them, as they had contracted in years previous, to pay them $3.50 a ton for all sugar beets delivered at the factories. The farmers planted their seed, having prepared the ground the fall previous, and again giving it the preparation incident to spring by plowing.

Mr. ALLEN. Will my colleague permit me at this point to make a suggestion?

Mr. MANDERSON. Certainly.

Mr. ALLEN. I desire to suggest that the contracts for the growing of beets were made in December of last year, prior to the introduction of the Wilson bill in either branch of Congress.

Mr. MANDERSON. In December, 1893, I said during the winter previous the contracts were made, and am pleased to be corroborated by my colleague.

Mr. President, June came, and the farmers were at work during that month in caring for their beets, and most of the expensive work incident to the growth of sugar beets had been performed before the 1st day of July, and all of it, except the mere gathering of the crop, had been done before the 26th day of August, 1894.

Under the requirements of the McKinley act it was necessary that every man who proposed to produce sugar from any sugar-producing plant should, before the 1st day of July, make his application to the Secretary of the Treasury, setting forth the character of his factory, the number of places and the localities where he proposed to produce sugar, giving in much detail—prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue—the particulars of business in which he proposed to embark. Upon such application being filed before the 1st day of July, on that day it was the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to issue to this proposed sugar producer a license.

Unfortunately, I have not at my desk a copy of the application and the license, but before this debate shall close I will produce them, and show their exact nature. On the 1st day of July the Secretary of the Treasury issued to A. B. the applicant, the license required by law, which licensed him to produce sugar under the terms and conditions of the McKinley act; and on the 1st day of July this license was issued, not only to sugar-beet producers in Nebraska, Utah, and California, but to the hundreds of cane-sugar producers in Louisiana, to the producers of sugar from sorghum in Kansas, to the producers of sugar from maple sirup in New England and Ohio, and all were warranted to go on with the business in which they proposed to embark, and to which they had been invited by the solemn promise of the Government.

Following this license, there was filed by every one of those licensed a bond in a large amount of money conditioned that they would comply in every respect with the law; and thus licensed and thus bonded they embarked in this industry. Between the 1st day of July and the 28th day of August, when the Wilson bill was pending in the two Houses of Congress, much of that time in conference between the two Houses, quite an amount of sugar was produced—produced, however, not from any cane or sugar beets which were grown during the year 1894, except a small portion produced in the State of California.

But that which was produced between the 1st of July and the 28th day of August was very largely produced from that which may be called the residue or the overplus left over from the crop of 1893. Take it for instance, in the crop of 1893 there were produced about 6,000,000 pounds of sugar prior to the 1st day of July, but of the sugar beets there were quite a large quantity that could not by the first process be converted into sugar, and this comparatively small amount was made into sugar between the 1st day of July and the 28th day of August. Yet the law was so unfair that, although it was produced, and although there can be no question of the fact that those who produced it were entitled to the full bounty of the McKinley Act, not a dollar has been paid them for the sugar thus produced.

The amendment which was reported by the Committee on Appropriations proposes to pay a bounty of 2 cents a pound on all sugars testing not less than 90° by the polariscope, and 14 cents a pound on all sugars testing less than 90° and not less than 80° by the polariscope, manufactured and produced by them previous to the 28th day of August, 1894. It seems to me it needs no argument to convince any man not only of the equity of that provision, but that in strict law it is a contract made with the Government of the United States which the United States should be quick and prompt to perform. It has been performed by the one party, as is suggested by the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. PLATT], and this requires merely performance by the other. In other words, it is simply an effort to collect a debt that is due and owing.

The second part of the amendment provides for the payment of not quite half the bounty of the McKinley act for sugars produced from the crop of 1894. It does not go so far as it should, in my opinion. I think it should go to the extent of the payment of the full bounty for the crop of 1894. The Committee on Claims thought it should go to the extent of one-half of the bounty for the crop of 1894, but the Committee on Appropriations have seen fit to reduce the amount of payment to eight-tenths of 1 cent per pound on sugars actually manufactured and produced from the sugar crop of 1894. That is but partial justice, but such as it is we must, I suppose, be content with it.

I believe as firmly as I believe in my own existence, that not only the progress but the permanency, the very life of the beet-sugar industry depends upon the payment of this bounty. I look forward to the time when in the political change that is bound to come in this country we shall return fully to the principle of protection.

Mr. PLATT. Before the Senator from Nebraska leaves the point on which he was speaking just now, will he permit me to ask him what the sugar planters did, in 1894, before the repeal of the McKinley law, toward earning the bounty for which eight-tenths of a cent per pound is now proposed to be paid to them?

Mr. MANDERSON. I will speak for the State of Nebraska, hoping that the Senator from California will address himself to the interests in his State, and that the Senators from Louisiana will tell the story as to the sugar-cane industry in Louisiana. As to the sugar-beet growers or producers in Nebraska, they had performed most of their part of the contract before the 28th day of August.

Mr. WHITE. Will the Senator from Nebraska permit an interruption?

Mr. MANDERSON. Certainly.

Mr. WHITE. We commenced even earlier in California, because of climatic reasons. The beet was ready for the manufacture of sugar at an earlier part of the year.

Mr. MANDERSON. I understand that in California, even before the 28th day of August, when the law went into effect, a part of the crop of 1894 had been converted into sugar.

Mr. WHITE. The crushing commenced early in August of that year.

Mr. MANDERSON. But in Nebraska, of which I desired to speak more particularly, the contracts for 1894, as I said, were made the week before last. My colleague says in December, 1893. The farmers did their fall planting; they made that preparation of the soil, its fertilization, which is essential to a growth of sugar beet; they put in their spring work; they planted; they cultivated; they performed that most expensive part of sugar-beet production, the thinning out their beets, for that part of the cultivation of beets is of the most intelligent character.

No machine. No invention by the most ingenious man which will perform that part of the work. It is a process of selection by the eye and hand, and it requires expert work. It is true a well-grown child can do it, but the child must be taught and it takes a great deal of time to teach the child as to what beets shall be selected to be thrown out and what shall be selected to remain. All this had been done long before the passage of the Wilson bill.

As I have said, the manufacturers had applied for their licenses; they had given their bonds, and the licenses had issued to them the 1st day of July, and by the 28th day of August there was nothing left to be done by the farmers except to permit the beets that had been left in the ground to mature themselves. No further cultivation was needed after that date, for in September the beets are taken from the ground and carried to the factory, and there, by the processes which I have heretofore described and will not repeat, are converted into sugar.

So, President, I say I do not believe the beet-sugar industry can exist without protection, and that protection should assume the form of bounty. I think it was an unfortunate moment when the Congress of the United States repealed the bounty provision of the McKinley act, but I do not propose at this time to make argument in reference to that subject-matter. I firmly believe that if these people in Nebraska, who have had these years of continuous loss, are not awarded that which I say they are fairly entitled to from the Government of the United States this important industry will disappear.

I had an object lesson during the last fall that impressed me as strongly of the importance of the beet-sugar culture as anything ever impressed me in my life. As is well known, we had a terrible drought in the Western States last year. Usually in the fall of the year I have seen in Nebraska abundance of small grain and corn. We had the great crop-producing States of this country, and I have driven my wagon and have gone by train through miles and miles of waving corn ready for the fall and winter gathering. But how different the scene last fall!

I went over hundreds of miles of that State where there was no more vegetation of value than could be raised upon the carpet on this floor. There was no corn, there had been no small grain; and the only crop that was being moved to a market was the sugar beets that were being carried to the one factory which was enabled to exist last year. It is true there was a tremendous loss from the amount that should have been produced, but the beets stood the drought. Their sweetness being underground rather than above it, they stood the drought very much better than any other crop. It has been the great boon to the farmers of that State this year, giving them not only a little money, but much encouragement.

I believe that if this bounty, partial as it is—not so much as it should be—is awarded, at least one of those factories can continue as it has this year. We had two, but only one could be operated with profit during the year. I believe with the bounty we can exist until a change of political conditions will give that which I think this country demands, from the agricultural standpoint and from the standpoint of the general good of all, to a greater degree just now than it demands anything else, and that is a fair protection to the sugar industry, particularly that of beet sugar.

Without having before me the notes that I gathered for the purpose of addressing myself to this subject, I have given rather a rambling and disconnected statement as to the beet-sugar culture in Nebraska, and I hope the Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] will not present the point of order until other gentlemen whose States are so strongly interested in this subject-matter may have a chance to present their views.

Mr. MILLS. That is all right.

Mr. ALLISON. I desire at this point in the debate to send to the desk and have read a telegram relating to this subject which was sent to me this morning from Louisiana, but which is evidently intended for the Senate.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read as indicated. The Secretary read as follows:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., February 25, 1895.

Hon. WM. B. ALLISON,

United States Senator, Washington, D. C.

Your petitioners respectfully ask for favorable consideration of the amendment to the sundry civil bill granting portion of the bounty on sugars produced in the United States from crops grown in 1894. While not sugar producers nor the immediate recipients of the bounty, your petitioners represent the cane and beet-sugar planters, manufacturing concerns, and exchanges of this city, who, together with others in distant cities, are the creditors to whom much of the money will go when paid by the Government, and who became such creditors trusting to the good faith of the United States.

The regulations of the bounty law were complied with by the producers. The bonds were furnished as exacted by the Government and accepted by it, and many licenses issued to the sugar producers, whose sole remaining work to entitle them to the 2 cents per pound under the provisions of the law was to harvest the cane and granulate the sugar. Your petitioners gave promise that this course could not and would not be countenanced by the Senate.

They were justified in expecting and trusting to the continuance of this governmental policy, and dealt, therefore, with the producer last year as in previous years, because during eight months of that year the bounty law at 2 cents per pound stood on the statute books, because the first Wilson bill engaged that the bounty for 1894 should be paid in full, and when this was wiped out by the action of the House every leading man of the Senate gave promise that this course could not and would not be countenanced by the Senate.

Caucus promises of the majority of the Senate pledged the continuance of the bounty act to the 1st of January, 1895, and the personal, kindly expressions of the minority made one believe that the sentiment in favor of maintaining the bounty in good faith to the beginning of 1895 would be almost unanimous. Under these circumstances the sugar producers expended their own money and expended the money of the Government to the amount of $20,000,000. Every expense, except that of harvesting the crop, was incurred before the end of August, 1894, the date at which this violent change of policy occurred. They were obliged to advance the producers harvesting expenses, and these, added to the expenditures previously made, created a deficit, now that the crop is being marketed, of millions of dollars over and above the value of the total crop, and a sum of equity would suggest that the bounty, which should be paid this year, should not be less than that amount provided for in the pending amendment. Petitioners, therefore, pray that your honorable body will accept the pending amendment as a compromise for the crop of 1894, to save from financial ruin the sugar producers, to whom the Government promises were held out, and from commercial distress those who have trusted these producers in good faith on the policy and laws of the United States.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. Has the Senator from Texas renewed his point of order? The Chair understood the Senator from Texas to reserve a point of order upon the pending amendment.

Mr. MILLS. I was asked to withhold it until other gentlemen could discuss the question. If they are through I will renew the point.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair is not advised as to whether any other Senator desires to discuss the amendment.

Mr. BRICE. If the Senator from Texas had not renewed the point of order I certainly should have done so, especially in view of the statement made by members of the Committee on Appropriations, that this is the report of a majority of the committee. That is entirely true, but there was a strong minority in the Committee on Appropriations against the amendment. I was one of that minority. I certainly shall not consent to an appropriation of so vast a sum, involving eight or ten million dollars—

Mr. MANDEMERSON. Oh, no!

Mr. BRICE. I can not consent that such an amendment shall be put on an appropriation bill against the rules, in the present condition of the Treasury.

Mr. PLATT. What is the point of order?

Mr. MANDEMERSON. I desire to correct the statement of the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. BLACKBURN. It is less than $6,000,000.

Mr. MANDEMERSON. Although one of the minority of the Committee on Appropriations, he certainly could never have read the amendment. The appropriation is not eight or ten million dollars. It is, as to the sugar produced before the 28th day of August, $238,000, and as to all other sugar the appropriation is limited to $5,000,000.

If 1 cent per pound had been paid it would have been very much less than the sum stated by the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. BRICE. Mr. President—

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Connecticut rose to a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. PLATT. I desire to know what the point of order is. What ground is stated why the amendment is not in order?

Mr. MILLS. The point of order is that it is general legislation on an appropriation bill.

Mr. BRICE. And a claim as well.

Mr. MILLS. Yes, that is true.

Mr. PLATT. If I may be permitted, being on my feet, to say one word, I think the amendment is in order. It is not general legislation. It is a proposition that the Government shall pay what we think it owes, and the appropriation of money for that purpose; and that is all there is about it.

Mr. MANDEMERSON. That is all there is of it.

Mr. ALDRICH. The suggestion which I have to make is along the line made by the Senator from Connecticut. This is a new item of appropriation for a specific purpose to carry out provisions of law, the friends of the amendment claim. It has no provisions which extend beyond the present session of Congress or beyond the appropriations which are made in the bill. It is a new item recommended, proposed, in the language of the first clause of the 16th rule, by a standing committee, and is not subject to the point of order made by the Senator from Texas. That seems to me very clear.

Mr. BRICE. The point of order includes as well that it is a claim pure and simple. It is taken out of the jurisdiction of the Committee on Claims, where it is now pending. It is taken out of the jurisdiction of the courts which take jurisdiction of claims against the United States. It is assumed to finally audit and give final judgment and appropriate the money to pay a claim, and a disputed claim.

Mr. WHITE. If it be true, as contended by the friends of this measure, that it is not only a claim but that it is presented under such circumstances as to make it justly due from the United States, there can be no impropriety in inserting it in this bill; but it would certainly be incorrect in this body, after permitting the many measures which it has allowed to be voted upon in connection with appropriation bills, if it would now turn around and say that this matter, which, whatever may be said of it, is far less objectionable than many which have been held to be in order, shall be excluded from consideration.

While it might be asking a great deal to suppose that these rules would be the same way three or four times consecutively, yet as we have had almost a three days' consecutive interpretation the other way, it is too bad now, so late in the session, to be inconsistent. If we are violating the rule in presenting the amendment it seems to me that Senators who have participated in antecedent and glaring violations should retire when the subject is now being debated or cast their vote consistently with those that they have heretofore registered in this Chamber.

Mr. President, it has come to be the case, as the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDEMERSON] stated some time ago in this Chamber, that when the Senate desires to make an appropriation it will make it, rule or no rule. One of the features of the rules that has been spoken of with admiration undisguised is that they are only to be observed when Senators are antagonistic to the legislation proposed.

Perhaps one good will result from all this, and we may some day adopt a rule to which we may occasionally adhere. But it is too late now to suggest any change in the almost uniform disregard of the rules in this particular. It would be unjust discrimination to hold that this is a case in which the rules, which I think, is under any circumstances, a proper one under the rules, should be disregarded upon the theory that the time had come when the Senate looked upon all appropriations as improper, except those which, in the strictest sense, were within the rule referred to by the Senator from Texas.

Mr. MANDEMERSON. I think the Senator might well supplement his excellent remarks with the further suggestion that here is a bill that comes to us from another body bristling with matters of general legislation and with private claims, and yet the proposition is that the Senate, a coordinate branch, shall emasculate its legislative powers and not place upon the bill similar provisions, because it is against the strict construction of rules made by a majority of the body.

Mr. WHITE. I will state that, in my judgment, almost every paragraph of the bill negates the point of order made.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, before the point of order is determined I desire to submit simply a word.

One of the beet-sugar factories of which my colleague has spoken is located in the county in which I reside, and I have some personal knowledge of the way it has been conducted, and of the culture of beets in the State of Nebraska. It is well known that I am not in favor of what are known as protective laws. I do not propose to discuss that question at this time. I simply desire to discuss what

The SECRETARY. Add at the end of the amendment the following proviso:

Provided, That the bounty shall be paid in silver coin; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall immediately cease to be bound of the silver bullion now in the Treasury a sufficient sum to pay said bounty.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I make the point of order against the amendment submitted by the Senator from Mississippi. It is not germane to the amendment pending, and is obnoxious to the sixteenth rule.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair is compelled to sustain the point of order.

Mr. PROCTOR. Mr. President, the maple-sugar crop is produced entirely in the months of March and April. It can be produced at no other time. The crop of 1894 was entirely produced, inspected, and weighed by the proper officers of the Government, certificates given to the makers, and the amount entered upon the books of the Treasury months before the law was repealed. The books of the Treasury show precisely every dollar and cent that is due to a maker of maple sugar, and all that remains to complete the transaction is to send him a check for the amount. There is not a court in the land but what would render judgment for the plaintiff on the showing of the defendant's books alone.

Mr. HARRIS. Will the Senator from Vermont allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. PROCTOR. Certainly.

Mr. HARRIS. I ask the Senator from Vermont if there have been any extensive plants erected by reason of the bounty on maple sugar.

Mr. PROCTOR. There have been very extensive plants. Although they are not so expensive as the plants of cane and beet sugars, there are immensely more of them in number, and I think the percentage of the expense incurred in consequence of this bounty would count quite as large.

Mr. HARRIS. I am a little curious to know what sort of plant is necessary for converting maple sap into sugar.

Mr. PROCTOR. I shall be very happy to give the Senator, at a proper time, instruction in the art of making maple sugar, and verify it by concrete samples of the article.

Mr. HARRIS. I prefer the samples to the argument.

Mr. PROCTOR. If the views of the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. McCLARIN] about the constitutionality of this question are correct, it seems to me he ought to go somewhat further and secure a repeal of a portion of section 8 of the first article of the Constitution, which says:

"The Congress shall have power . . . to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States."

I believe it has been repeatedly decided by the Supreme Court that Congress is the sole judge of what is for the general welfare. I submit that he ought to go even further and introduce and secure the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution which will make its meaning plainer for those of us who are not quite so sensitive as the Senator is on Constitutional points, and say, "It is hereby declared to be unconstitutional for governments or individuals to pay their honest debts." That would save us very much embarrassment here in conducting the public affairs, as well as be a great convenience to many of us individually. Nothing short of that, I am sure, will meet this case.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I trust, Mr. President, that the hour will allow us the necessity of making some progress with the bill. I do not propose to consume one minute of the time of the Senate in this discussion. I only rose to express the sincere hope that, having now talked enough, we may come to a vote.

Mr. McCLARIN. In answer to the Senator from Vermont [Mr. PROCTOR], I only desire to say that the very article to which he refers was pressed before the learned court in the decision which I made in the Senate, and they said that even under that there was no constitutional authority to grant this bounty. So I prefer to take that well-considered opinion of the supreme court of this District and of Chief Justice Chase in another case to the sarcastic allusion of the Senator from Vermont as to our honest debts. There is no lawyer in the Senate Chamber who will not say that if the act of 1890 was unconstitutional there was no debt created against the Government by it; that it was null, void, and of no force and effect upon the people of the country at all, and could not create a debt. There is no lawyer, even a tyro in the profession, but who would say if it was unconstitutional there was no debt made against the country.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. GORMAN. I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment. The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. GORMAN. Mr. President, I trust that the amendment will not be adopted. The immense amount of money involved in the proposition, over $5,000,000—

Mr. BLACKBURN. I submit that after the Senator from his own motion has ordered the yeas and nays and the roll call has been directed to proceed it is almost too late to debate.

Mr. HARRIS. Oh, no; it is not.

Mr. McCLARIN. Not until the first name has been called.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair thinks it is not too late, because the call had not been commenced. The Senator from Maryland will proceed.

Mr. GORMAN. No; I called for the yeas and nays so that we might have a vote upon the proposition when the time came to vote on it.

I have known propositions to be discussed for a week after the yeas and nays were ordered. But this amendment can not pass, I think, without a few words, at all events. I am not ready to deny the Senate very long. The Senate will decide by a majority vote in this case whether the amendment will be adopted or not. I want to enter my protest, however, against the amendment being placed upon this appropriation bill. When this matter was under discussion during the presidency of the tariff bill I voted on every occasion in this body to practically include this provision: that is to say, to permit the duty to go into effect on the 1st day of January, so as to give the growers of sugar the benefit of the difference between 40 per cent ad valorem and the bounty of 2 cents a pound under the McKinley Act.

I voted for it, as did every other Senator on this side save three. It was done at a time to enable us to pass a great revenue measure. I voted for it, in addition to that, because I believed that there was a very strong case presented both by the cane and the beet sugar industry. It was a radical proposition at that time to strike them off from 2 cents a pound to 40 per cent ad valorem.

I recognize to-day, as I did then, that they have a very strong claim, that it is one that will appeal to the justice and fairness of every man. But, Mr. President, the time has passed when it could be considered properly upon a bill for the revenue or for appropriations. The Congress decreed that it should not be provided for them. It comes in now upon a claim, and we claim it ought to be considered upon its own merits. It ought to have been considered a report from the Department of the Government having control of this matter and by careful consideration of the appropriate committee of this body, the Committee on Claims, and not upon an appropriation bill.

It is my firm conviction after a most careful and patient investigation for the last two or three months, with all the light that I can get upon this subject, that the tariff act, as it is, as it stands, in the tariff act has, in view of the evolution that has taken place in the manufacture of sugar throughout the world, placed the American industry in a most unfortunate position. I believe, sir, that with the bounties that are offered by other Governments it is impossible, with profit, for either the beet sugar industry or the cane industry to live in this country five years. I do not believe that we can refine sugar five years from now except the higher grades of cut loaf.

If the Germans continue to produce as much as they have in the last year, I do not believe it will be possible for our beet sugar industry to live in the Northwest. I regret it more than any other act that I have been a party to; that this great industry should be destroyed in this country. I think there is no parallel to the success which the Germans have had under their system, by which they not only manufacture all the sugar they need themselves, but also supply the United States and America. In the current year, 1894, they have produced a million tons more than they did in the previous year. With our tax of 44 per cent upon them and one-eighth upon the refined and a tenth in addition, the prices of their sugars refined, delivered in New York and Baltimore, is within a fraction of what the raw article can be produced for in this country.

I regret also, though it is but a slight interest compared to that in substance and though I state that it is my own view, that the beet industry is absolutely destroyed here. It has been impossible to begin and to keep that part of the commerce in Baltimore, and that is a loss, as it was bound to go, all the coffee trade of that great port.

Therefore, Mr. President, in opposing this measure, and now it is not because I do not think there is no merit in it; it is not because I do not think that if it was between ourselves and individuals it would not be such a claim as would appeal to the fair dealing and honesty of the man with whom the transaction was made; but I say, in view of all that has occurred, in view of the condition of the Treasury, in view of the manner in which we have been upon these matters, this particular proposition should have come from a committee with a report from the Department and been presented to Congress as all other changes were presented and then settled upon its merits, and it should not be forced upon an appropriation bill, which it has no proper place, and sent elsewhere where the Executive will have to pass upon it as an item included in a great appropriation bill, though he may not think it to be proper or policy to be paid at this time in view of the condition of the Treasury.

Mr. President, another provision which follows in this bill will soon be presented to the Senate, looking to the meeting of a deficiency which exists in the Treasury of the United States. I shall not go into that matter now, for it will come up later. But no man can doubt, when the facts and the figures are presented, that we are to-day, and have been for two years past, paying the current expenses of the Government from the bonds which have been sold, and that unless we make further provision to meet the current expenses of the Treasury by issuing other evidences of debt, there is not, and will not be during this fiscal year, money enough by $80,000,000 to meet the current expenses of the year.

Mr. President, that is the condition in which we are situated. I shall not detain the Senate longer. I merely wanted to utter my protest against putting this provision upon this appropriation bill.

Mr. HILL. Mr. President, I do not intend to discuss the question of the propriety of the pending amendment so far as its merits are concerned. The only question that occurs to me after the remarks of the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] is whether this amendment is not as appropriate to the pending appropriation bill as is an amendment relating to supplying a deficiency in the revenues or to regulate the method of issuing bonds.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. President, is an amendment to the amendment in order?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Colorado.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I offer the amendment which I send to the desk as an amendment to the pending amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment submitted by the Senator from Colorado to the amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to add to the amendment:

There shall be purchased by the Secretary of the Treasury 4,000,000 ounces of silver in a month for the period of eight months at the market price thereof in New York, and said silver shall from time to time be duly coined in silver dollars of standard weight and fineness.

Such purchases shall be made in furtherance of the contract heretofore entered into between the Government of the United States and the people of the United States.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I make the point of order on the amendment that it is general legislation, and not germane to the amendment to which it is offered as an amendment.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I suppose the Senator from Kentucky will permit me to say a word upon the amendment.

Mr. BLACKBURN. The Senator has the right to do that.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the Senator.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I have but a word to say upon the amendment.

Mr. President, if an amendment of the character which has been declared to be in order, not reported by any committee of this body, is in order, then clearly, to my mind, any other amendment which seeks to make this Government pay its moral obligation to its people is equally in order upon an appropriation bill.

Mr. MANDERSON. Will my friend allow me to correct a misapprehension he seems to be under?

Mr. WOLCOTT. Certainly.

Mr. MANDERSON. The amendment which has been pending was reported to the Senate originally by the Committee on Claims, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and has been reported favorably by the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Very well, Mr. President. My amendment has not been reported by the committee, but it is equally germane to the appropriation bill as is the amendment which has apparently stood the test of the point of order which has been raised against it.

If there ever was a contract on earth entered into in good faith it was the contract whereby the Government of the United States undertook to say to the people of the West that if they would undertake the mining of the gold and the silver, which must be the financial basis of the country, then the Government would coin their gold freely as offered at the mints and would purchase their silver at its market value; and at an extra session called by the President of the United States, without notice, that law, that contract was repealed by the Congress of the country, to the devastation, to the poverty, and to the suffering of a vast section of this country.

Mr. President, if there be equity in this sort of payment, if we have the right to come back to the United States, having once been its beneficiaries, and have the right to say to the Government, "You shall not rob us of our industry, you shall not take away our living from us, you shall not ruin our towns and destroy our industry without giving us compensation for it," then, certainly, no appeal can be made with greater force than this on behalf of the miners of the West.

We have heard all sorts of talk of the pity and the sorrow that the people who are opposed to silver feel for the miners of the West. If that be true, Mr. President, what have we done and wherein are we lacking that we can not be put upon the same footing as the sugar planters of Louisiana or the beet-sugar producers of Nebraska? If the one amendment is in order and if the one amendment is entitled to the sympathy of the American people—for the amendment is not put upon any basis but that of sympathy—then I say those who have mined silver from the earth and have built up great States and great industries are entitled equally to the sympathy of the people, for we produce that which no people ever before were punished for producing. We produce that which is invaluable to us in time of peace and absolutely essential in time of war; we produce that which should stand as the basis and the fabric of our Government, the coin recognized by the Constitution and by the law for a hundred years; and there can be no argument which will apply to one set of producers which does not apply with equal force to the other.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I ask for a ruling on the point of order, Mr. President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Kentucky makes the point of order against the pending amendment to his amendment. The Chair submits to the Senate the question, Is the proposed amendment in order?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH]. If he were here I should vote "yea."

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. GALLINGER (when Mr. PRITCHARD's name was called). The junior Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD] requested me to announce that on all questions involving silver he desired to be paired in favor of the proposition in whatever form it might appear, and he stands so paired with the Senator from Florida [Mr. PASCO].

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOFF].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BURROWS. I am paired with the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON].

Mr. CAREY (after having voted in the negative). I am paired with the junior Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. MITCHELL], but voted because I understood that, if present, he would vote the same way that I have voted.

The result was announced—yeas 13, nays 50; as follows:

So the amendment to the amendment was decided not to be in order.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I offer the amendment which I send to the desk, to come in at the end of the pending amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment submitted by the Senator from Oregon to the amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to add to the pending amendment:

Provided further, That there shall be paid to the sheep owners of the United States, to be distributed among them pro rata according to the amount of wool produced by each, an amount equal to 5 cents per pound on all domestic wool produced in the United States during the calendar year 1895 to compensate them for losses occasioned by the repeal of the duty on wool.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I make the same point of order against this amendment, that it has not been reported by a committee, either standing or select; and I object to debate.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I was about to make the suggestion that I hoped the Senator from Kentucky would not make the point of order against this very pertinent amendment.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I insist on the point of order, Mr. President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the suggestion of the Senator from Oregon, with the permission of the Senate.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I object to any debate, Mr. President.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. On what ground?

Mr. BLACKBURN. On the ground that the point of order is not debatable, except by unanimous consent.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The point of order is made by the Senator from Kentucky—

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I hope the Senator will withdraw his point of order at this moment.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I will. I only want a vote.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. Mr. President, when this subject was under consideration in the Committee on Claims, of which I am a member, I was of the opinion, as I am now, that on the amount of sugar actually produced in the United States prior to the 28th day of August, 1894, the producers were entitled to receive their bounty. I believe that is a legal right. I understand that, owing to some peculiar phraseology of the repealing clause of the act, the Secretary of the Treasury did not feel authorized to pay that bounty, and for that reason I am in favor of the first part of the amendment which proposes to appropriate $238,399.08, but when the amendment goes further, when the proposition is submitted to the effect that we shall pay for the sugar produced after the repeal, and for the reason that the sugar producers of this country have suffered by reason of the repeal affecting their interests in the future, then I think they occupy no better ground, no better footing, nor any different position, so far as the equities are concerned, than do any number of persons engaged in various kinds of industries in this country, whose interests were adversely affected by the repeal of the McKinley Act, and particularly and especially is this so in reference to the sheep owners of this country.

The sheep industry, Mr. President, was stricken down by the repealing clause of the new tariff act. The duty of 10, 11, or 12 cents per pound, or whatever it was, existing under the old law on foreign wool, was swept away, and the wool producers of this country were brought into direct competition with the wool and sheep growers of the Argentine, Asia, and of other wool producing countries, the effect of which has been very largely in the section of the country which I in part represent here, to reduce the price of wool. We which two years ago were selling for 12, 14, and 15 cents a pound is selling to-day for 5, 6, and 7 cents a pound, a direct loss occasioned by this legislation; and there is just as much equity, as it seems to me, in favor of the sheep owners and of the wool producers in this country who have suffered by that legislation as there is in favor of the sugar producers of this country.

I think the repeal of the sugar-bounty act was a great legislative outrage. It was an act which ought to have been prevented by representatives on this floor, particularly on the other side, from the sugar-producing State of Louisiana; it might have been prevented by them; it is unfortunate for the sugar producers of this country, and especially for those of Louisiana, that it was not prevented; and I sympathize as much as any Senator upon this floor with the sugar producers of Louisiana, of Nebraska, of California, and of the other sugar-producing States in this Union. But, Mr. President, I sympathize with the sheep owners and with the woolgrowers of the Pacific Coast, and especially with the woolgrowers of my own State, whose industry, as I have said, has been absolutely destroyed by this legislation. I should feel recreant to my duty to my constituents if I were to stand here to-day and vote to the sugar producers of this country an equity amounting away up into the millions—because if this legislation goes through it will amount, in my judgment, to not less than $8,000,000 out of the Treasury, and perhaps more—I say I should feel recreant to my duty to my constituents if I were to do this, and at the same time do nothing, or attempt to do nothing, for other classes of persons who have suffered equally by the infamous piece of legislation of 1894, by which so many of the great industries of this country were paralyzed and many of them stricken down entirely.

Mr. SQUIRE. How about lumber?

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. The Senator from Washington suggests the lumber interest. He might also mention the coal interest and the fruit interest of the Pacific Coast, the hop interest, and almost every agricultural interest in which the people of the Pacific Coast are interested, and which have been assailed by this repealing clause; yet we are to stand here and to make the sugar producers whole, while we are to suffer. For one, Mr. President, I shall not do it. However, I do sympathize with our friends from Louisiana. I shall vote, if this amendment can be divided—and it is divisible, I suppose—as I stated originally, for the two hundred and odd thousand dollars to pay the bounty on sugar actually produced prior to the 28th day of August, 1894; but beyond that I shall not vote a farthing unless we include the sheep industry and other industries which have been stricken down by the tariff legislation of this Congress, each and all of which stand on just as broad equities, just as sound equities, as do the sugar producers of this country, in my humble judgment.

I thank the Senator from Kentucky for having permitted me to say this much.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Now I ask for a ruling of the Chair on the point of order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Under the third clause of Rule XVI. the Chair is compelled to sustain the point of order.

Mr. PETTIGREW. Mr. President, I wish to enter my protest against the adoption of the amendment to pay this sugar bounty. I do not believe that there is any more moral obligation to pay this bounty than there is to reimburse all the people whose industries were destroyed by the passage of the Wilson tariff act. I can not see where any moral obligation exists more than exists, as the Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL] has said, to the sheep raisers.

The man who produced sugar went into the business because of the bounty offered, and he knew that each succeeding Congress had a right to repeal that law and take away the bounty. The man who went into the sheep industry because of the tariff which protected him against the competition of the woolgrower in Australia and South America had as much moral right to expect that tariff would be continued—for he would not have gone into the business if it had not been for the tariff—and yet he knew every succeeding Congress could repeal that law, and that he would want a remedy.

Where is the implied obligation and where is the moral right? It seems to me they do not exist. But above all they do not exist in favor of the sugar producers of Louisiana. The representatives of the sugar producers of Louisiana upon this floor and the representatives of the sugar producers of Nebraska could by their votes have defeated the tariff bill and protected the industries which were destroyed throughout this country; and if they chose to do so, or what I mean to claim is, that the man who seems to me it is with the worst of grace for them to come here claiming compensation. They have destroyed the industries of the North by their act; and now they ask for themselves to be relieved from the consequences of their act, and especially ask the people of the North to reimburse them for the injury which they have done to themselves and done to us. Compensate the wool raiser of Dakota, whose flocks you have destroyed; pay the producer of barley, oats, hay, butter, beans, before you pay the sugar producer who voted to produce all this ruin and disaster. It seems to me assurance and impudence could go no further. It seems to me that no such instance of impudence was ever before exhibited by any man or set of men. For my part I feel that I should outrage my conscience and outrage the rights of my constituents and put a premium upon impudence that would be intolerable should I support such a proposition.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, I should say nothing upon this subject any further than I have already were it not for the peculiar conditions existing and the peculiar utterances of the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. PETTIGREW]. I do not propose to discuss the tariff question. I do not think it is germane to the subject now before the Senate. But the Senator from South Dakota is a very poor lawyer indeed, if not a very poor statesman as well as a poor legislator, in his distinction between a tariff and bounty. I suppose that Senator goes upon the supposition that a tariff is levied with the primary purpose of protection. That is not true. No student of our institutions ever so rightly claimed. The tariff is levied for the purpose of raising revenue with which to carry on the Government. It may be so adjusted as to protect certain industries or not to protect them; that is a question of policy. But there is no power, in my humble judgment, to levy a tax for protective purposes alone. I have endeavored conscientiously to ascertain if there was such a power, and I have been somewhat of a student of the history of this country.

Mr. President, with reference to the bounty, passing over the question of constitutional power to offer a bounty, which seems to have been exercised in this country from time to time by the subsidizing of our shipping at one time, and offering the payment of a bounty upon the export of farm products at another time, here is a proposition to the Government to certain of its citizens, that if they would engage in the production of domestic sugar they should have as a compensation from the Government for the development of that industry 2 cents a pound for a specific length of time.

Upon the strength of that and upon the strength of nothing else these men invested their capital and developed the industry. I care not what the Senators may say it was a contract. What is a contract?

It is an agreement between two or more persons competent to do or not to do a lawful thing. There must be a consideration for it. A promise for a promise is held to be a good and valuable consideration throughout the civilized world. Here was a distinct proposition emanating from this Government, saying that if certain persons or citizens would embark in the enterprise of developing the industry of manufacturing sugar in this country they should for a specific length of time have a bounty from this Government to the amount of 2 cents a pound.

Did they not have a right to suppose that a great sovereign power like the United States would keep its promise? If it had been that the Government had not fixed a specific time for the bounty to run then the argument of the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. PETTIGREW] that the parties stand charged with notice of the right of the Government to repeal the bounty whenever it saw fit would be an acceptable argument here. Here was an offer running over a specific length of time, fifteen years. While I am not an advocate of the doctrine of protection or an advocate of the policy of giving bounties it is in my judgment as solemn a contract as this Government ever entered into. We can not escape the consequences of failing to fulfill the contract by the system of undertaking to load on this issue the question of the tariff and the consequences of the repeal of the tariff act. Every man conducts his business charged with notice that the Government may impose taxes upon his business, either direct or incidental, charged with notice that as a sovereignty it may repeal or modify its tax laws from time to time; and the distinction between an incidental protection, arising from a revenue law, and a distinct proposition to give so much money for the development of an industry is so plain in my judgment that a man does not need a fool need not err therein.

Mr. HOAR. I move, in line 27, page 2 of the amendment, to strike out the words "or sugar cane."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment to the amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. In line 27, page 2 of the amendment, strike out the words "or sugar cane," so as to read:

A bounty of 2 cents a pound per pound on the sugar actually grown, manufactured and required in the United States to be less than that by law provided for the sugar of the same kind, grown or produced within the United States.

Mr. HOAR. The word "or" should be inserted before the word "sorghum" if the amendment be adopted.

Mr. President, there is very great force in the claim which has been made by the senior Senator from Nebraska [Mr. MANDERSON] in behalf of the class of citizens who have invested capital and have entered upon a mode of life for the establishment in this country of a great productive and most beneficent industry with the pledge of the Government that they should receive a bounty for a few years. Similar pledges have been given by the Government in past times to the raisers of salt, the fishermen, and to other branches of protective industry; and I hold with my honorable friend from Nebraska that the faith of the Government of the United States requires us to compensate persons who have entered upon this industry.

But where great communities act they may be represented by political agencies or representations. If any single farmer in Nebraska, through his authorized agent, had put upon file his desire that the sugar bounty should be repealed, as to him the obligation on the part of the Government would no longer exist. Great political communities, great classes of industries, can not act by individual agencies. They must be understood to act by the men whom they send to this and the other Chamber to represent them. The sugar producers of the State of Louisiana, if in any way men can express a desire on a public question, desired the repeal of the bounty. The matter was fully discussed; public meetings were held. An eminent representative of that State vacated his seat in this Chamber and another person was sent to represent that State while this matter was pending and under discussion.

The gentleman originally appointed by the executive was soon after elected by the legislature of the State of Louisiana, and both of the representatives of Louisiana on the final vote, upon which a single vote would have stopped it, recorded their votes and that of Louisiana for the repeal of the sugar bounty. There can not be a more solemn, deliberate, binding action in political history than the action of the State of Louisiana, that so far as she was concerned, and so far as the people were concerned, not only were the people of the United States acquitted from any obligation of good faith in this matter, but that she did not desire as a matter of public policy that the sugar bounty for the previous year should be paid to the producers of sugar.

That is not true in regard to the producers of beet sugar in California or Nebraska or the Northwest, and therefore I shall cheerfully join with their representatives in giving my vote to pay those farmers a bounty. But the State of Louisiana has repudiated it herself. A single vote would have stopped it, and the negative of one of her Senators voted against the bill, and on fuller deliberation and reflection changed his vote to an affirmative vote after the roll call had been concluded. Now, in the face of this opinion and desire of the sovereign State of Louisiana, am I to insist upon forcing on those unwilling sugar producers this sum of money which they have rejected and repudiated by every possible instrumentality by which they can act, by the most solemn expression of their opinion which they can utter?

Mr. President, I have heard somewhere the suggestion, which I assure Louisiana will repudiate, that at least she would have been glad to have the sugar bounty continue, yet so great was her desire to strike down the manufacturing industries of the section of country which I humbly in some small degree represent that she was willing to accomplish that result even at the price of the abolition of the sugar bounty for her own people. I do not, of course, for a moment undertake to express any confidence in that proposition.

Mr. GRAY. May I ask the Senator from Massachusetts a question right there?

Mr. HOAR. Certainly.

Mr. GRAY. I ask whether the fact that one of the Senators from Nebraska, a great beet-producing State, voted in favor of the repeal of the sugar bounty ought not to bring Nebraska within the scope of punishment which the Senator from Massachusetts would inflict upon Louisiana?

Mr. HOAR. I have not spoken of punishment. The word "punishment" has not escaped my lips.

Mr. GRAY. That was my word. I will withdraw it if it is objected.

Mr. HOAR. I was speaking of waiver—of desire, of vote, of urgent appeal to the people of the United States to stop paying the sugar bounty.

Mr. GRAY. But I understand the Senator's amendment proposes to pay a bounty upon the beet sugar of Nebraska.

Mr. HOAR. I do not understand that Nebraska was united or agreed upon the question. We can not treat Nebraska as having acted unless both of her Senators concurred.

Mr. GRAY. "One righteous man saved the city."

Mr. HOAR. But even in that case Nebraska has spoken since. As soon as her people could deal with the question she recorded her vote in opposition not only to this part of the act but to the entire policy of the tariff act of 1894. On the other hand Louisiana adheres; in our parliamentary language as to conferences, she not only adheres but insists. I do not want to have public meetings held in New Orleans; I do not want to have the freemen of that State, where every freeman utters his voice and casts his vote, gathering on the highway and the plantation to protest against this indignity to her and our opposition to her sovereign will.

Mr. President, for one I can not be a party to forcing this down the reluctant throats of the excellent people of the State of Louisiana. I should otherwise vote for this bounty with the greatest satisfaction. I am not prepared to go so far as my honorable friend from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL]. I am not prepared to say that because we have repealed the protective tariff and have brought the country to the pitch of misery which it has gone through every American interest should be compensated by a grant from the Treasury. If we were to say that as to everybody who has suffered in purse or in business by the baleful operation of the political action of 1894 we must pay the producers of cotton, who have been selling their cotton for the last few months at 5 cents a pound.

I believe that the hard times, that the loss of prosperity in this country, that the injury to business occasioned by that reckless and foolish financial legislation of the Democratic majority here was a large factor in bringing cotton to 5 cents a pound, and that the Southern producer of cotton has repaid in his own person the disastrous consequences of that policy. But they are indirect; they are remote and not proximate consequences. If the Democratic party had been continued in power two years longer the sage at the other end of the Capitol and the sage at the other end of the avenue would have brought cotton to 3 cents a pound before they got through, and other industries would have been reduced in proportion.

But we can not go into that. We can not compensate the cotton growers of Texas for the folly of the Senator, or the cotton growers of South Carolina or Alabama for the follies of theirs. We can not compensate the railroads of the country, we can not compensate the mill owners of New England, we can not compensate the honest and industrious workmen of our manufacturing cities of the East or West. We can not compensate the silver miners of Colorado.

So, Mr. President, if this amendment to strike out the words shall be adopted, I hope I shall have the votes of the Senators from Louisiana. I shall be delighted then to join with the majority of the Senate in doing a just and partial and imperfect justice to the beet-sugar producers of California, Nebraska, and Kansas.

Mr. GORMAN and Mr. BLACKBURN. Question.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR] to the amendment of the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN].

Mr. COCKRELL. I give notice that I shall hope to finish the bill to-morrow. In pursuance of the agreement that was made the other day I will give way that this bill may be temporarily laid aside until to-morrow and that the night session beginning at 8 o'clock to-night may be devoted to unobjected cases on the Calendar, as was agreed upon.

Mr. MANDERSON. I ask unanimous consent that at the night session when unobjected bills upon the Calendar are to be considered the roll of Senators be called alphabetically. It seems to me that that is the fair way.

Mr. GORMAN. We can settle that to-night.

Mr. HILL. I object to that arrangement at present. Let the night session take care of itself.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection to the request of the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. HOAR. I desire to consider of the Chair if any arrangement about a night session has been made and, if so, what?

Mr. FAULKNER. It was a unanimous agreement.

Mr. HOAR. What is it?

Mr. FAULKNER. To meet at 8 o'clock and consider unobjected cases on the Calendar.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will have read the agreement.

The Secretary read as follows:

Mr. GOIMAN. The agreement proposed is that on Tuesday next, from 8 o'clock in the evening, the Senate will consider unobjected cases on the Calendar, under Rule VIII, giving to each Senator an opportunity, as has always been the rule, to call up a bill, subject, however, to the consideration of an appropriation bill if it becomes necessary to consider one that night.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That is the answer to the parliamentary inquiry of the Senator from Massachusetts.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 2243) in aid of the exposition to be held under the auspices of the Baltimore Centennial Association, and for other purposes.

RECESS.

Mr. GORMAN. I move that the Senate take a recess until 8 o'clock.

Mr. CHANDLER. I understand that the appropriation bill is not to be called up to-night.

Mr. GORMAN. Oh, no.

Mr. COCKRELL. It is not to be called up to-night.

Mr. HARRIS. Before the motion for a recess is stated may we not come to an agreement that the roll shall be called this evening as suggested, as an economy of time?

Mr. FAULKNER. Wait until we reassemble.

Mr. HARRIS. Very well.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. An objection was interposed to that request. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maryland that the Senate take a recess until 8 o'clock this evening.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 6 o'clock and 5 minutes p. m.) the Senate took a recess until 8 o'clock p. m.

EVENING SESSION.

The Senate reassembled at 8 o'clock p. m.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. HARRIS. I ask unanimous consent, in the interest of economizing time, that the roll be called, commencing with the first name upon it, and that the Senator, as called, may, under the consent rule existing to-night, ask for the consideration of the bill he may indicate. Otherwise we shall have a scramble for the floor whenever a bill is disposed of.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

Mr. HILL. Mr. President, in the interest of economy of time, etc., I shall object to that arrangement.

Mr. HARRIS. Very well.

Mr. HILL. I desire to proceed under the order of business, and ask to be recognized.

Mr. CULLOM. Mr. President—

Mr. HILL. I will yield for a moment to the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. CULLOM. I was about to call up a bill; that was all.

Mr. HILL. That is exactly what I was going to do, and therefore I decline to yield.

Mr. FAULKNER. I think before the Senator from New York goes on there ought to be a distinct understanding among all of us here this evening that we shall remain here until every Senator who has a bill to call up shall have an opportunity to call the bill up.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from West Virginia? The Chair hears none.

Mr. BATE. I ask that the agreement be read, so that we may understand it. Are only bills that are uncontested to be considered?

Mr. HARRIS. Unobjected bills.

Mr. GORMAN and Mr. FAULKNER. Bills unobjected to. The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senators have stated the agreement correctly. The Chair will have it read if the Senator from Tennessee desires.

Mr. BATE. No; that is sufficient.

Mr. HARRIS. One objection will carry a bill over.

Mr. HILL. I ask for the consideration of Order of Business 1059. Senate joint resolution 140.

Mr. PEPPER. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the Senator from Kansas.

Mr. PEPPER. Are we not to proceed according to the Calendar, taking up unobjected bills in their order?

Mr. GORMAN. Oh, no.

Mr. FAULKNER. Any Senator can call up a bill.

Mr. PEPPER. Is there to be a scramble for the floor?

Mr. CULLOM. I hope we shall go ahead under some rule.

Mr. GORMAN. I will state to the Senator from Kansas that I made the request, which was agreed to, that we would take up unobjected cases on the Calendar under the five-minute rule, under Rule VIII, and give an opportunity to each Senator to call up at least one bill.

Mr. PEPPER. Why not take them in their order?

Mr. GORMAN. We can not do it in that way.

Mr. PEPPER. That would prevent confusion.

Mr. ALLISON. I desire to ask if pension bills are to be included in this assignment or if there is a special time arranged whereby pension bills can be disposed of?

Mr. GORMAN. We shall have to give a special time to them; but under this agreement it was the distinct understanding that each Senator was to call up whatever bills he desired, whether a pension bill or otherwise, and if unobjected to it should be considered under Rule VIII.

Mr. CULLOM. I hope there will be an opportunity to call up all unobjected pension bills before we get through.

Mr. GORMAN. Oh, yes.

Mr. FRYE. Let us go ahead and use the time we have.

LIEUT. F. D. ROCKENBACH.

Mr. HILL. I call up the joint resolution (S. R. 149) authorizing Second Lieut. F. D. Rockenbach, of the Tenth Cavalry, United States Army, to accept the position of commandant of cadets at the Virginia Military Academy, Lexington, Va.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. DANIEL, the title was amended so as to read:

A joint resolution authorizing Second Lieut. F. D. Rockenbach, of the Tenth Cavalry, United States Army, to accept the position of commandant of cadets at the Virginia Military Academy, Lexington, Va.

ILLINOIS RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. CULLOM. I call up the bill (H. R. 8882) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Illinois River at or near the town of Hennepin. The bill came over from the House to-day.

Mr. GORMAN. I think I can appeal to the Senator from Illinois. Under the unanimous agreement each Senator was to call up one bill. I repeat the request of the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS] that the roll may be called and each Senator call up a bill when his name is called.

Mr. CULLOM. I have no objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Maryland?

Mr. HILL. I feel constrained to object to that request for reasons which will be apparent before we proceed very long.

Mr. HARRIS. Then I hope that but one Senator will be recognized during the evening session.

Mr. FRYE. That is understood.

Mr. HARRIS. So that each Senator may have his opportunity to call up a bill.

Mr. FAULKNER. That is the unanimous agreement.

Mr. HARRIS. Very well; it is the agreement already.

Mr. CULLOM. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8882) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Illinois River at or near the town of Hennepin.

There being no objection, the bill was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DISTRICT SUBURBAN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. DANIEL. I ask the Senate to consider the bill (H. R. 6816) to amend the charter of the District of Columbia Suburban Railway Company.

Mr. QUAY. I regret exceedingly to say to the Senator from Virginia that I feel it to be my duty to object to the consideration of that bill.

Mr. HARRIS. We can not hear the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. QUAY. I rose to object to the consideration of the bill called up by the Senator from Virginia because some of my constituents who are interested asked me to resist its passage. I regret exceedingly that I am compelled to do so.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection to the consideration of the bill.

MEASUREMENT OF VESSELS.

Mr. FRYE. I call up the bill (S. 2790) to amend section 1 of chapter 398 of the laws of 1882, entitled "An act to provide for deductions from the gross tonnage of vessels of the United States." There being no objection, the bill was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

The first amendment was, in section 2, line 14, before the word "first," to strike out "July" and insert "April;" so as to read:

SEC. 2. That this act shall not be construed to require the measurement of any American vessel duly measured before April 1, 1885; but upon application of the owner of any such vessel, collectors of customs shall cause such vessel, or the spaces to be deducted, to be measured according to the provisions of this act, and if a new register is not issued the statement of such measurement shall be appended to the existing register, or enrollment with a certificate of the collector of customs that the original estimate of tonnage is amended pursuant to this act.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 5, line 7, before the date "1885," to strike out "July" and insert "April;" so as to read:

SEC. 5. That this act shall take effect on the 1st day of April, 1895.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FORT HAYS MILITARY RESERVATION.

Mr. MARTIN. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 2799) granting to the State of Kansas the abandoned Fort Hays Military Reservation in said State, for the purpose of establishing western branches of the Kansas Agricultural College and of the Kansas State Normal Institute thereon, and for a public park.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH W. SNYDER.

Mr. TURPIE. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 7028) to pension Joseph W. Snyder, crippled son of a soldier of the war of 1812.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Joseph W. Snyder, the aged and crippled son of Jacob Snyder, deceased, late a private in Captain Roger's company of Pennsylvania militia, in the war of 1812, and to pay him a pension of $8 a month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROCK CREEK RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. FAULKNER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 8387) relative to Rock Creek Railway Company of the District of Columbia.

Mr. HILL. I am constrained to object to that bill.

Mr. FAULKNER. I appeal to the Senator from New York not to object to the consideration of the bill. It is not connected in any way with and does not affect anything, I am satisfied, to which he has reference, and its passage is very important to carry out the policy we have established here in reference to these roads.

Mr. HILL. There is another policy to be established here which is just as important as this. I am constrained to object to the consideration of the bill, and do so in the interests of fair play.

Mr. FAULKNER. That does not apply to me.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection being made, the bill goes over.

IMPROVEMENT OF OUTER BAR OF BRUNSWICK, GA.

Mr. GORDON. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 2721) to amend the river and harbor act of November 27, 1894, providing for improving the outer bar of Brunswick, Ga.

Mr. HARRIS. I think that is too important a bill to be considered under the rule under which we are proceeding at this time.

Mr. GORDON. I hope my friend from Tennessee will not make an objection to this bill. It has been favorably reported from the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. HARRIS. That may be, but it involves the expenditure of large money, and also involves important considerations; and we are acting under the five-minute rule.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection being made, the bill goes over.

GAINESVILLE, McALESTER AND ST. LOUIS RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. MILLS. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 5063) to grant the Gainesville, McAlester and St. Louis Railway Company the right to build two branch lines and to grant the right of way therefor through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Indian Affairs with amendments, in section 1, line 14, after the word "company," to strike out "east of the Washita River," and insert "at or near the point where said main line crosses Blue River;" in line 19, after the word "Arkansas," to insert "at or near the town of Ultima Thule, Ark.," and at the end of line 22, after the name "Kansas," to insert "at or near the town of Sedan, Kans.," so as to make the section read:

"That the Gainesville, McAlester and St. Louis Railway Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Texas, be, and is hereby, invested and empowered with right of locating, operating, using, and maintaining two branch lines of railway, together with telegraph and telephone lines, from the main line, granted to said company by the act of Congress approved March 1, A. D. 1883, entitled 'An act to grant the Gainesville, McAlester and St. Louis Railway Company a right of way through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes;' both of said branch lines to begin at a point to be selected by the said company at or near the point where said main line crosses Blue River, one to run in an easterly direction by the most practicable route through the Indian Territory down the valley of Red River to a point on the west line of the State of Arkansas, at or near the town of Ultima Thule, Ark., and the other to run in a northerly direction by the most practicable route through the Indian Territory to a point on the south line of the State of Kansas, at or near the town of Sedan, Kans."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

MARYLAND AND WASHINGTON RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. GIBSON. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 8638) to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the Maryland and Washington Railway Company," approved August 1, 1892, and for other purposes.

Mr. HILL. Let that bill be laid aside for the present, Mr. President. I want to examine it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection being made, the bill will go over.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AT BETHEL SPRINGS, TENN.

Mr. HARRIS. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration at this time of the bill (H. R. 725) for the relief of the trustees of the Presbyterian Church of Bethel Springs, Tenn.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It directs the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the trustees of the Presbyterian Church in Bethel Springs, Tenn., $400, being for the use, and occupation, of the church by the Army of the United States during the late war.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES A. EDWARDS.

Mr. HUNTON. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 2066) for the relief of Charles A. Edwards.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It requires the Postmaster-General to enter $200 as a credit on the account of Charles A. Edwards, late the postmaster at Prattville, in the State of Alabama, with the Post-Office Department, the same being the amount of money received by Edwards as postmaster and transmitted by him to the postmaster at Montgomery, and which was lost in transit without fault on his part.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

TENNESSEE RIVER BRIDGE NEAR SHEFFIELD, ALA.

Mr. PUGH. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 8180) to authorize the construction of a bridge over the Tennessee River at or near Sheffield, Ala.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. McMILLAN. It is not on the Calendar.

Mr. HILL. How is the bill to be taken up if it is not on the Calendar?

Mr. ALDRICH. It is on the Calendar, but it has no Calendar number. I reported it from the Committee on Finance to-day.

Mr. McMILLAN. It is a short bill and amounts to nothing.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to pay to James Phelan, United States collector of internal revenue at Detroit, Mich., $600.05, the amount stolen from the vault in the internal-revenue office on the night of April 13, 1894.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BRIGHTWOOD RAILWAY COMPANY OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 4479) to amend the charter of the Brightwood Railway Company of the District of Columbia.

Mr. HILL. This is an important bill, and I shall have to object to it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

MONONGAHELA RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. QUAY. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 4480) to authorize the Pittsburgh, Monongahela and Wheeling Railroad Company to construct a bridge over the Monongahela River.

Mr. GALLINGER. I asked unanimous consent a moment ago for the consideration of a bill unanimously reported by the Committee on the District of Columbia. There is no reason why it should have been objected to, but it was; and I object to the consideration of the present bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

Mr. QUAY. I did not object to the bill the Senator from New Hampshire called up.

INSPECTION OF BOILERS.

Mr. PLATT. I ask to call up House bill 4475.

Mr. QUAY. It seems to me business may as well cease at once if every bill is to be objected to according to the declaration of the Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GALLINGER. According to the declaration of the Senator from New York.

Mr. PLATT. I hope I shall not be punished.

Mr. QUAY. You will be read through.

Mr. PLATT. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 4475) to amend section 434 of Title LII of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a statement occupying two minutes.

Mr. PLATT. Let me have this bill passed first.

Mr. FRYE. Let the bill pass first.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from New Hampshire asks unanimous consent to make a statement. Is there objection?

Mr. FAULKNER. The Senator from New Hampshire has a right to make a statement under the five-minute rule.

Mr. PLATT. Let the bill be read through.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I object to the bill being read until the Senator from New Hampshire makes his statement.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from New Hampshire? The Chair hears none.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, the Committee on the District of Columbia have given very careful consideration to the bill to charter the Suburban Railway Company. A motion was made in committee at a recent meeting to report that bill. That motion was voted down, but out of courtesy the committee allowed the bill to be placed upon the Calendar without recommendation. The Senator from New York, I understand, is interested in that bill. He has asked for unanimous consent to consider a bill that was objected to by one-half of the members of the Committee on the District of Columbia. We could not possibly give consent for the consideration of a bill of that character. Because that bill was objected to the Senator from New York has objected to every other bill relating to street railways in the District of Columbia.

Mr. President, if that is to be the rule we may just as well stop right here and now. I propose to have fair play, and that is all I ask. I do not propose that any Senator coming in here and asking unanimous consent to consider a bill that could not get a majority vote in committee shall obstruct the passage of bills that were unanimously reported by the committee, and I object to the present consideration of the bill.

Mr. HILL. Mr. President—

Mr. HARRIS. I beg permission to say a word.

Mr. HILL. Will the Senator give way and allow me to say a word?

Mr. HARRIS. I would have been through by this time if the Senator had not interrupted me. The word I want to say is that I am in full sympathy with the suggestion of the Senator from New Hampshire; but though I am, it does not justify either the Senator from New Hampshire or myself in thwarting the purposes of other Senators. The course of the Senator from New York is, in my judgment, not to be approved. [Laughter.]

Mr. HILL. Mr. President, I do not know that I have endeavored to regulate my conduct so as to meet the approval of the Senator from Tennessee. I have not endeavored to do so in the past and I will not in the future.

Mr. HARRIS. The Senator will allow me to say—

Mr. HILL. I decline to yield.

Mr. HARRIS. He has signally failed if he has endeavored.

Mr. HILL. The Senator can pursue his course and I will pursue my own. I know my rights and he knows his.

A word as to the statement of the Senator from New Hampshire. In the first place, I have not asked unanimous consent for the consideration of the Suburban Railway Company bill this evening.

The Senator from Virginia [Mr. DANIEL], whose bill it is, asked unanimous consent. It was met with objection.

Mr. QUAY. Will the Senator permit me to interrupt him?

Mr. HILL. Yes.

Mr. QUAY. Before the Senate assembled this evening I mentioned to the Senator from New York and the Senator from Virginia that I should by force of circumstance be compelled to object to that bill, and they were not taken by surprise on the floor by the objection.

Mr. HILL. There were several gentlemen who had notified me that they were going to make the same objection.

Mr. QUAY. I did not know that.

Mr. HILL. The Senator from Pennsylvania was the last one who so notified me. It is the bill to which I called the attention of the Senate some two weeks ago, which was not reported by the Committee on the District of Columbia. This evening was set apart for the consideration of these bills. The bill was entitled to consideration the same as any other bill. If, by reason of objections which were developed to it, it could not be disposed of according to the rules, it could, of course, have gone over. But there was an effort made to prevent its consideration at all. An effort was made by several Senators undesignedly to object to it, and not so much, I think, because they are opposed to the features of the bill, but because they have other bills that they have some sort of interest in. I suppose the Senator does not mean to say that I have any interest in the Suburban Railway bill except the interest of some friends of mine, as I stated. That is all.

Mr. GALLINGER. Of course, Mr. President, I do not mean to say that; but I think the Senator ought to withdraw his insinuation that possibly we have an interest beyond that in some other bills.

Mr. HILL. I only—

Mr. GALLINGER. I will be frank with the Senator.

Mr. HILL. I know nothing about the Senator's interest, and I do not suppose he has any.

Mr. GALLINGER. That is all right.

Mr. QUAY. I will say so far as I am concerned that I have no interest in any one of these bills.

Mr. HILL. The Senator very frankly stated to me that the Philadelphia syndicate are the persons for whom he made objection to the bill.

Mr. QUAY. I did not.

Mr. HILL. And not because the bill affected them, but because it took away certain franchises which they desired to get. That was the milk in the coconut, and that accounted for it.

Mr. QUAY. I did not mention the Philadelphia syndicate. That is a phrase coined by the Senator.

Mr. HILL. No, because it was very well known. The Senator will not now deny but that it was the Philadelphia syndicate for whom he spoke. Of course he will not. He is a frank man.

Mr. President, that there are some bills which interfere with the franchise of that bill and they are to be pushed forward to get clear. So far as I can discriminate in these bills I propose to do so.

I have already stated to two or three Senators if I could be convinced that their bills did not conflict with that bill I had no reason to object to them. Any other bill here that does not affect that measure, or where parties have not endeavored to obstruct that bill, I have no objection to being pushed ahead; but I insist upon it, as I insisted two weeks ago and shall insist to the end, that the Suburban Railway bill shall be fairly treated as well as other bills. I know that the best way to get fair treatment is to insist that all bills shall be treated alike and considered alike.

Mr. GALLINGER. Will the Senator permit me a moment?

Mr. HILL. Yes.

Mr. GALLINGER. The Senator says he would not object to a bill if it did not conflict with his measure. The bill I ask consideration for is to extend the Brightwood Railroad, a suburban road which lost $18,000 last year. That amount of money was taken out of the pockets of its stockholders. It is simply to build a little loop for the benefit of that road. It has nothing to do with the river.

Mr. HILL. I do not know about the loop.

Mr. GORMAN. I rise to a point of order. I suggest that we are acting under the five-minute rule by unanimous consent.

Mr. BATE. We are under the five-minute rule. I was going to call for the enforcement of the rule. Some of the rest of us have not had a showing as yet.

Mr. HILL. I am not anxious to take up time, if the Senator has any other bill. But we will consider the bills to which I refer when that bill is considered, and not before.

Mr. GALLINGER. Having made the statement I have and put myself fairly before the Senate, and I think having exposed the animus of the Senator from New York, I withdraw my objection to the bill of the Senator from Pennsylvania, as well as to that of the Senator from Connecticut. I will let the bills pass if the Senate chooses to pass them.

Mr. QUAY. Then the bill I called up is now before the Senate. Mr. FRYE. The bill called up by my colleague is the one under consideration.

Mr. PLATT. It is a bill of a public character.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I object to any further statement until the bill is concluded.

Mr. FRYE and Mr. GORMAN. Let the bill be read. The Secretary read the bill (H. R. 4475) to amend section 4434 of Title LII of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

Mr. ALLISON. I desire to ask the Senator from Connecticut having charge of the bill if this modification of section 4434 of the Revised Statutes goes into effect immediately?

Mr. PLATT. It goes into effect upon the passage of the act.

Mr. ALLISON. It seems to be a radical change of section 4434, and as it seems to affect the river navigation as well as navigation upon the ocean and the lakes—

Mr. PLATT. It only reduces the thickness of boilers. I do not see how that can affect—

Mr. FRYE. It does not affect any existing boiler in the slightest degree. It only provides for the inspection of boilers hereafter.

Mr. ALLISON. I think I should be permitted to ask a question about it, having some interest in the navigation of the Mississippi River.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill is in Committee of the Whole and open to amendment.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MONONGAHELA RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. QUAY. I now renew my request that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8890) to authorize the Pittsburgh, Monongahela and Wheeling Railroad Company to construct a bridge over the Monongahela River.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DISTRICT SUBURBAN RAILWAY.

Mr. DANIEL. I now ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 6816) to amend the charter of the District of Columbia Suburban Railway Company.

Mr. CHANDLER. I object to the consideration of that bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

Mr. WHITE. I ask the Senate to take up—

Mr. CHANDLER. I withdraw my objection in order to permit the Senator from Virginia to make a statement.

Mr. DANIEL. I desire to make a brief statement about this bill, as it has become a matter of controversy between gentlemen upon the floor.

The Suburban Railway Company was chartered in 1892. It proceeded to organize and has spent upon the enterprise some $11,000. It had the hearty approbation of the gentlemen of the District of Columbia Committee and was reported without objection. The panic was such that they could not succeed in carrying out their enterprise. There was monetary embarrassment with them and all over the country. They have asked at the hands of Congress what nearly every railroad company in the District of Columbia has asked, an extension of their charter. They have been assailed and have been fought at nearly every step by those interested in a great street railway syndicate, who are attempting to buy up and monopolize, as far as possible, the street railways of Washington, and whose power to influence and the various ways in which it may be exercised has been such that up to the present time, although this bill has been before the District of Columbia Committee for over a year, it has never had the opportunity of a fair hearing in the Senate. It has passed the other House, but has not been reported here.

I did not object to the railway bills which other gentlemen brought up, because I was assured by them that they did not belong to nor were they allied with those who were fighting this bill. But for that fact I would have objected to their bills, and I propose whenever I have the opportunity to object to the bills of those who, in my judgment, whatever may be the judgment of other gentlemen, have made an unjust opposition to a public enterprise, and who have denied to it a right which has been granted sometimes over and over again to other street railways in this District, and which some of them are asking now.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, as a member of the Committee on the District of Columbia I have favored reporting in favor of this bill. The committee was equally divided as to whether it should be favorably or adversely reported; and but for the course of the Senator from New York and the Senator from Virginia to-night in objecting to railroad bills in the District, where the committee was absolutely unanimous, I should stand here and urge the passage of this bill.

Mr. DANIEL. Will the Senator yield a moment?

Mr. HARRIS. I do.

Mr. DANIEL. Does the Senator undertake to say that the Senator from Virginia has objected to any other bill?

Mr. HARRIS. I do not undertake to say that the Senator from Virginia has, but I have been informed two or three times that the Senator from New York and the Senator from Virginia were resolved that no street railroad bill should be taken up until the Suburban Railway bill was considered.

Mr. DANIEL. I am not responsible for the Senator's information, but the fact is I did not.

Mr. HARRIS. Very well, I will exclude the Senator from Virginia; but the Senator from New York has shown it by his works. I object.

Mr. GORMAN and Mr. WHITE addressed the Chair.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Maryland. His name is next on the list.

ROCK CREEK RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. GORMAN. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8337) relative to the Rock Creek Railway Company of the District of Columbia.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LAND IN CALIFORNIA.

Mr. WHITE. I desire to call up the bill (H. R. 7834) for the relief of the bona fide purchasers of land in section 36, township 1 north, range 9 west (San Bernardino meridian), in the State of California.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

KANSAS CITY, PITTSBURG AND GULF RAILROAD COMPANY.

Mr. VEST. I desire to call up the bill (H. R. 8900) to amend section 9 of an act entitled "An act to authorize the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Company to construct and operate a railroad, telegraph, and telephone line through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes."

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY E. HAMILTON.

Mr. BATE. I ask to call up the bill (H. R. 6417) to pension Mary E. Hamilton, widow of David Hamilton, soldier in Indian war of 1818.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to pay a pension of $12 per month to Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, of Williamson County, Tenn., she being the widow of David Hamilton, who served in the Indian war of 1818.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ACCOUNT BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND FLORIDA.

Mr. PASCO. I ask that the bill (S. 1386) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to settle the mutual account between the United States and the State of Florida, heretofore examined and stated by said Secretary under the authority of the Congress, and for other purposes, be now considered.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BILOXI AND BACK BAY BRIDGE COMPANY.

Mr. McLAURIN. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 8459) to amend an act entitled "An act to authorize the Biloxi and Back Bay Bridge Company to construct and maintain a bridge over that portion of the bay of Biloxi, in the State of Mississippi, known as Back Bay."

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MOUNT VERNON BARRACKS MILITARY RESERVATION.

Mr. MORGAN. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration at this time of the bill (H. R. 3950) granting the Mount Vernon Barracks Military Reservation to the State of Alabama for public uses.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JENNIE M. HUNT.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 817) for the relief of Jennie M. Hunt.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It directs the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to Jennie M. Hunt $3,040, being the difference between the salary appropriated to be paid to her as a clerk at $1,000 per annum in the office of the Postmaster-General, during the fiscal years ending the 30th day of June 1885, 1886, 1887, 1888, 1889, and 1890, and the salary that was paid to her during those years at the rate of $720 per annum as a clerk in the District Letter Office of the Post-Office Department.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WASHINGTON AND MARLBORO ELECTRIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 8698) to authorize the Washington and Marlboro Electric Railway Company of Maryland to extend its line within the District of Columbia.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on the District of Columbia with amendments.

Mr. HILL. I desire to ask the Senator in charge of the bill what motive power is provided when the railroad enters the city of Washington?

Mr. WOLCOTT. Horsepower, I think, is used. The road comes away from the city, on the outskirts of the town, to Fifteenth street southeast until it gets up to Florida avenue, and then goes up Florida avenue to Seventh street northwest.

Mr. HILL. Horsepower is to be used in the city, I understand. From the hasty reading of the bill at the desk I was not able to ascertain as to that.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendments reported by the Committee on the District of Columbia will be stated.

Mr. WOLCOTT. If the Chair will permit me, I desire to say that I was mistaken in my reply to the Senator from New York. It is provided that the company may use horses until they reach the city and then underground electric wires are to be used.

Mr. HILL. Can the Senator point out the section?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I will show it to the Senator.

The amendments reported by the Committee on the District of Columbia were, section 29, after the word "below," to strike out "trestle or other," and insert "a steel or iron truss;" in line 23, after the word "bridge," to strike out "for the exclusive use of street railways, to be constructed on plans," and insert "resting on masonry piers built parallel to the direction of the current, with pile or other secure and approved foundations, and with spans not less than those of the Pennsylvania avenue bridge, and with a wide drawspan over the channel. The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. HARRIS, Mr. FAULKNER, and Mr. McMICHAEL were appointed.

ALEXANDER M. LAUGHLIN.

Mr. KYLE. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 8894) granting a pension to Alexander M. Laughlin, which is not upon the Calendar, but which passed the other House and came over to-day.

Willis, Fourth Regiment, Fourth Brigade, First Division of the Illinois State Militia, and who served as such in the Indian war of 1832, known as the Black Hawk war, and pay to him a pension of $12 per month.

Mr. CHANDLER. Has this bill been reported from the Committee on Pensions of the Senate?

Mr. CULLOM. The bill is for the benefit of a man 80 years old.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PROTECTION OF FOREST RESERVATIONS.

Mr. TELLER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 119) to protect public forest reservations.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported by the Committee on Public Lands with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

"That all public lands heretofore set apart and reserved by the President of the United States under the provisions of the public-land statutes, and which may hereafter be set aside and reserved as public forest reservations, shall be, as far as practicable, controlled and administered in accordance with the provisions of the following sections:

"SEC. 2. That no public forest reservation shall be established except on proved and protected forest within the reservation or for the purpose of securing the preservation of water for use in the future, and no quantity of timber for the people of the States wherein such forest reservation is located; but it is not the purpose of this act to authorize the public lands, within such reservation, to be used as timber land, or to be used for agricultural purposes, or for timber.

"SEC. 3. That the Secretary of the Interior shall make provisions for the protection and denudation of the public-land forest reservations, and shall set aside, or that may be set aside, under the act of March 3, 1891, and he may make such rules and regulations as shall be such as will be necessary for the protection of such reservations, and to regulate the occupancy and use, and to preserve the forest from destruction. And such violation of the provisions of this act or such rules and regulations shall be punishable by a fine not exceeding $1,000, or imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both, at the discretion of the court. Provided, That for the purpose of preserving the living and growing timber on forest reservations, and to take care of the same, the Secretary of the Interior may, under such rules and regulations as he shall prescribe, may eliminate the trees so much only of the dead or matured trees thereon as may be necessary to preserve the remaining timber, and to carry out the purpose of this section the

If any is published, offering for sale at a less than the appraised value in limited quantities for each purchaser, the appraiser shall be held responsible for the same. It shall be the duty of the local land office of the district wherein said timber is situated, under such rules and regulations the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, to cause the proceeds of the sale of said timber to be made to the register of said land office in a separate account, and shall be covered into the Treasury as a special fund, to be expended in the care and management of said reservations and the preservation of the same. The proceeds of the sale of said timber shall be used in the purchase or rental of such timber for in the employ of the parties purchasing or removing such timber, and he shall make report in writing to the Secretary of the Interior in which shall be included the following: And provided further, That nothing in this act shall be construed as to prevent the Secretary of the Interior from permitting, under regulations to be prescribed by him, persons to take public lands for use as farms, pastures, settlements, mines, residences, and prospectors for minerals, for firewood, for fence, building, mining, or prospecting purposes. And nothing herein shall be construed to exclude the settlers residing on the lands of the reservation, or from the immediate vicinity thereof, from pasturing their cattle on the said reservations, nor shall anything herein prohibit the express or ingress of actual settlers residing within the boundaries of such reservation, or from crossing the same to their property or home, or from constructing such wagon roads as may be necessary to reach their homes and property, nor shall anything herein prohibit any persons from entering upon such forest reserves, Provided, That they comply with the statutes covering such forest reservations.

SEC. 5. That any bona fide settler, who has before the date of the proclamation of the President, been included within any forest reservation of the United States, or any such entry may make application to the Secretary of the Interior, and, if he so desires, relinquish the same to the Government, and in lieu thereof may select and have patented to him, free of charge, a tract of land of like area wherever there are public lands open for settlement.

That any bona fide settler whose lands have been, or may hereafter be included within a forest reservation, may apply to the Secretary of the Interior to have his lands and improvements appraised, and on such application the Secretary of the Interior shall cause said lands and improvements to be appraised, and the time and place of such appraisal shall be advertised. The finding of such appraiser and shall so notify the Secretary of the Interior within six months after notice of such appraisal, the Secretary of the Interior shall mail him the same by express, and shall also cause an estimate of his Department for the ensuing year, and the settler shall be paid for his land and improvements in accordance with such appraisal.

That settlers residing within any forest reservation, or in the vicinity thereof may maintain schools and churches within such reservation, and for that purpose may occupy any of the said forest reservation, not exceeding two acres for each schoolhouse and one acre for a church.

The State wherein such forest reservations are situated shall have civil and criminal jurisdiction over persons within such reservations. Nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit the use of any and all water on such reservations for domestic use or for the purpose of irrigation under the laws of the State wherein such forest reserves are situated.

SEC. 6. That upon the recommendation of the Secretary of the Interior, with the approval of the President, after sixty days' notice published in two papers of general circulation in the State wherein any forest reservation is situated, and nearest to said reservation, any public lands embraced within the limits of any forest reservation may be opened up to public sale by personal inspection of a competent person appointed for that purpose by the Secretary of the Interior, shall be found better adapted for mining or for agricultural purposes than for the purposes of a forest reservation, and any lands in any forest reservation the mineral character of which has been or may be shown in accordance with the existing mining laws of the United States and the rules and regulations applying to the same, may be restored to mineral location and entry: Provided, That prospectors and mineral claimants shall have access to such forest reservations for the purpose of prospecting, locating, and developing the mineral resources thereof.

SEC. 7. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. TELLER. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendment, and ask for a committee of conference with the House of Representatives on the bill and amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. ALLEN, Mr. KYLE, and Mr. TELLER were appointed.

PUNISHMENT OF MURDER AND OTHER CRIMES.

Mr. VILAS. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 5396) to define the crimes of murder in the first and second degrees, manslaughter, rape, mutiny, and desertion; to provide for the punishment therefor, and to abolish the death penalty for other crimes.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. VILAS. Inasmuch as the report of the committee setting out the amendments is in the nature of a substitute, I ask that the bill be read as amended to save time.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. In the absence of objection that course will be pursued.

The bill was reported from the Committee on the Judiciary with amendments.

The first amendment was to strike out section 1, as follows:

That whoever, within any fort, arsenal, dockyard, magazine, or any other place or district of country under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, or upon the high seas or any arm of the sea, or in any river, haven, creek, or on the land within the jurisdiction of the United States, or on or near the jurisdiction of any particular State, by administering poison, or causing the same to be done, or by lying in wait, or by any other kind of willful, deliberate, and premeditated killing, or in the perpetration of, or in the attempt to perpetrate any rape, arson, robbery, or burglary kills any human being, is guilty of murder in the first degree, and upon conviction shall be punished by death.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 2, as follows:

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to change the numbering of section 5 to section 1, and in line 2 of that section, before the word "crime," to strike out "a" and insert "they" in the same line, after the word "crime," to strike out "for which the punishment provided by this act is death" and insert "of murder or of rape under section 5399 or 5345, Revised Statutes;" so as to make the section read:

SEC. 1. That in all cases where the accused is found guilty of the crime of murder or of rape under sections 5399 or 5345, Revised Statutes, the jury may qualify their verdict by adding thereto "without capital punishment;" and whenever the jury so return a verdict upon a charge of murder, the person convicted shall be sent to imprisonment at hard labor for life.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 6, as follows:

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 8, as follows:

The amendment was agreed to.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 12, as follows:

Sec. 12. That this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CULLOM. I desire to know from what committee this bill is reported.

Mr. VILAS. This is a bill which has been passed by the House of Representatives and very carefully considered by the Committee on the Judiciary of the Senate.

Mr. CULLOM. It is a very important bill.

Mr. VILAS. It is an important bill, but it is one which has been very much urged by General Curtis, of New York. The Senate knows the history of that matter. The bill has been very carefully considered. I trust there will be no objection to its consideration.

Mr. CULLOM. I wish the Senator in charge of the bill would explain it within his five minutes.

Mr. VILAS. In one word. Let me first, however, propose an amendment, which is merely verbal. On the second page, in the renumbering of the sections, "Sec. 1" should be omitted, a number not being necessary there, because the first section immediately follows the enacting clause of the bill. I move that that amendment be made.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. VILAS. In the second line, on page 4, section 2, as the bill is now printed, after the words "thirteen hundred and forty-two," there should be inserted "thirteen hundred and forty-three," referring to a section of the Revised Statutes. I move that amendment be made.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. VILAS. This bill simply provides that, except for offenses provided for in the Articles of War and the Articles of the Navy, except in the case of spies in time of war or rebellion, and except murder and rape, the death penalty shall be abolished and imprisonment for life substituted therefor, and in case of murder and rape it shall be competent for the jury to find a qualified verdict of murder, adding to the verdict of guilty the words "with-out capital punishment," in which case imprisonment for life shall be the extreme penalty.

Mr. MANDERSON. What about the crime of treason?

Mr. VILAS. The crime of treason is practically unknown in the United States.

Mr. HAWLEY. No, sir.

Mr. MANDERSON. I do not know about that.

Mr. VILAS. That is to say by judgment of the court, trial and conviction.

Mr. HAWLEY. What is the punishment?

Mr. VILAS. The bill does not except the crime of treason. It leaves that to imprisonment for life.

Mr. HAWLEY. What is the punishment now?

Mr. VILAS. It would change it in that respect.

Mr. MANDERSON. Does not the Senator from Wisconsin think the crime of treason, which certainly is a possible crime in any country, carries in its train about all the crimes of the Decalogue?

Mr. VILAS. That was my own view and argument, and I shall make no objection if anybody chooses to insert it—

Mr. MANDERSON. I think it should be inserted.

Mr. VILAS. If it is desired to insert the exception of the crime of treason.

Mr. CULLOM. It seems to me that for the Senate to pass a bill like the pending one, involving nearly all the more serious crimes and changing the law in a large degree, is rather a strain upon what is proper for an occasion like this, when we are proceeding under the five-minute rule.

Mr. VILAS. Will the Senator from Illinois permit me for a moment?

Mr. CULLOM. Certainly.

Mr. VILAS. The bill has been considered in the House of Representatives. It is the result of an immense deal of labor on the part of a man who has acted as a philanthropist and humanitarian—

Mr. CULLOM. I am aware of that.

Mr. VILAS. And who after great labor has secured the passage of the bill by the House of Representatives. It has been carefully considered in the Committee of the Judiciary by a special subcommittee, and it was considered and reported by the full committee.

Mr. CULLOM. When did the bill come to the Senate?

Mr. VILAS. On January 12, 1895.

Mr. FRYE. Did the Judiciary Committee agree to the bill?

Mr. VILAS. There was no dissent in the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. CULLOM. The Senator from Wisconsin states that the Judiciary Committee gave the bill thorough consideration and unanimously agreed in its favor, I shall make no objection to it, but it does seem to me that it is a very important bill to pass at this time of night, when it is understood that we are considering bills by unanimous consent.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I will state if the Senator from Illinois will allow me, that being a House bill it was referred to a subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee, and it received very thorough examination by the subcommittee. I was not a member of the subcommittee. They reported to the full committee, and it was discussed on more than one occasion at considerable length and agreed to unanimously.

Mr. HAWLEY. I hope the Senator from Wisconsin will—

Mr. TURPINE. I think this legislation proposes too serious a change of existing law to be passed without full discussion in the Senate, and I object to the further consideration of the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Indiana objects to the further consideration of the bill.

CAPITAL RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. BLANCHARD. I ask the unanimous consent of the Senate to consider at this time the bill (H. R. 8714) to incorporate the Capital Railway Company.

Mr. ALDRICH. I object to the bill. I think we have passed enough railroad bills for one night.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

ST. LOUIS RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. WASHBURN. I ask unanimous consent to take from the table House bill 8337 for present consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the bill (H. R. 8337) to authorize the Wisconsin and New Duluth Bridge Company to construct a bridge over the St. Louis River between the States of Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Mr. WASHBURN. I will state that a bill corresponding precisely in terms to this bill has passed the Committee on Commerce, and was reported from that committee and is now on the Calendar. I propose to ask the Senate to pass the House bill in lieu of the Senate bill.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. WASHBURN. I move that the bill (S. 2728) to authorize the Wisconsin and New Duluth Bridge Company to construct a bridge over the St. Louis River between the States of Wisconsin and Minnesota be indefinitely postponed.

The motion was agreed to.

THOMAS B. REED.

Mr. CAMERON. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (H. R. 3150) for the relief of Thomas B. Reed.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to refer to the Court of Claims the claim of Thomas B. Reed, who served as sergeant, first sergeant, and first Lieutenant Fifth Pennsylvania Reserve Corps, and captain Two hundred and fifth Pennsylvania Volunteers of the United States Army, in the late war of the rebellion, for a balance of wages earned by him in the suppression of the rebellion, and during his entire time of service in the Army, and not paid to him.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DUES TO ARMY OFFICERS.

Mr. DAVIS. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 2297) to provide for the restatement, readjustment, settlement, and payment of dues to army officers in certain cases.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was reported from the Committee on Military Affairs with amendments.

The first amendment was, in line 6, to insert the words "Colonel Edmund B. Alexander."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in line 37, to insert "Col. Thomas L. Young, Gen. William W. Lowe, and Capt. William Fletcher."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. DAVIS. I offer an amendment to the bill.

Mr. GORMAN. I am compelled to object to the further consideration of the bill. It is a matter involving too much money, a half million dollars or more.

Mr. DAVIS. I trust the Senator from Maryland will not object until I have a moment to explain the character of the bill.

Mr. GORMAN. Of course I withdraw the objection.

Mr. DAVIS. I presume it seldom happens that a bill is reported to this body which has been examined in so many aspects and in so many ways and with so much care by various tribunals and committees as the one now under consideration. It involves the claim of various old army officers for the additional rations for every five years of service. The bill which has just passed on the motion of the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. CAMERON] is just such a bill for the relief of an individual who is not included in the pending bill.

The question has been one of litigation for many years, and has been settled by the Supreme Court of the United States in the Watson case, in every conceivable aspect in which it can be considered. It has been settled the same way by the Court of Claims. In the Pullman case during the last Congress the Military Committee, after an exhaustive examination of the law of the case, reported a bill favorably upon the lines of the present bill.

With the matter being settled in that way by the courts, by the action of this body, by the action of Congress, it has been deemed better, in view of the pressure upon the Military Affairs Committee by all of these gentlemen for their relief, to allow the Treasury Department to adjudicate those claims if they fall within the classes of men who are entitled to pay for longevity rations for each five years' service. It has been settled by the Supreme Court, the Court of Claims, this body; the House of Representatives has just passed a bill to the same effect, and there is no reason why the labor of the Military Affairs Committee should not be alleviated by the passage of the pending bill.

Mr. HARRIS. Will the Senator from Minnesota kindly state about what amount is involved in the bill?

Mr. DAVIS. I should say perhaps $400,000.

Mr. GORMAN. More than that.

Mr. CHANDLER. I should like to ask the Senator from Minnesota another question. If those officers are entitled to this longevity pay, why do they not get it now?

Mr. DAVIS. Simply because of the operation of one of those instances of bureaucratic perversity that no man can explain.

Mr. CHANDLER. Is not the statute of limitations—

Mr. DAVIS. There is no statute of limitations about it. General Grant got his pay of this kind as a West Point cadet, General

Rosecrans got his, General Kilpatrick got his, and then the Comptroller of the Treasury shut down. Then these individual suits of Watson and others were instituted, and as fast as these men can go through the Court of Claims and the Supreme Court they get their money. It is a claim as well settled as our claim to our salary; it has been adjudicated by the Supreme Court of the United States, and then the Government, through its subordinate officers, stands it off in the way I have described.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. Does the bill profess to include by name all the officers entitled to this longevity pay?

Mr. DAVIS. I should feel inclined to say it substantially includes them all. I will not say all.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. The Senator is not absolutely certain about it?

Mr. DAVIS. No, sir; but substantially and materially. They are men who have served a long period of years, so that each five years brings them additional pay in the way of rations.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. Suppose it should turn out that there are others not named in the bill; they would not be entitled to the benefits of the bill?

Mr. DAVIS. No, sir; not of this bill. They would get special relief.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. Could there not be a general clause put in the bill then to cover all similar cases?

Mr. DAVIS. I shall be content with the bill as it is.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. The Senator from Minnesota might be content. The question is whether those who are not named would be content.

Mr. DAVIS. Perhaps not, but as the manager of the bill I do not ask an amendment in that respect. There are some reasons why I do not ask it.

Mr. MANDERSON. There are other officers named in the amendments proposed to be offered to the bill.

Mr. DAVIS. They are included in the amendment which I have offered.

Mr. MANDERSON. There are two or three in addition which will substantially include all who are in this situation.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I know nothing about the matter, and the reason I make the inquiry is that some time ago I received letters in relation to it, and the matter entirely slipped my mind until now. One letter that I remember was from an army officer now located in the Senator's State.

Mr. DAVIS. If there are any cases of that kind the bill can be amended in the other House. It is a Senate bill.

Mr. CHANDLER. For what period of time will the accounts of these officers be restated and readjusted?

Mr. DAVIS. Take the case of Captain Fletcher, the oldest captain in the Army, who entered the service in 1844—

Mr. CHANDLER. It readjusts his pay during the whole period?

Mr. DAVIS. It does not readjust it at all. It gives him what has been wrongfully withheld.

Mr. CHANDLER. It does readjust his pay. The Senator keeps repeating that the officers are entitled to it.

Mr. DAVIS. I repeat the statement so as to enable the Senator from New Hampshire to understand it.

Mr. CHANDLER. I am very dull—

Mr. DAVIS. I see the Senator is.

Mr. CHANDLER. And I am trying to understand as well as I can what the Senator from Minnesota states so lucidly. If the Senator from Minnesota does not want me to ask questions I shall not ask any.

Mr. DAVIS. I will answer as best I can any question the Senator cares to ask.

Mr. CHANDLER. I object to the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

Mr. DAVIS. Does the Senator from New Hampshire object to the bill?

Mr. CHANDLER. Yes, sir.

MRS. MARY TASSIN.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill (S. 2664) to increase the pension of Mrs. Mary Tassin.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. The Committee on Pensions report an amendment, in line 4, to strike out the word "fifty" and insert "twenty-five."

The SECRETARY. In line 4 it is proposed to strike out "fifty" and insert "twenty-five," so as to make the bill read:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to increase to the sum of $25 per month the pension of Mrs. Mary Tassin, late first Lieutenant Twelfth Regiment United States Infantry; said pension to be in lieu of pension numbered 329342.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

TIMBER AND STONE LANDS.

Mr. CAREY. I ask unanimous consent to call up at this time the bill (H. R. 7259) for the relief of certain settlers who have entered lands under the timber and stone act, etc.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. HARRIS. I ask the Senator from Wyoming if the bill has been reported from the Committee on Public Lands?

Mr. CAREY. It is a bill which has been reported unanimously by the Committee on Public Lands. The Government does not now offer any of such lands at public sale. The bill merely provides that lands which were offered at private sale and not sold shall be subject to the timber and stone law. It removes the restriction.

Mr. HARRIS. The bill was unanimously reported?

Mr. CAREY. Yes, sir; and it is approved by the Secretary of the Interior.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was reported from the Committee on Military Affairs with an amendment, in line 7, to strike out "twenty-five" and insert "five;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc. That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to pay to the administrator of the estate of the late Emmet Crawford, captain, Third United States Cavalry, deceased, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $100,000, the said Crawford having been killed by Mexican soldiers in the Republic of Mexico while acting there under the orders of his military superiors, under treaty stipulations between the Governments of Mexico and the United States.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HELMUTH F. SOECKEL.

Mr. HAWLEY. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 2090) to remove the charge of desertion and grant an honorable discharge to Helmut F. Soeckel.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It directs the Secretary of War to remove the charge of desertion now standing against the record of Helmut F. Soeckel, late private Company C, Sixteenth Regiment Connecticut Volunteers, and grant an honorable discharge.

It proposes to pay to Glenmoire Distilling Company, of Daviess County, Ky., $5,130 paid for stamps for distilled spirits on the 6th day of April, 1893, which spirits were destroyed by fire before the stamps were received at the distillery.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT OAKLAND, CAL.

Mr. PERKINS. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill (S. 2754) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Oakland, in the State of California.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to acquire a site and erect thereon a suitable building for the use of the Government offices, in the city of Oakland, Cal., the cost of the site and building not to exceed $250,000.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CALVARY CATHEDRAL, SIOUX FALLS, S. DAK.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 934) for the relief of the Chapter of Calvary Cathedral, Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to pay to the treasurer of the Chapter of Calvary Cathedral, in the city of Sioux Falls, S. Dak., $2,430, being the amount due for two quarters ending respectively December 30, 1891, and March 30, 1892, for board and tuition for Indian pupils at the Hope Indian Boarding School at Springfield, S. FIRST STATE BANK OF MOUND CITY, ILL.

Mr. DUBOIS. I ask unanimous consent to call up the bill (H. R. 8246) for the relief of the First State Bank of Mound City, Ill.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to refund to the First State Bank of Mound City, Ill., $592.17, being the amount of pension check issued by I. Clements as pension agent at Chicago, Ill., bearing date July 26, 1890, and payable to the order of Ida Hudson (now Ida Carter), and which was cashed by the First State Bank of Mound City, Ill., and was after the time of payment supposed to bear the forged indorsement of the payee, and which indorsement has since been ascertained to be genuine.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARYLAND AND WASHINGTON RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. GIBSON. I renew my request to call up the bill (H. R. 8038) to amend an act entitled "An act to incorporate the Maryland and Washington Railway Company," approved August 1, 1892, and for other purposes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the consideration of this bill?

Mr. DANIEL. Mr. President, I do not rise to make opposition to the bill, but I do rise to ask a question about it, which is suggested by what I find in the report of the Committee of the District of Columbia in favor of Senate bill 2361, which I understand is the same as this, this being the House bill. The Senate report says:

The bill under consideration as amended changes the original act by leaving out the provision prohibiting consolidation with any other company, or the sale of the franchise before the completion of the road, and by prescribing at length the steps to be taken in the condemnation proceedings for the acquisition of the necessary land, which is not done in the act.

I find that the original charter of this company, which was passed in 1892, provides—

That it shall be unlawful for the company hereby incorporated to consolidate with any other railroad company now in existence, or which may hereafter be chartered, and any such consolidation shall of itself operate as a forfeiture of this charter.

Here is a corporation seeking enlarged privileges from Congress. I have no objection to it and I do not rise either to embarrass my friend in the advocacy of the measure which he has called up, or to make any except a bona fide inquiry on the subject. It has attracted my attention as a specific change made by the Committee on the District of Columbia, and I should like to know why it is that in this charter they have left out the provisions heretofore contained in the law prohibiting consolidation.

There has been objection made, I will say while I am upon my feet, to a bill of which I have the honor to be the patron, and if I knew what were the objections to it I would have endeavored to have answered them. I think it is an act of friendship rather than one of criticism or impediment to state what may be the objections to the measures which are before the Senate, that all of us may have a fair opportunity to remedy the objection if it be a just one, or in a brief time, if we may, without unduly delaying the Senate, that we may overcome the objections and pass the measure.

Mr. HARRIS. Will the Senator allow me?

Mr. DANIEL. With pleasure.

Mr. HARRIS. I objected to the bill that the Senator asked to have considered. I stated I thought distinctly the wrong way. I favored in committee the favorable report of the bill the Senator from Virginia asked to have considered, but thereafter had objection on the floor. As I stated then, but the Senator from Virginia corrected me. I was informed that the Senator from New York and the Senator from Virginia had resolved to allow no Dis-

The amendment was agreed to.
The next amendment was in section 8, line 1, after the word "shall," to insert "knowingly," so as to make the section read:
SEC. 8. That no person shall knowingly sell, exchange, or deliver, or have in his custody or possession with intent to sell, exchange, or deliver, skimmed milk containing less than 1 per cent of milk solids, exclusive of fat.

Or from any cow which is known to be suffering from tuberculosis, splenic fever, anthrax, or any general or local disease which is liable to render the milk from said cow unwholesome.

The amendment was agreed to.
The next amendment was to insert as a new section the following:

SEC. 13. That in all cases of sampling, in the District of Columbia, milk taken for analysis shall be taken, examined, and analyzed in the presence of at least two witnesses, one of whom may be the owner of the milk, or his agent, and in all cases such fair sampling shall be made according to the Babcock method, to wit, dumping the milk from one can to another not less than twice before sampling.

The amendment was agreed to.
The next amendment was in section [13] 14, line 9, after the word "days," to strike out "or both such fine and imprisonment;" in line 13, after the word "days," to strike out "or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court;" and in line 17, after the words "period of," to strike out "five years" and insert "six months;" so as to read:

SEC. 14. That persons acting under this act shall be in the police court of said District, on information signed by the attorney of the District or one of his assistants, and any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor and shall, on conviction, be punished for the first offense by a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $2, or by imprisonment for a period of not more than thirty days; and for the second offense and each subsequent offense, by a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $10, or by imprisonment in the workhouse for ninety days, and if the person so convicted of a second or subsequent offense hold a permit under this act, the same shall be considered and no permit shall be issued to said person for a period of six months.

The amendment was agreed to.
The next amendment was in section 14, after the word "months," in line 18, to insert:

Provided, That any person or persons under this act shall have the privilege, when demanded of a trial by jury as in other jury cases in the police court.

The amendment was agreed to.
Mr. GALLINGER. I submit an amendment to the bill, which I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from New Hampshire will be stated and read.
The SECRETARY. After the word "officer," in line 7, section 1, it is proposed to insert:

Provided, That no applicant for said permit shall be restrained from conducting business until said application has been acted upon by the health officer of the District of Columbia or his duly appointed agent.

The amendment was agreed to.
Mr. GALLINGER. I ask that the same amendment may be inserted after the word "milk," in line 9, of section 2.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.
The SECRETARY. In line 9, section 2, after the word "milk," it is proposed to insert:

Provided, That no applicant for said permit shall be restrained from conducting business until said application has been acted upon by the health officer of the District of Columbia or his duly appointed agent.

ANNA M. COLEMAN.

Mr. STEWART. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 593) to permit Anna M. Coleman, a widow, to prosecute a claim.

Mr. HARRIS. That bill is not under the Bowman Act, as I understand it.

Mr. STEWART. No, it is not.

Mr. HARRIS. Does it require the Court of Claims to pronounce judgment?

Mr. STEWART. It is a bill introduced by the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL] and has reference to some money which was taken. It is a dispute about whether it was private property or Government property, and the Court of Claims is to ascertain that fact.

Mr. HARRIS. The object of my inquiry is this: Is this simply for the court to find the facts and report or to pronounce a judgment one way or the other upon the validity of the claim?

Mr. STEWART. It is left for the Court of Claims to pronounce judgment, as I understand.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It refers the claim of Anna M. Coleman, widow, and sole legatee of Charles D. Colman, deceased, against the United States, on account of the seizure by the United States of certain monies and securities in St. Louis, Mo., about February, 1865, held by the bailee as a special deposit theretofore made by said Charles D. Colman, to the Court of Claims; and vests jurisdiction in the court to hear and determine the cause and to render judgment for such amount as the court may find due the claimant, with the right of appeal to both parties; and the statute of limitations shall not apply to the right of recovery by the claimant.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MICHAEL RYAN.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill has been heretofore read.

Mr. HAWLEY. Is that one of the bills which was objected to early in the evening?

Mr. McMILLAN. This is the bill for the Brightwood Railway Company.

Mr. HILL. That was a bill which was laid aside for further consideration. It has since been examined, and found to be a most meritorious bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. QUAY. I ask that the committee amendment, in line 2, be discarded, striking out "sixty" and inserting "seventy-five," and I move to insert "eighty" in lieu thereof, making the elevation 80 feet above the level of the water at pool full.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

Mr. QUAY. I move to amend the amendment of the committee, in line 6, by striking out "750 feet," as the length of the span, and allow the 500 feet to remain.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. The Committee on Commerce reported to amend the bill, in line 5, after the words "less than," by striking out "five hundred" and inserting "seven hundred and fifty."

The amendment was rejected.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. QUAY. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendments, and ask a conference with the House of Representatives upon the bill and amendments.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. VEST, Mr. BERRY, and Mr. QUAY were appointed.

SUBURBAN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. DANIEL. I had intended to ask leave to bring up again to-night a bill which was objected to in the early part of the session, but there are so few Senators here now, and being informed that a quorum might possibly be called, I shall not do that. All I rise to do is to say that I believe this measure is a meritorious one and in the public interest, and, being under my charge, I shall ask the Senate before the adjournment of Congress to give me a fair time, say fifteen or twenty minutes, for the pros and cons of this measure to be stated. I shall not press it upon the attention of the Senate to-night.

Mr. HARRIS. Is that the Suburban Railroad bill?

Mr. DANIEL. Yes, sir.

Mr. HARRIS. I want to say that I objected to the bill to-night; I have favored it in committee, and when the Senator chooses to present it I shall cheerfully cooperate with him.

Mr. DANIEL. I am obliged to the Senator.

RAILROAD LANDS IN CALIFORNIA.

Mr. GORMAN. I move that the Senate adjourn.

Mr. DUBOIS. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maryland. Does he yield?

Mr. DUBOIS. I ask the Senator to yield for a moment while I make a brief statement.

Mr. GORMAN. I will yield for that purpose.

Mr. DUBOIS. The Committee on Public Lands has unanimously reported a resolution, which was introduced by the Senator from California [Mr. WHITE], requesting the Secretary of the Interior to suspend action on all selections filed by land-grant railroad companies for lands situated in the State of California until the 1st day of January, 1896, unless legislation providing for the examination and classification of mineral lands within the limits of such selections shall be enacted previous to said date.

I ask now that it be considered. It is a resolution of only eight lines.

Mr. GORMAN. The Senator knows that I should like to accommodate him, but under the circumstances I must insist upon my motion.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maryland.

The motion was agreed to; and at 11 o'clock and 25 minutes p. m. the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Wednesday, February 27, 1895, at 11 o'clock a. m.

I admit, Mr. Speaker, that it is proper for the Department to hold these clerks up to a high degree of efficiency. The Postmaster-General has that right in the interest of the service. But I maintain that he has no more right to say that these clerks shall live along the line of the road than to say that they shall be married, or that they shall be of a certain weight or a certain height. All that the Postmaster-General ought to require is efficiency of service; and if he is getting that his command over these men should cease.

Mr. HALL of Missouri. Does not the gentleman think that the efficiency of the service would be increased by requiring these men to live where they could be readily secured, instead of compelling the Government to secure transportation for them and pass them from one distant point to another? It seems to me that there is no more injustice in that than in my requiring my employees to live at some point convenient to their work.

Mr. HOPKINS of Illinois. I want to say to the gentleman that the suggestion which he puts to the House is one that has not been supported by the experience of this great Department of the Government. The service has not been inconvenienced by reason of the residence of the postal clerks. As has been stated by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, there are more than 6,000 clerks in the service, and only about 500 of these men are affected by this order. If we adopt the Senate amendment, any person who may enter the service hereafter will be required to live along the line of the road upon which he operates. When a man is obliged to conform himself to an order existing at the time he enters the service, no injustice is done. But the injustice in this case falls upon a large class of men who already have their homes at points not along the line of the road where their service is performed.

This is a matter which these men should be left to determine for themselves. They are a class of intelligent men; and if their efficiency were affected in the least by their residence at other places than upon the lines of the roads on which they are employed they would be the first to discover it. They are men who husband their physical forces for the service, and they are best capable of judging of the demands upon them in this respect than a man who sits over here in this great Department in the city of Washington. They are men who from day to day are put in competition with the men living along the line of their roads, and this rating has never been lowered by reason of residence. I trust that the amendment proposed by the Senate will be adopted by this House.

[Here the hammer fell.]

Mr. HENDERSON of North Carolina. I yield five minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. DUNPHY].

Mr. DUNPHY. Mr. Speaker, in a letter addressed to the gentleman from North Carolina, the chairman of the Post-Office Committee of the House, under date of February 18, 1895, the Postmaster-General used these words:

During the first year that I was in office I found that the effectiveness of the Railway Mail Service was impaired by the fact that these clerks lived at a distance from the railroads upon which they performed their service.

There, Mr. Speaker, is a fact found by the Postmaster-General after one year's diligent and careful attention to the business of his Department. Having discovered that fact, he did what every efficient head of a Department would do, he promulgated a regulation designed to remove the existing evil. At the time there were about 7,000 railway postal clerks. All of them lived on the line of their roads but about 1,300. On the 2d of June, 1894, the Postmaster-General issued an order by which the 1st of next May would be the date for compliance with the order, all the (allowing eleven months for compliance with the order) all the clerks should take up their residence on the roads where they performed their service. Up to day more than 1,000 of these 1,300 clerks, realizing the reasonableness of the rule, have changed their residences; and only about 200 have thus far neglected to do so.

Let me state some of the reasons which have moved the Postmaster-General to adopt this order. In the first place, he thought it unfair to more than 5,000 railway postal clerks to require them to do all the emergency business. Whenever an emergency arises, such as a washout or a blockade, or anything of that kind, only those clerks who live on the line of the road could be called on to perform the work. Those living off the line of the road were by that fact exempt from this extra service. This regulation of the Postmaster-General will distribute all the work amongst the postal railway clerks equally. It will remove an injustice to a large majority of the postal clerks. But 200 of them are now standing between the rule of the Postmaster-General and its full operation, and these 200 seem to have come to Congress to attempt to set aside the regulation of the Post-Office Department by an amendment to a Post-Office appropriation bill.

In the next place, there is an abuse existing in the Post-Office Department to-day which perhaps very few members realize. There is a postal clerk living off the line of his road and is obliged to travel from his residence to the point where his work begins, the obligation rests upon the Department (or the Postmasters-General eral have all so considered) to procure passes for these clerks over the railroads to convey them free from their homes to the place where their work begins.

Mr. TAWNEY. That does not cost the Government anything. Mr. DUNPHY. The Postmaster-General has informed me that this has been a source of annoyance to the Department; that there has been some difficulty with the railroads with which the Government does no business in procuring these passes for postal clerks.

Mr. TAWNEY. I would like the gentleman to say which he regards as the worst, procuring passes for these employees, which cost the Government nothing, or confiscating the property of the clerks.

Mr. DUNPHY. I do not admit that there is any confiscation. The question is one between the convenience of 260 clerks and the efficiency of the whole railway mail system. We ought not to be moved, Mr. Speaker, in our legislative duties by a desire to be generous to a few clerks. We should do what we think is right, what we regard as proper for the proper administration of the entire service. That is our duty and nothing else.

Mr. MEREDITH. If the gentleman will permit me, I want to call his attention to this fact—I called it to the attention of the Department myself, and went there to look into it the other day: I have in my mind now a clerk who is living on the main line of what is known as the Southern Railroad, over which some eight or ten trains daily come into the city of Washington. His duties take him on what is known as the Manassas road, from Manassas to Strasburg. He has to come to this city to begin his duties. Situated as he is now and living where he does he can come here readily from eight to ten times a day, if he is allowed to live where he has bought and owns a comfortable little home. But when you force him to go out on the line of the road where he is employed, he can not get here but once a day.

Now, I claim it is not just. I claim that it is not right, where a clerk renders efficient service, to subject him to any such unnecessary and arbitrary requirement.

Mr. DUNPHY. Does the gentleman think that a single isolated case of the kind to which he refers should interfere, or be allowed to interfere, with a rule of the Department for the management of the branch in which the public service?

Mr. MEREDITH. I do not think the rule of the Department is at all necessary.

Mr. TAWNEY. Does not the gentleman from New York know that there are always "subs" here waiting and watching for a chance to take the places of these men who may not be able to get here?

Mr. DUNPHY. In addition, Mr. Speaker, to what I have said, it is certain that if we allow ourselves to be swayed by sentiment in this matter it will be a most disastrous blow to the general discipline and efficiency of the Post-Office and every other Department. These two hundred and sixty or seventy postal clerks will all be able to "laugh up their sleeves" at a thousand or more clerks who have already obeyed the order; and hereafter whenever a Postmaster-General, or any officer in charge of one of the Departments of the Government, desires to promote the efficiency of his Department by the issuance of some order affecting the various employees to which individual clerks or some of them are opposed they will be found coming to the members on this floor and pleading with them to have such order set aside. I can not conceive of a more mischievous action for the House to take; and whether my sympathies are with the clerks or not—and I regret exceedingly that it was found necessary on the part of the Postmaster-General to issue this order—notwithstanding that my sympathies may be with some of those men, yet I feel that there is a duty which we must perform.

Mr. TAWNEY. Let me ask the gentleman if there is not a precedent for the proposed action on the part of the House, when, on another occasion, a Postmaster-General made an order requiring the postal clerks to wear uniforms.

Mr. DUNPHY. What Postmaster-General?

Mr. TAWNEY. Under the last Administration of Mr. Cleveland.

Mr. DUNPHY. Well, I am not talking now of wearing uniforms, but I am talking of a rule which is for the best interest of this branch of the public service.

Mr. TAWNEY (continuing). And this order requiring the clerks to wear uniforms was set aside or revoked by order of Congress.

Mr. DUNPHY. And in view, Mr. Speaker, of the importance of this matter I hope the House will insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate.

Mr. HENDERSON of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I would like to reserve my time now and allow the gentleman from California to proceed. I have but a few minutes remaining.

Mr. LOUD. Mr. Speaker, I believe, with the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. DOCKERY], that the discipline of the postal service should be preserved. No man would go further than I to precellaneous document, in lieu of the bill (H. R. 8834) for the relief of Richard P. Blackstone. (Report No. 1937.)

By Mr. MOSES, from the Committee on Pensions: A bill (S. 2122) to increase the pension of Mrs. Eunice Ida Rhoades. (Report No. 1938.)

SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, February 27, 1895.

The Senate met at 11 o'clock a. m.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. W. H. MILBURN, D. D.

THE JOURNAL—CORRECTION OF RECORD.

The Secretary proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday's proceedings.

Mr. QUAY. If there is no objection, I ask that the further reading of the Journal be dispensed with. However, before the Journal is approved I wish to state that I noticed in the RECORD of last night's proceedings, in passing the bill (H. R. 6078) to authorize the Pittsburg and Mansfield Railroad Company to construct and maintain a bridge across the Monongahela River, the RECORD states that I moved to amend the amendment of the Committee on Commerce in line 6 by striking out "750 feet" and allowing "500 feet" to remain. Exactly the reverse is what occurred. I arranged that section of the bill so that the channel span should stand at 750 feet. The words "five hundred feet" were stricken out and "seven hundred and fifty feet" inserted. I wish to see how it stands on the Journal.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Journal is correct, and the RECORD will be corrected to correspond with the Journal. The Senator from Pennsylvania asks that the further reading of the Journal be dispensed with. The Chair hears no objection, and it is so ordered.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting for the consideration of Congress a letter from the Attorney-General amending his estimate of appropriation for "defending suits in claims against the United States, 1894," from $333.20 to $371.20; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting for the consideration of Congress estimates of deficiencies in appropriations for the postal service, payable from the postal revenues, etc., which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the Attorney-General, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the 26th instant, a list of all judgments rendered against the United States by the State and district courts of the United States, under section 11 of the act of March 3, 1887, etc., which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 8556) concerning carriers engaged in interstate commerce and their employees; and

A bill (H. R. 8713) providing for the publication of the bulletin of the Department of Labor.

SUNDRY CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. HALE. The Senator from Missouri, in charge of the pending appropriation bill, desires to go on with that measure. He is engaged in conference, and I have just sent for him. I ask that the sundry civil appropriation bill be laid before the Senate.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8518) making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes.

Mr. COCKRELL. On page 127, after line 18, I move to insert:

To pay to Henry Talbot, for extra services to the Committee on Finance of the Senate during the consideration and debate of the tariff bill, $2000.

The amendment was agreed to.
Mr. WOLCOTT. I suggest the absence of a quorum.
The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll.
The Secretary called the roll; and the following Senators answered to their names:

Allen,	Faulkner,	Manderson,	Ransom,
Alvord,	Gallinger,	Martin,	Reach,
Bate,	Goodyear,	Mills,	Sherman,
Berry,	Gordon,	Miller of W. V.,	Teller,
Blair,	Gurnea,	Murphy,	Vest,
Burrows,	Hale,	Palmer,	Voorhees,
Callahan,	Harris,	Pollock,	Walsh,
Cameron,	Hawley,	Perkins,	Washington,
Canfield,	Huntton,	Peterson,	Wolcott,
Clark,	McClain,	Platt,
Cockrell,	McPherson,	Proctor,
Davis,		Quay,

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Forty-five Senators have answered to their names. A quorum is present.

Mr. COCKRELL. On page 96, at the end of line 4, I move to insert:

For the purpose of building a hospital at Fort Meade, S. Dak., $25,000, to be immediately available.

In connection with this amendment I have here letters from the Secretary of War and the Surgeon-General of the Army, showing that that hospital has been burned in the last few days and that this appropriation is a necessity. The amendment has been reported from the Committee on Military Affairs. I ask that the letters may be printed in the RECORD.

The letters referred to are as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT, SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, February 21, 1895.

Respectfully returned to the honorable the Secretary of War.
On February 15 the post-surgeon at Fort Meade, S. Dak., telegraphed me as follows:

"Hospital destroyed by fire last night, most of books, instruments, records, and office property saved; stores and medicines practically all lost; author requested to purchase medicines if necessary. Two field chests saved; will use them."

Fort Meade is the headquarters of a cavalry regiment with a garrison of eight troops of cavalry. It is important that a new hospital should be built as soon as possible to replace the one destroyed by fire. In my opinion a suitable building of brick with steam or hot-water heating plant, can be built for about $25,000. If the appropriation is made plans for such a building will be drawn in my office.

GEORGE M. STERNBERG,
Surgeon-General, United States Army.

WAR DEPARTMENT, February 24, 1895.

Respectfully returned to the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, United States Senate, inviting attention to the preceding indorsement of the Surgeon-General.

JOSEPH B. DOE,
Assistant Secretary of War.

WAR DEPARTMENT, SURGEON-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, February 25, 1895.

SIR: I have the honor to recommend favorable consideration by the Military Committee of the amendment to H. R. 8518, introduced by Senator Pittman, "for the purpose of building a hospital at Fort Meade, S. Dak."

The hospital destroyed by fire on the 17th of February, and it is very important that money should be appropriated for the construction of a new one, and that such a building should be built as soon as possible.

A suitable brick building with modern appliances for heating and ventilation can be built for less than the amount asked for, $25,000.

GEORGE M. STERNBERG,
Surgeon-General, United States Army.

HON. WILLIAM B. BATE,
Chairman, Committee on Military Affairs, United States Senate.

WAR DEPARTMENT, February 25, 1895.

Respectfully transmitted to the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, United States Senate, inviting attention to the within report of the Surgeon-General, and recommending favorable consideration.

DANIEL S. MONT,
Secretary of War.

Mr. BATE. This amendment was reported from the Committee on Military Affairs, and the necessity of the situation requires that a hospital should be built at Fort Meade. The hospital there was burned last week. There is a regiment of cavalry stationed there and means of taking care of the sick. The matter was telegraphed here and referred to the Secretary of War, and is recommended by him, and also by the Surgeon-General of the Army.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. GORMAN. On page 135, at the end of line 23, I move to insert:

For pay of a person to be designated, as required by law, by the Joint Committee on Printing to constitute, with the chief clerk, the foreman of printing, and the foreman of binding, the three boards first, to examine and report in writing on all paper delivered under contract to the Government Printing Office; second, to examine and report in writing on all material except paper for the use of the foreman, and third, the board of condemnation to determine, at the end of the Public Printer, the condition of presses and other machinery and material used in the Government Printing Office with a view to condemnation, $2500.

Mr. MANDERSON. This is to carry out a provision of existing law which requires that the Joint Committee on Printing shall appoint the third member of the three several boards.

Mr. GALLINGER. There is a provision now in the law.

Mr. MANDERSON. There is a provision now in the law.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Maryland.

The amendment was agreed to.

PETITIONAL APPROVALS.

A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. PRIDEN, one of his secretaries, announced that the President had on the 26th instant approved and signed the following acts:

An act (S. 2531) to amend the charter of the Metropolitan Railroad Company of the District of Columbia; and An act (S. 2530) granting a pension to Caroline E. Wessells.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The bill (H. R. 8556) concerning carriers engaged in interstate commerce and their employees was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

The bill (H. R. 8713) providing for the publication of the bulletin of the Department of Labor was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Printing.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the legislature of Massachusetts, praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the building of a new dry dock or the enlargement of the present dry dock at the Charlestown Navy-Yard for the accommodation of the war ships of the United States Navy and the larger merchant vessels entering the port of Boston, Mass.; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. HOAR presented resolutions of the legislature of Massachusetts; which were referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[Commonwealth of Massachusetts. In the year 1895.]

Resolutions relative to the dry dock at Charlestown Navy-Yard.
Whereas there exists an immediate need of a dry dock at Boston which shall be of sufficient length, width and depth to receive the battleship Massachusetts (its keel and keelson and other parts not being long for trade with said port);

And whereas it is the duty of the legislature of the Commonwealth to provide for the building of a new dry dock or the enlargement of the present dry dock at the Charlestown Navy-Yard for accommodation of the war ships of the United States Navy and the larger merchant vessels entering the port of Boston;

Resolved, That the president of the Senate and the speaker of the House of representatives of the Commonwealth be instructed to present or forward these resolutions to Congress.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, January 21, 1895.

Adopted. Sent up for concurrence.

EDWARD A. McLAUGHLIN, Clerk.

SENATE, February 6, 1895.

Adopted, in concurrence.

HENRY D. COOLIDGE, Clerk.

A true copy. Attest:

EDWARD A. McLAUGHLIN,

Chief of the House of Representatives.

Mr. QUAY. I present a petition 63 feet long and signed by several hundred citizens of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of Senate bill No. 2523, to regulate the mode of removal of letter carriers, post-office clerks, and railway postal clerks. I move that the petition be referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

The motion was agreed to.

PRICES AND WAGES.

Mr. PEPPER. I have a very important publication here, a small one, that I ask unanimous consent to have printed as a miscellaneous document. It is a review of the Senate Finance Committee's report concerning the wages paid to labor and matters of that kind. It was prepared by Mr. Frederick C. Waite, statistician of the Department of Agriculture. It is a document that I think is very well worth preserving. A few copies were printed in private form by himself, and I ask that it may be printed as a document.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection?
Mr. GORMAN. Let the publication be referred to the Committee on Printing.

Mr. PEPPER. Very well; if a reference is insisted on.
The VICE-PRESIDENT. The publication will be referred to the Committee on Printing.

[illegible]

post-offices as he may select; and the Secretary shall use the moneys received for such certificates for the purposes herein prescribed, and for none other: Provided, That the total amount of such certificates shall not exceed $100,000; and provided further, That the power to issue such certificates shall determine on the first day of July, 1894.

And hereafter any United States bonds sold or disposed of shall first be offered to the public for a period of not less than twenty days, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, and shall be sold to the highest bidder, in case such bids or any of them are satisfactory.

Mr. COCKRELL. Now I ask that the last section of the bill may be read, so that the reading of the bill may be finished.

The reading of the bill was concluded.

Mr. COCKRELL. Before any discussion of the amendment of the committee, I desire to suggest two little changes. On page 137, line 5, after the word "authorized," I move to strike out the word "to"; and in same line, before the word "borrow," to insert the word "to"; so as to read:

Authorized, from time to time, to borrow on the credit of the United States.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the committee will be so modified.

Mr. COCKRELL. Also, on the same page, in line 12, after the word "bearing," I desire to insert the word "interest," so as to read:

Bearing interest at the rate of not exceeding 3 per cent per annum.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the committee will be so modified.

Mr. BERRY. I desire to make a point of order against section 2, that it is general legislation on a general appropriation bill.

Mr. FRYE. That is the amendment reported by the committee?

Mr. BERRY. I mean the amendment with reference to the issue of 3 per cent certificates, known as section 2.

Mr. HILL. While the question is before the Senate, and before the argument proceeds, as I presume there will be discussion, I desire to amend the latter part of that which has been read by inserting, on page 138, at the end of line 14:

And hereafter any Treasury notes and United States notes which may be redeemed shall not be reissued, but shall be canceled.

Mr. GORMAN. I do not understand that the Senator from Arkansas makes his point of order now.

Mr. ALDRICH. I make the point of order on the amendment of the Senator from New York, unless the Senator from Maryland proposes to do the same thing.

Mr. GORMAN. I trust the Senator from Arkansas will withdraw his point of order.

Mr. BERRY. I will withhold it in order to hear the Senator from Maryland.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair prefers to hear the suggestion upon the point of order.

Mr. BERRY. I will withdraw it for the present until the Senator from Maryland makes his statement; but I desire to reserve it so that there can be no question about it hereafter.

Mr. VOORHEES. Pardon me a moment. After the Senator from Maryland makes his speech it may be proper and possibly necessary for other gentlemen to make some comments on the amendment, and if the point of order is to be pressed it ought to be pressed now so as to cut off debate. It ought not to let in a part of the debate and then be presented.

Mr. BERRY. Very well. I make the point of order that the amendment is general legislation on a general appropriation bill.

Mr. GORMAN. Let us have that question determined by the Chair.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair prefers to hear the suggestions of Senators touching the question of order, inasmuch as the point of order has been made.

Mr. ALDRICH. What is the question of order now before the Senate?

Mr. HILL. I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the Senator.

Mr. HILL. I ask if the Senator from Arkansas makes the point of order on both the propositions? They are, of course, entirely distinct from one another, and I wish to know if the point of order is made on both?

Mr. GORMAN. On the whole subject.

Mr. BERRY. On the whole thing.

Mr. VEST. Do I understand the Senator from Arkansas to make the point of order on the amendment offered by the Senator from New York [Mr. HILL]?

Mr. BERRY. I made the point of order before the Senator from New York offered his amendment. I make the point of order on section 2, as reported by the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. VEST. The Senator has made no point of order on the amendment offered by the Senator from New York?

Mr. BERRY. No; I did not know what the Senator from New York proposed to do when I made the point of order.

Mr. HILL. There will be no controversy on that subject. I concede, if the point of order would be well taken on the two propositions contained in the amendment of the committee, of course the point of order would be well taken on the amendment submitted by me.

I wish to call the attention of the Chair to the point that there is a distinction between the two propositions reported by the committee, and a very great distinction. One part of the amendment relates to the issue of certificates and the providing of revenue and the method in which the revenue shall be raised. The propositions are different entirely.

I do not care about discussing them now, because the Senator from Maryland desires to speak upon the main proposition, but I do not want the question decided until we can have an opportunity to discuss it.

Mr. MILLS. This is a very important question, and I hope when the question is to be decided the Chair will follow the precedents heretofore established and submit the question to a vote of the Senate.

Mr. CULLOM. As it is evident that there is some desire for discussion on this question I think that the point of order had better be waived until after a fair discussion has been had, and then it will be for the Presiding Officer to dispose of the question as he may see proper.

It seems to me that it is preferable to discussing the subject generally when the point of order is pending. I hope the point of order will be waived for the time being until reasonable discussion may be had.

Mr. BERRY. Mr. President, I desire to state that we have but very little time, and there are two or three other appropriation bills behind the pending one to be acted upon, and if the pending amendment is out of order, as I clearly believe it to be, I see no necessity for a general discussion of financial questions upon an amendment which, I believe, will be held to be not in order, and my friends here insist that the point of order shall be put now. I make the point of order.

Mr. HILL. Mr. President, I desire to say a few words, but I prefer to wait and allow the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] to proceed with his discussion as to the propriety of the amendment upon its merits.

Mr. CULLOM. That raises the exact question.

Mr. HILL. I desire only to make a few suggestions, with the permission of the Senate, upon the point of order. I will detain the Senate but a very few moments.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the Senator.

Mr. HILL. There are now pending three amendments, for the first substantially proposed by the Committee on Appropriations, and one proposed by myself as a supplementary amendment. The first amendment proposed by the committee, as I was proceeding to say, authorizes the issuing of certain certificates for the purpose of raising revenue to supply deficiencies.

Mr. MILLS. I rise to a question of order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator will state his point of order.

Mr. MILLS. Is debate in order?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Debate is not in order, except by unanimous consent.

Mr. MILLS. I object, unless we can all have unanimous consent to debate.

Mr. CULLOM. So do I.

Mr. MILLS. We all want to have the same opportunity.

Mr. MANDERSON. I may have misunderstood the Chair, but I understood the point of order to be submitted to the Senate. If that is so it is debatable.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair has not submitted the point of order to the Senate.

Mr. CULLOM. I hope the debate will be confined to the point of order specifically, unless debate can be had, by unanimous consent, for a reasonable time.

Mr. MILLS. The point of order is not debatable.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The point of order is not debatable, but, this being an important question, the Chair stated he would be willing, and would be very glad to hear suggestions upon the point of order, not upon the merits of the amendment.

Mr. HILL. I do not propose to discuss the merits.

Mr. HOAR. I desire before the Senator proceeds that the exact position of the question should be stated from the Chair. Some Senators here do not understand it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state that the Committee on Appropriations has reported an amendment, and as there was much confusion in the Chamber the amendment will be again stated.

Mr. ALLISON. I suggest that it is not necessary that the Secretary should read the amendment. It appears as section 2 of the bill in the print, which we all have before us, and I suppose all Senators have it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Upon the proposed amendment the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BERRY] makes a point of order that it is general legislation upon a general appropriation bill. That is the status of the question at this time, and debate is not in order,

On his return home at Galesburg, Ill., he was not long left to enjoy the comforts and pleasures of domestic life, but was called to serve that intelligent and rich district upon this floor. For eight years he did so with ability and fidelity, and last November he was elected to serve a fifth term. I first met General Post, so as to become personally acquainted with him, in 1886, while he was Department Commander of the G. A. R. of Illinois. I knew much of his history as a soldier before that date, and admired him as a dashing officer, but when I came to know him personally, I discovered traits in his personality that greatly increased my admiration and drew me close to him as a comrade and man.

In the mad rush of a military and official life, he drew to him close and warm friends. As I witnessed the swaying throng of sorrowing people who passed with measured tread and bowed heads at his home in Galesburg to look upon his calm face as it lay in state, I was convinced that nowhere did he have so many friends as at his home.

The honors and distinction he bore were won in the line of active duty faithfully discharged. On the forum and from the hustings he was a tower of strength, not for his eloquence but because of his candor, sincerity, and unquestioned integrity. The people believed in Philip Sidney Post, and he believed in the common people. His honesty and tireless industry gave him a place in the hearts of his constituents such as few men attract.

But others are far better able to speak of him as a statesman and diplomat than I. As a comrade of that great army of soldiers who report bitter hours of trial, let me remember and speak of him. The marble monuments built by grateful hands will crumble and fall, but the memory of the heroic and honorable career of Philip Sidney Post will live on, because it is preserved in story and history.

He went out, as we all must go, at the summons from on high. Did he go to the deathless solitude of forgetfulness? We believe not. The longings of the human heart in all the ages is well expressed by Cato, when he says:

Plato, thou reasonest well!
Else whence this pleasing hope, this fond desire,
This longing after immortality?
Or whence this secret dread, and inward horror,
Of falling into naught?—We strike the soul
Back on herself, and startles at destruction!
'Tis the divinity that stirs within us.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, February 28, 1895.

The House met at 12 o'clock m. Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. E. B. BAGBY.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

Mr. PEARSON, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that he had examined and found truly enrolled bills of the following titles, when the Speaker signed the same:

A bill (H. R. 8391) for the relief of Michael Ryan;
A bill (H. R. 8373) making appropriation for the service of the Post-Office Department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896;

A bill (H. R. 8880) to authorize the Pittsburg, Monongahela and Wheeling Railroad Company to construct a bridge over the Monongahela River;

A bill (H. R. 8337) relative to Rock Creek Railway Company of the District of Columbia;

A bill (H. R. 5260) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Corbary;

A bill (H. R. 8327) to authorize the Wisconsin and New Duluth Bridge Company to construct a bridge over the St. Louis River, between the States of Wisconsin and Minnesota;

A bill (S. 2343) in aid of the exposition to be held under the auspices of the Baltimore Centennial Association, and for other purposes; and

A bill (H. R. 8882) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Illinois River at or near the town of Hennepin.

CATHERINE OTT.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States, which was read and referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions:

To the House of Representatives:

I herewith return without approval House bill No. 6868, entitled "An act for the relief of Catherine Ott, widow of Joseph Ott."

An application by the beneficiary named in this bill under the law of 1890 was referred on the ground that her husband died in the service, and therefore had not been honorably discharged as required by that law.

It appears that after he had served a number of years in a cavalry regiment, he was discharged for disability, he was transferred to the Veteran Reserve Corps and was then discharged at the time of his death. In these circumstances the retention of the beneficiary's claim on the ground stated is held, under present rulings of the Pension Bureau, to have been erroneous; and such claim can now be favorably adjudicated upon proof of continued widowhood of the applicant and the lack of other means of support than her daily labor.

If such proof is supplied she would be entitled to a pension dating from July 4, 1861, which would be much more advantageous than the relief afforded by the bill herewith returned.

If the beneficiary can justly claim a pension dating from her application to the Pension Bureau, the bill herewith returned is not necessary, and should not be superseded by this special legislation which allows relief only from the date of its enactment.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, February 27, 1895.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS BY COLLECTORS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House a letter from the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, recommending that collectors and deputy collectors of customs be authorized to administer oaths in certain cases; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

GAINEVILLE, McALESTER AND ST. LOUIS RAILWAY COMPANY.

The bill (H. R. 5062) to grant the Gainesville, McAlester and St. Louis Railway Company the right to build two branch lines and to grant the right of way therefor through the Indian Territory, and for other purposes, was laid before the House with the amendments of the Senate.

Mr. BAILEY. I move that the Senate amendments be concurred in.

The amendments were read, and concurred in.

On motion of Mr. BAILEY, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the amendments were concurred in was laid on the table.

BRIDGE OVER THE MONONGAHELA RIVER.

The bill (H. R. 6078) to authorize the Pittsburg and Mansfield Railroad Company to construct and maintain a bridge across the Monongahela River was laid before the House with the amendments of the Senate.

Mr. DALZELL. I move that the amendments be concurred in.

The amendments were read and concurred in.

On motion of Mr. DALZELL, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the amendments were concurred in was laid on the table.

INSIGNIA OF THE RED CROSS, ETC.

The bill (H. R. 5580) to protect the insignia and the name of the Red Cross was laid before the House with amendments of the Senate.

Mr. MCCREARY of Kentucky. I move to concur in the Senate amendments.

The amendments were read, and concurred in.

On motion of Mr. MCCREARY of Kentucky, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the amendments were concurred in was laid on the table.

SALE OF MILK IN DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The bill (H. R. 8231) to regulate the sale of milk in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, was laid before the House with the amendments of the Senate and a request for a conference.

Mr. HEARD. I move to nonconcur in the Senate amendments and agree to the conference asked.

Mr. DINCLEY. Let the amendments be read.

The Clerk proceeded to read the following amendments:

Page 6, change "Sec 14" to "Sec 15."

Mr. DINGLEY (before the reading was concluded). I will not ask the further reading of these amendments, if they can be printed in the RECORD without being read.

Mr. HEARD. Mr. Speaker, I will say very plainly to the House that I would sooner see this bill indefinitely postponed than see these amendments of the Senate concurred in. The proposed amendments insert throughout the bill the word "knowingly" or the words "with knowledge of the impurity of the milk," etc.; so that under the bill thus amended it would be necessary in every case where parties are prosecuted for vending impure milk to show that they had knowledge of the impurity. In that shape the bill would be absolutely worthless.

Mr. DINGLEY. The gentleman's motion proposes nonconcurrence and a conference.

Mr. HEARD. Yes, sir.

Mr. DINGLEY. Let the amendments be printed in full in the RECORD. That will not delay the conference, of course.

Mr. HEARD. I have no objection to that.

The SPEAKER. Without objection the amendments of the Senate will be printed in full in the RECORD. The Chair hears no objection. The question is now on the motion of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. HEARD] to nonconcur in the Senate amendments and agree to the conference asked.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER announced as conferees on the part of the House Mr. COOPER of Indiana, Mr. COOPER of Florida, and Mr. HULL.

WASHINGTON AND MARLBORO ELECTRIC RAILWAY.

The bill (H. R. 8098) to authorize the Washington and Marlboro Electric Railway Company of Maryland to extend its line to and within the District of Columbia, was laid before the House with amendments of the Senate.

Mr. HEARD. I ask that these amendments be read, my purpose being to move that they be concurred in. There are but two important amendments. The first relates to the character of the bridge which this company is to build across the Eastern Branch. The amendment requires that this bridge shall conform to the requirements of the War Department and the promoters of the road are willing to accept the condition. The other amendment proposes, at the suggestion of the District Commissioners, a change in the route from Fourteenth street to Fifteenth street and extending on Boundary to Seventh street. Both these amendments are, I think, largely in the interest of the public.

The Senate amendments were read at length.

Mr. McMILLIN. I believe the gentleman from Missouri recommends concurrence in these amendments?

Mr. HEARD. Yes.

Mr. McMILLIN. Will the gentleman be kind enough to explain the amendments, as from their reading, unless they are read in connection with the sections to which they apply, the House can not rather their meaning.

Mr. HEARD. I would be very glad to further explain the amendments.

The first amendment is to make one of the provisions of the bill conform to the requirements of the War Department with regard to the character of the bridge to be built; that is to say, the Department requires the construction of a steel or iron truss bridge of a certain description. Another amendment, also recommended by the War Department, is to strike out from the bill the language inserted by the House with reference to the obstruction of the navigation of the river, and provides that this bridge shall be built parallel to the direction of the current, with approved foundations, with spans not less than those of the Pennsylvania avenue bridge, and a wide drawspan over the channel. The next amendment is to change the route of the road from Fourteenth to Fifteenth street, that being a wider street, which change is recommended by the Commissioners, and approved by the Senate committee and the Senate. The next amendment relates to the extension of the line of the road, making it run northwesterly on Florida avenue to Seventh street northwest, intersecting the Georgetown road, making practically a belt line from the Eastern Branch to Eighteenth street and Connecticut avenue northwest.

Mr. McMILLIN. These amendments, I understand, are recommended either by the Commissioners or the Secretary of War?

Mr. HEARD. I so understand, that they are recommended by both, and have been approved by the Senate committee.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Missouri moves to concur in the amendments of the Senate.

The amendments of the Senate were concurred in.

On motion of Mr. HEARD, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. PIATT, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendments bills of the following titles:

A bill (H. R. 7177) for the relief of Barzilla C. Hudson; and

A bill (H. R. 8904) for the relief of the heirs and devisees of Jonathan Kirkwood, deceased.

The message also announced that the Senate had agreed to the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2798) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the erection of a Government building at Chicago, Ill., approved February 13, 1895."

The message also announced that the Senate had passed the following resolution; in which the concurrence of the House was requested:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That there be printed 5,000 copies of the report of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry on cotton, this day submitted, of which 500 shall be for the use of the said committee, 200 for the State Department, 200 for the Bureau of Statistics, and 1,500 for the Senate, and 3,000 for the House of Representatives.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT.

A message in writing from the President of the United States was communicated to the House by Mr. PRUDEN, one of his secretaries, who also announced that the President had on February 27, 1895, approved and signed a bill of the following title:

An act (H. R. 6333) to amend Articles for the Government of the Navy, relative to punishment on conviction by court-martial.

PROTECTION OF FOREST RESERVATIONS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 119) to protect public forest reservations.

Mr. CAMINETTI. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House disagree to the amendments of the Senate and agree to a conference on that bill.

The SPEAKER. This is a House bill with Senate amendments. Mr. LOUD. I move the reference of the bill and amendments to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Mr. HERMANN. I move that the House concur in the Senate amendments.

The SPEAKER. The amendments of the Senate will be read.

Mr. CAMINETTI. This matter, Mr. Speaker, came up in the Committee on Public Lands on yesterday.

The SPEAKER. The motion is not debatable.

Mr. DOCKERY. Let the amendments be read.

Mr. McMILLIN. It may be that these amendments would require their first consideration in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, as it deals with the public lands.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will ask the gentleman from California if these amendments require consideration in Committee of the Whole?

Mr. SPRINGER. The bill has already been considered in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. LOUD. I have moved its reference to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. DOCKERY. Is it in order to move the reference of this matter to a committee?

The SPEAKER. Not until the Senate amendments have been read.

Mr. SPRINGER. I suggest, Mr. Speaker, that inasmuch as this is a long amendment, and the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. MCRAE], the chairman of the Committee on Public Lands, is not present, that it lie over until to-morrow.

Mr. LOUD. I have made a motion for reference to a committee.

The SPEAKER. But the amendments must be read.

The amendments of the Senate were read at length.

Mr. McMILLIN. This is a proposition to strike out the enacting clause and insert an entirely new bill disposing of the public lands and fixing criminal penalties in connection with certain violations of the law, and should have its first consideration in Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER. There are motions pending with reference to the matter.

Mr. DOCKERY. May I be allowed a brief statement? [Cries of "Regular order!"]

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from California [Mr. CAMINETTI] moves to nonconcur and agree to a conference. The gentleman from California [Mr. LOUD] moves to refer to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Mr. McMILLIN. I make the point of order—in order to reach this question—that as this disposes of the public lands it must have its first consideration in Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER. The House bill was so considered.

Mr. McMILLIN. But this is an entirely new bill, and has not been considered in Committee of the Whole.

in Congress upon the Honorable Francis B. Stockbridge, late a Senator from the State of Michigan.

SUNDRY CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. COCKRELL. I ask the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8518) making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes.

Mr. COCKRELL. I wish to put in an amendment which is suggested by the Treasury Department to remove some ambiguity. At the end of line 15, on page 51, after the word "same" I move to insert:

And also the expense of distributing said medals.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. Since this bill was reported a law has been enacted and is now in force creating the office of surveyor and assistant surveyor in the District of Columbia. They will have to enter upon their duties, and it is too late to put their salaries in the District of Columbia appropriation bill. Therefore I move on page 66, after line 6, to insert:

District of Columbia, office of the surveyor general. For the salaries of the surveyor and assistant surveyor of the District of Columbia, and for such employees as may be required in accordance with the provisions of the act of Congress making the surveyor of the District of Columbia a salaried officer, $10,000.

For surveying instruments and implements for the surveyor's office, drawing material, stationery, copying and binding plates and records, and necessary transportation, $500.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I sent an amendment to the desk a few minutes ago which I now move.

Mr. COCKRELL. I wish to have one additional amendment made on page 106, after the provision about the steam tug. The Senator from New York (Mr. HILL) has information that makes it necessary that that appropriation should be immediately available.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After the word "necessary" in line 9, page 100, insert:

To be immediately available.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I desire to call up my amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Senator from South Dakota will be stated.

The SECRETARY. At the end of line 15, on page 136, insert:

For the purpose of purchasing and distributing seeds and seed grains among the drought-stricken inhabitants of the United States, the Secretary of Agriculture, under such rules as he may prescribe, the sum $300,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary; the same to be made immediately available.

Mr. PETTIGREW. Mr. President, this amendment is for the purpose of purchasing seed grains for the people who inhabit those portions of the arid region whose crops were destroyed by drought during the last two seasons. If the amendment is adopted it will, I believe, enable a large number of people who have taken homes upon those plains to remain there and become successful citizens of that country. There are often seasons when the crops do not mature, and they are learning to produce those crops which can be matured in a climate where the average rainfall is but 15 inches. They are raising cattle and stock and irrigating to a small extent, and if they can be assisted to remain there I believe they will make success and adopt that country as their home.

It seems to me no appropriation can be made by this Congress that will do more good, that will go further to develop and build up that country than this item of appropriation. It appears to me that we cannot afford to decline to send relief to these homes and happiness to those who have been given a chance to renew their work and the ties of their existence. Those States are unable, my own State in particular, is unable to assist these people, and many of them will be obliged to leave unless this appropriation is made.

I trust, Mr. President, that there will be no opposition to this item, and that this amendment will become a law. These people live upon lands they have taken from the Government and if this assistance is rendered them they will stay there and pay for the land, and others will come and buy other lands of the Government. This appropriation is then not a charity, but is in the interest of economy, in the interest of good policy, is dictated by the desire to promote the public interest and the interest of the Government, and above all, it will promote patriotism and love of country in the hearts of these brave people.

Mr. COCKRELL. I raise the point of order against that amendment.

Mr. PETTIGREW. As to the point of order, I wish to say that the amendment has been favorably reported from a standing committee of the Senate, and that it was referred to the Committee on Appropriations several days ago.

Mr. ALLEN. I hope the Senator from Missouri will withdraw the point of order for a moment.

Mr. COCKRELL. I will withdraw the point of order for a reasonable length of time.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. President, this is the same amendment which was introduced by me a few days ago to the agricultural appropriation bill, and I think it is the same language practically, except that portion of it providing that the appropriation shall be immediately available.

It was then stated that the appropriation was not needed in the drought-stricken sections of the country. I desire now to read from an editorial in the Omaha Bee of the 20th instant, reviewing the action of the Senate somewhat upon the proposed amendment:

The rejection of the amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill offered by Senator ALLEN appropriating $300,000 out of the National Treasury for the purchase and distribution of seed grain under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture among the destitute farmers of the drought-stricken areas is a gross injustice. The Government is Federal aid in caring for her drought sufferers. Senator ALLEN's proposition was perfectly legitimate and its adoption by Congress would have elicited only approval from the people of the country. There have been numerous precedents in its favor. Congress has been wont to treat leniently with those who, through misfortune, have been unable to carry out their obligations with the Government. The farmers of the past this year look for assistance in securing the necessary supply of seed grain for the most part pioneers who have broken the prairies to the plow and have made the Western progress of civilization possible. It is a disgrace that the Government should refuse to help the people from whom the country certainly do, and it is greatly to be regretted that the Senate should see fit to refuse the small measure of help that was asked.

This paper is the representative Republican paper of the State of Nebraska; it is probably the paper of the largest circulation of any between Chicago and San Francisco, and I am satisfied voices the sentiment of the people of the State of Nebraska and other portions of the drought-stricken sections of the country.

I desire also to refer to a brief editorial in the same paper of February 24. Speaking of the amendment, which is now pending, the editor says:

The amendment offered by Senator PETTIGREW to the sundry civil appropriation bill, setting aside $300,000 out of the National Treasury for the purpose of supplying seed grain to the drought sufferers of the Western States, has been reported back favorably to the Senate, and will doubtless come up for action this week. It is greatly to be hoped that the Senate will see its way clear to make this appropriation. It seemed to be on the point of doing so in connection with the Agricultural appropriation bill, were it not for the representations of certain Senators that Federal aid in preparing for a new crop was neither needed nor requested. The great demand of the drought sufferers now is for seed grain, without which they will be in the same helpless condition next year as this. There is ample precedent for Federal aid. If Congress were ever just in its appropriations for the relief of any class of unfortunate it is justified in this instance.

I desire to say, Mr. President, that this represents the sentiment, so far as I can ascertain from the press, of the vast majority of that portion of the West which has been afflicted by drought this year. It is a delicate matter for me to speak of, but as I took occasion to say a few days ago in the Senate, the great necessity for an appropriation of this kind can not be fully told. It would be improper to describe the conditions existing which require this aid.

The precedents are numerous for this appropriation. I called attention a few days ago to some of them. During this Congress I think we have appropriated $10,000 for the relief of the poor of this city. If we have the power, and of that I have no doubt, to appropriate money to purchase supplies for flood-stricken sufferers, as we did ten years ago, and to appropriate money to relieve the poor of the District of Columbia, it occurs to me that we have the power, and that it is our duty to appropriate money to assist certain classes of our citizens who have been overtaken by this great national calamity, and who will be unable to cultivate their lands by the hundreds of thousands of acres, unless some measure of relief is extended to them by the General Government.

I certainly hope the Senator from Missouri will withdraw his objection and let the amendment be voted upon.

Mr. PEPPER. Mr. President, I desire to interpose any objection to this amendment, but I do wish to say that, so far as the people of Kansas are concerned, we have already taken measures to prevent distress amongst our own people who are affected by the long drouth, of which the Senator speaks. Our legislature recently—I say recently, perhaps it was six weeks ago—passed a joint resolution providing a fund of $100,000 to be distributed amongst our people who are in distress, and some of them are in the western portion of the State. My information is that that fund will be sufficient to supply all those who are most needy. The machinery for distribution has been inaugurated, and the work has been going on in all portions of the State where relief is needed.

I make that statement so far as the people of Kansas are concerned, but I shall interpose no objection to the amendment.

Mr. COCKRELL. I insist on my point of order that the amendment is general legislation on an appropriation bill, and is not estimated for by any Department.

Mr. ALLEN. I hope that question will be submitted to the Senate.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I should like to know if the Chair has decided the point of order made on my amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair overrules the point of order, and submits the amendment to the Senate. The question is upon agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. COCKRELL. On that I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the amendment be again stated.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

THE SECRETARY. At the end of line 15, on page 156, it is proposed to insert:

"for the purpose of purchasing and distributing seeds and seed grain among the drought-stricken inhabitants of the United States by the Secretary of Agriculture, under such a plan as he may prescribe, the sum of $20,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, the sum to be made immediately available."

THE SECRETARY proceeded to call the roll. I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. DAVIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TIERCE].

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. MITCHELL of Wisconsin (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CARRY]. If he were present I should vote "yes."

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SNOUP].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BURROWS. I am paired with the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON].

Mr. LODGE (after having voted in the affirmative). I inquire if the Senator from New York [Mr. HILL], with whom I am paired, has voted?

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted.

Mr. LODGE. Then I withdraw my vote.

Mr. GALLINGER. I announce my pair with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS], and withhold my vote.

Mr. PALMER (after having voted in the negative). I inquire if the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. HANSBROUGH] has voted?

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted.

Mr. PALMER. Then I withdraw my vote.

Mr. GALLINGER. As I have stated, I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS]. The Senator from Florida [Mr. PASCOR] is paired with the junior Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD]. We have arranged to transfer our pairs, which will allow the Senator from Florida and me to vote. I vote "yes."

Mr. PASCOR. Under that arrangement, I will let my vote stand in the affirmative.

The result was announced—yeas 51, nays 17, as follows:

So the amendment was agreed to.
Mr. COCKRELL. I now ask that the amendment already pending, which was offered by the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. BATE] yesterday evening, be disposed of.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.
Mr. COCKRELL. The amendment was read and is pending, and I desire that it shall be now disposed of.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated:

THE SECRETARY. On page 80, after line 13, it is proposed to insert:

"There shall be exhibited at the Tennessee Centennial Exposition, to be held at Nashville, Tenn., in the year 1898, by the Government of the United States, from its Executive Department, the Smithsonian Institution and National Museum, and the United States Fish Commission, such articles and materials as illustrate the functions and administrative facilities of the Government in those peaceful and its resourceful war power, tending to demonstrate the nature of our institutions and their adaptation to the wants of the people, and to secure a complete and harmonious arrangement of said Government exhibits. The management shall be created, to be charged with the selection, purchase, preparation, arrangement, stockpiling, and exhibition of such articles and materials as the Government may desire to exhibit. The President may, at his discretion, designate additional articles for exhibition. Such board shall be composed of one member to be appointed by the President, one by the Executive Department, one by the head of the Smithsonian Institution and National Museum, and one by the head of the United States Fish Commission; and the President shall name one of said persons to be designated as chairman, and the members of said board shall have no compensation in addition to their legal salary, and their actual expenses only shall be paid out of the sum hereinafter appropriated."

That the Secretary of the Treasury shall cause a suitable building or buildings to be erected on the site selected for the Tennessee Centennial Exposition for the Government exhibits, and he is hereby authorized and directed to contract therefor, in the same manner and under the same regulations as for other public buildings of the United States; but the contract for said building or buildings shall not exceed the sum of $200,000, and there is hereby appropriated for said building or buildings, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $200,000. The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and required to dispose of such building or buildings, or the materials thereof, in the same, at the expiration of the term of the exposition, to the city of Nashville, for the Tennessee Centennial Exposition Company to purchase the same at an appraised value, to be ascertained in such manner as he may determine; and whatever sum may be realized on the sale of said building shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States.

That for the purpose of paying the expenses of the selection, purchase, preparation, arrangement, stockpiling, and exhibition of such articles and materials, and for the employment of proper persons as officers and assistants by the board of management created by this act, and for their expenses, and for the maintenance of such buildings or buildings, or the materials thereof, as herein provided, the President to the Government exhibit, to be approved by the chairman of the board of management and by the Secretary of the Treasury upon itemized accounts and vouchers, there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $500,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be disbursed by the board of management hereinafter created, of which not exceeding the sum of $100,000 shall be expended for clerical services. Provided, That the appropriation herein made shall be available until the Secretary of the Treasury has received satisfactory proof that the sum of $750,000 has been secured by the Tennessee Centennial Exposition Company.

That all articles which shall be imported from foreign countries, for the sole purpose of exhibition at said exposition, upon which there shall be a tariff or customs duty, shall be admitted free of payment of duty, customs fees, or charges, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe, but it shall be lawful at any time during the exhibition to sell, for delivery at the close of the exposition, any goods or property imported for and actually on exhibition in the exposition buildings, or on grounds, or in connection with the exhibition, for the purpose of the revenue and for the collection of import duties as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe. Provided, That all such articles, when sold or withdrawn for consumption in the United States, shall be subject to the duty, if any, imposed upon such articles by the laws in force at the time of the sale, and that the penalties prescribed by law shall be applied and enforced against such articles and against the persons who may be guilty of any illegal sale or withdrawal.

That models, with appropriate devices, emblems, and inscriptions commemorative of said Tennessee Centennial Exposition, and of the awards to be made to exhibitors thereof, be prepared at some point of the United States, for the board of directors thereof, subject to the provisions of the fifty-second section of the act of Congress of 1893, upon the payment by the Tennessee Centennial Exposition Company of a sum not less than the cost thereof; and all the provisions, whether total or otherwise, of said act of Congress against the counterfeiting or imitating of coins of the United States shall apply to the medals struck and issued under this act.

That the United States shall in no manner and under no circumstances be liable for any bond, debt, contract, expenditure, expense, or liability of any kind whatever of the said Tennessee Centennial Exposition Company, its officers, agents, servants, or employees, or negligent or for growing out of said exposition, for any amount whatever in excess of the sum of $100,000, and that the Secretary of the Executive Department, the Smithsonian Institution and National Museum, and the United States Fish Commission, and the board of management herein authorized, their officers, servants, or employees, shall not be held liable in damages for no circumstances, expend, or create any liability of any kind for, any sum in excess of the appropriations herein made, or create any deficiency.

Mr. COCKRELL. I wish the Senator from Tennessee would explain the amendment, so that Senators may know on what they are going to vote.

Mr. BATE. Mr. President, at the request of the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, just made, I will state that the pending amendment to the appropriation bill is one authorizing the loan of certain Government property as a part of the exhibits at the Tennessee Centennial Exposition, to be held at Nashville in the year 1898, which is the centennial of the admission of our State. Our people have organized a company there, large subscriptions have been made, and they have taken steps to have, as we think, a very remarkable exposition, inviting the nations of Europe, and also Mexico and the Central American and South American nations. Correspondence has been going on to secure a large representation of the productions of nature and art of other nations at the exposition. In other words, the exposition, while it is not to be on such a grand and expensive scale as the one held at Chicago, will be similar to the one to be held at Atlanta in 1895. Congress has appropriated for the exposition there the sum of $200,000. We ask $75,000 less than that, or only $125,000 for a similar exposition.

We want $95,000 of that sum for the purpose of transporting and taking care of the exhibits of the Government, to be furnished by the various departments. For this purpose they are to have their own appointees, who will accompany and take charge of the exhibits. There is to be no unnecessary expense in regard to it, and there is to be no receipt of any additional money. A very Provision is made for the erection of a public building on the exposition grounds to cost not exceeding $30,000, and only $95,000 is asked of the Government for the purpose of the Government exhibit, making the total appropriation for the exposition $125,000.

All we now ask is that the same recognition under like circumstances, and we think, stronger, should be given to the Tennessee exposition that was given to her sister State of Georgia, for it is intended in addition to all else to commemorate the centennial of a great State.

There is no other State the centennial of whose admission will occur for the next six years, and I think such an event is one which, in a country like this, challenges admiration and historic reflection, and should be properly recognized by the Government. It is to celebrate the birth of a State into the American Union. All we ask is that the Government should recognize the event by the use of its exhibits there, and providing $125,000 to be used exclusively by the Government and for the purpose of its exhibits. No expense beyond this amount can be incurred by the Government, and the Government will not be bound for anything in regard to the exhibition except the preparation, transportation, and care of the exhibits of the articles which belong to it. Some of the exhibits are to be contributed by each of the Government, and also by the Smithsonian Institution, the National Museum, and the United States Fish Commission.

As I have said, the articles are to be under the care of the agents of the Government, and the President under the terms of the bill has the right to make appointments of the necessary persons to superintend them. When the exposition is opened the building is to be turned over to the Government to be sold, and the proceeds to be passed into the Treasury, which will lessen the amount of the appropriation.

Mr. HOAR. Will the Senator allow me to ask him a question?

Mr. BATE. Certainly.

Mr. HOAR. I am not disposed to interfere with the appropriation, and I do not ask the question in a hostile spirit, but I inquire of the Senator if it is the Tennessee exposition of which he speaks.

Mr. BATE. Yes, sir.

Mr. HOAR. I desire to ask the Senator to state briefly, if he will, the constitutional ground on which he conceives this appropriation to be supported.

Mr. BATE. I ask the Senate to act upon the same ground it acted when it voted money for the Chicago Exposition, for which the Senate voted.

Mr. HOAR. I am in favor of the amendment, but I wanted the Senator to give us his view.

Mr. BATE. I stand upon the same ground that the Senate stood upon when it voted money for similar purposes, against my desires, and even against my vote. In the first place, other States have been the recipients of similar favors, and I have bowed as gracefully as possible to the mandate of the Senate that Chicago and that Atlanta should have appropriations, and I made no factions opposition to it, although I differed with the general policy. All I ask is, that we may be put in the same position and let us have the assistance of the Government in our expedition and let us have the assistance of the Government in our expedition.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I should like to ask the Senator from Tennessee a question. The Senator voted with great propriety only a few moments ago—for we are each bound by our consciences—against an appropriation for the purpose of distributing seed to the suffering and impoverished farmers of the West. Will the Senator kindly tell me what is the difference in principle between making an appropriation for the purpose of distributing seed to the suffering and impoverished farmers of the West and an appropriation for the purpose of distributing seed to the suffering and impoverished farmers of the West?

Mr. BATE. This appropriation is only for the purpose of taking care of property which belongs to the Government, and is in the nature of a loan, while the case to which the Senator refers is for the purchase and distribution of seeds by the Government for a particular local purpose. If it were proposed that the Government should loan seed there might possibly be some similarity in the cases. It is undeniable, Mr. President, that the Government has the right and that it is its duty to care for its property wherever it may be, and also to appropriate money for that purpose, and that is one distinction between this and the case put by the Senator.

Mr. HUNTON. The pending amendment was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor, of which I am a member, was carefully considered by that committee, and the amendment was, I believe, with unanimity reported favorably to the Senate, and referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

I think it is an important matter which rises above any of the considerations which have been addressed to the Senate, because the section of Tennessee where this exposition is to be held is filled with probably the finest minerals upon the continent. The mountains of east Tennessee and the adjoining mountains in Virginia, in North Carolina, and in Kentucky are abundantly filled with minerals. This exposition will tend more than anything else to bring to the attention of the people the fact that there is a matter of importance to those people, and I trust the amendment will be adopted.

A large amount was appropriated for a similar purpose in Chicago, and a larger amount than is proposed to be appropriated in this amendment was appropriated to Atlanta. While the North and the South have received their appropriations for a similar purpose, we ask that this small appropriation shall be dedicated to one of the Western and growing States of this Union.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. President, at this late day of the session I can not afford to consume a moment of the time of the Senate in debating a proposition such as this.

Whether the policy of making appropriations for these exhibitions be wise or unwise, the Government has adopted it in several instances. All that I ask is, that you shall deal with Tennessee as you have dealt with Georgia and as you have dealt with Illinois, with the exception, however, that we ask vastly less than was asked and granted to the other two States I have mentioned.

I think every consideration of propriety requires that we should extend to Tennessee the same recognition that we have extended to her sister States.

Mr. HOAR. I should like to ask the senior Senator from Tennessee if he is willing to explain to us the constitutional ground on which this amendment is supported? I am very desirous of hearing it.

Mr. HARRIS. If the Senator from Massachusetts will meet me here on the 4th of July next, I will give him a lecture upon constitutional limitations, which, if he will regard it, will be of infinite value to him for the balance of his political life. [Laughter.]

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President, there were five or six fourths of July in the history of this country when the Senator was reading lectures on constitutional liberty, as he understood it, and I have no doubt he would give a very eloquent lecture next Fourth of July, but I think we are entitled to an explanation now. As on this side have proposed, on a certain constitutional theory, provisions for the benefit of the whole country, for the benefit of public expositions, and for the distribution of information and knowledge, and I have never had any difficulty in supporting them; but I understand that my honorable friend from Tennessee has uniformly and most zealously resisted them, on the ground that they were violations of the Constitution, and that it was a violation of the oath of a Senator to support the Constitution to vote for them.

Now comes an appropriation for Tennessee exactly like the others, and that Senator, who has been reproaching us for violating the Constitution and violating our oaths all these years, on being asked on what ground he supports this appropriation, says he thinks Tennessee ought to have it if anybody else gets it, and that he will state the constitutional reasons on next Fourth of July. It may be that that is a good ground to act upon, but I am afraid my honorable friend, the Senator from Tennessee, is getting into the same state of mind with a famous member of another body, who said: "What is a little thing like the Constitution between friends?" [Laughter.]

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment submitted by the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. BATE].

Mr. COCKRELL. I make the point of order on the amendment that it is general legislation, pure and simple, on a general appropriation bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair submits to the Senate the question, Is the proposed amendment in order?

Mr. ALLEN. On that I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DONAHUE].

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SARGENT].

Mr. HOAR (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Alabama [Mr. PERHAM], and accordingly withhold my vote. I can not say how I should vote until after the Fourth of July. [Laughter.]

Mr. PALMER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. HANSBROUGH], and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. STEWART].

Mr. WILSON of Iowa (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GOBLES]. He not being in the chamber, I withhold my vote.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. CULLOM. I have a general pair with the senior Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY]. He not being present, I withhold my vote.

The result was announced—yeas 33, nays 15; as follows:

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate decides the amendment to be adopted. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. FRYE. I am instructed by the Committee on Commerce to offer an amendment. It comes in on page 100, and I think after line 20 an amendment similar to it was adopted.

The SECRETARY. On page 100, after the amendment following line 20, insert:

That the Secretary of War, in his discretion, be and he is hereby authorized to use a sum not exceeding $400 of the appropriations for the improvement of the harbor at Dunkirk, N. Y., carried in the last river and harbor act, for a survey of said harbor in accordance with the recommendations of the Secretary of War.

Mr. COCKRELL. The amendment comes from the Committee on Commerce?

Mr. ERYE. Yes, sir.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment submitted by the Senator from Maine.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CAREY. I offer an amendment to come in on page 96, after line 4.

The SECRETARY. On page 96, after line 4, insert:

That the Secretary of War is hereby authorized and empowered to select and set apart 160 acres of land that may no longer be required for military purposes in the Fort D. A. Russell Military Reservation, in the State of Wyoming, for the use of the said State for agricultural fair and industrial exposition grounds, and for other public purposes. That the lands so set apart are hereby granted to the State of Wyoming: Provided, That if the said State shall at any time permit the said lands hereby granted to be used for any purpose not contemplated by this act the said lands shall revert to the United States.

Mr. COCKRELL. I hope the Senator from Wyoming will not insist upon the amendment, as it prevents the Senator from this land to be charged up as a part of the land already assigned by law to this State, that is one proposition. But the amendment proposes to give the State additional land, and there is no necessity for it. Let it be charged up as in the other cases.

Mr. CAREY. I have no objection to such a modification. I will change the amendment in that respect.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the amendment be modified so that the governor of the State shall be allowed to select the land.

Mr. CAREY. I will change the amendment in that way.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment is withdrawn.

Mr. CAREY. I desire to offer an amendment to come in, on page 78, after line 11. I will state that a similar measure has passed the Senate twice, and that the amendment has the indorsement of a standing committee.

The SECRETARY. On page 78, after line 11, insert:

That in all cases where parties have entered lands under the provisions of the desert-land law and have been required to pay a double minimum price for the same, for the reason that such entries were included in a railroad grant, the Secretary of the Interior shall cause to be repaid to the person who made such entry the full amount of the payment made, the excess of the same paid over and above $1.25 per acre, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, which shall be paid in the same manner as is now provided to refund purchase money on lands wrongfully sold by the United States.

Mr. CAREY. I will state that a bill of the same effect as this amendment has twice passed the Senate. The necessity for the proposed legislation occurred in this wise: For ten years the uniform price of desert lands was $1.25 an acre within the limits of the railroad grants and everywhere else. The desert-land law was passed in 1877. The Commissioner of the General Land Office in 1887 held that the desert-land law did not change the price of land fixed in the law of 1853, and that entries made within railroad limits should be on the basis of $2.50 an acre. The law of 1891 fixed the price uniformly all over the United States at $1.25 an acre for lands entered under the various land laws. There are only a very few cases that will come under the amendment. It does not involve probably over seven or eight thousand dollars. The ruling of the Commissioner stopped things under the desert-land law. Those who had made a payment of 25 cents an acre on account of their land making final proof were required to pay on the basis of $2.50, or, in other words, the United States had already have paid 50 cents an acre at the initiation of their claim.

The Secretary of the Interior afterwards ruled that the ruling was erroneous so far as those persons were concerned who had made the entries under the previous regulations, but because there was no law permitting the refunding of money collected erroneously with reference to desert-land entries, while there is a law with reference to land entered under other laws, the Department could not refund the money. Mr. State has since then made a bill which has been many entries under the desert-land law in my State, yet I have only heard of a few cases in the State that will come under the provisions of this amendment. We have passed a similar measure twice in this body, and it failed of consideration at the other end of the Capitol.

Mr. COCKRELL. Has the amendment been reported by the Committee on Public Lands?

Mr. CAREY. It has been reported by the Committee on Public Lands at this session and it passed at this session; and it was reported and passed at the last Congress. I will print an extract with my remarks from the report of the Committee on Public Lands, which is as follows:

The desert-land law, which was approved March 3, 1877, fixed the price of desert lands at $1.25 an acre, one-fifth of which, or 25 cents, was required to be paid at the time the original entry was made, and the balance of $1 was required to be paid at the time of final proof or entry. This appears from the decisions to have been the accepted price, without the same having been even questioned, for the period of more than ten years, whether the lands entered were situated inside or outside the limits of railroad grants.

The language of the desert-land law is clear and explicit and there can be no doubt that it was the intention of Congress at the time of the passage of the act to make a uniform price of $1.25 for all lands sold under the desert-land law, and that no exception to the rule was contemplated where the desert lands were situated inside of the railroad limits.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office issued a circular in 1887 declaring that thereafter purchasers of desert lands would be required to pay 25 cents per acre at the time of original entry and $2 per acre at the time of final proof or entry. This circular was published in the following language: "The result of the above appears to have been a great difference of opinion on the subject, the Secretary of the Interior on an appeal case held, in 1880, that the act of March 3, 1877, fixed the price of public lands at $1.25 an acre, and that no acre was not repurchased by the desert-land act, which fixed the price of desert land at $1.25 an acre." This decision was reached under the rule of construction that statutes are to be construed by express provisions of a dispositive law, or by necessary implication, and in the latter case there must be such a positive implication as would from the provisions of the old and new law that they can stand together or be consistently reconciled.

In some cases the law was entered at $1.25 an acre and at the time of final proof the entrymen were required to pay for the land at the rate of $2.50 an acre. Applications were made by entrymen in some instances for the repayment of the sum of $1.25 per acre, and in some cases the money was paid. It was held on the ground that repayment can not be recognized in the absence of express statutory authority.

The committee find that since the passage of the act approved March 3, 1880, which, among other things, amended the desert-land law of March 3, 1877, the uniform ruling of the Land Department has been to declare the price of all lands subject to entry under the desert-land laws at $1.25 an acre.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Wyoming.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, an amendment was adopted on yesterday which reads as follows:

That whenever the President of the United States shall determine that this Government should be represented at any international conference called with a view to secure, internationally, a fixity of relative value between gold and silver, as money, by means of a common ratio of such metals, with free interchange at such ratio, the United States shall be represented at such conference by nine delegates, to be selected as follows: The President of the United States shall select three of said delegates; the Senate shall select three members of the Senate by delegates, and the House of Representatives shall select a positive number of the House as delegates. If at any time there shall be any vacancy such vacancy shall be filled by the President of the United States. And for the compensation of said delegates, together with all reasonable expenses connected therewith, to be approved by the Secretary of State, including the proportion to be paid by the United States of the joint expenses of such conference, the sum of $100,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated.

Now, I look upon this as a very serious departure, which will very much embarrass the Government. It is a delegation of the right of the Government to a ratio with Europe. We do not know who the delegates may be or what their views on the subject may be. But it is a most important matter. It is said we can safely trust Europe on that question, and that we can trust our delegates. I do not think so. It is too important a trust, because Europe is differently situated from what she was ten years ago. England has already fixed a ratio, substantially, between gold and silver for India, taking the commercial price of the two metals at the time she fixed it, and trying to maintain it at that rate. Germany was one of the leaders; she followed us immediately within a few months in demonetizing silver. Germany has a very small amount of silver. She can readily use it for subsidiary coin, and she would be very likely to be willing to agree to fix almost any ratio, because she is not a silver-producing country. She is a creditor nation, and it would make very little difference to her. France is the only country that could be relied upon. France is very differently situated from what she was a few years ago. She has been accumulating gold very rapidly, about $100,000,000 in the last twelve months. Besides, at the conference held at Paris in 1865 there was an agreement to dissolve the Latin union after five years.

Mr. COCKRELL. I wish to submit to the Senator from Nevada that the amendment he speaks about is not pending.

Mr. STEWART. It is my intention to enter a motion to reconsider.

Mr. HOAR. Why does the Senator from Nevada not take it up in the Senate?

Mr. COCKRELL. Let us dispose of the amendments.

Mr. STEWART. I will state my reasons. I enter a motion to reconsider the vote by which the Senate agreed to the amendment.

I can not leave the floor now on this important ratio of gold and silver, as I was speaking how France was situated as to the accumulation of gold. The monetary conference of the Latin Union, held in August, 1865, agreed to the dissolution of the union after five years. But it was also provided that that dissolution should not take place without one year's notice on the part of any one of the contracting powers. It was further agreed that upon such notice and such dissolution each of the contracting powers should redeem in coin, at the time of giving notice, the amount of the gold and silver (gold or silver), all of its coin which any of the other countries had. At that time France had about $100,000,000 of the money of the other contracting powers—Switzerland, Italy, Greece, and Belgium. How much she has now I do not know, but she can give the notice and require the other contracting powers, which will not figure prominently in the conference, to redeem in gold the coin she holds, and thereby reduce her silver holding very much. It is a very possible, and I fear probable, that France will consent to any ratio.

No. 66—6

Marble, who had been very strongly inclined in the same direction, and every man he sent was of that description.

He seems to me to have been a kind of Addison there, or three men of that stamp, if this amendment passes. Shall we take the chances of being represented among the creditor nations, not among the silver nations, by such men, and be thus misrepresented? I believe this conference will terminate, as all others have terminated, to our disadvantage. We have been begging for conferences constantly. It seems to me this action is premature. If the President appoints under existing laws we shall not be committed by Congressional action to a ratio which will destroy us. He has no authority under any existing law to bind the United States to any scheme which will destroy silver. But if Congress says its delegates may make an agreement as to the ratio we are lost. Then all the pressure that we saw brought at the extra session will be brought upon Congress to maintain the sacredness of the agreement to which Congress sent its delegates.

I sympathize with the people of Europe and of all the world as much as the Senator from Colorado, but I do not sympathize with any proposed trade with their oppressors. I sympathize, first, with the people of the United States. They are suffering burdens too grievous to bear by the intrigue of parties who will control the Congress. It seems to me that this is trifling with their sacred rights, when we say that we will again and again dicker and trade with our creditors and ask of them to rebate their exactions which they have never done. This to me is ruin. Whatever others may do, as for me I shall protest against this disadvantageous scheme of international bimetalism, where it is all against us and nothing for us. We can not hope for anything but the elimination of silver as money and mure. It is international bimetalism that has ruined us. It is international bimetalism or international monetary systems which are impoverishing us and enriching the creditors of the Old World.

Shall we go to Germany, which is emphatically a creditor nation, and allow them to come there with their delegate, who will go in with the same scheme which is now being worked out? We know what it is. We know what England did for India. She fixed the relative value of exchange according to the market price of the two metals. She will maintain it. There is nothing in Europe to prevent it. Germany will do it. Germany is a nonproducer of silver, with no silver that she does not need for subsidiary coin. France alone will not save us. In the debate that has been read the bill was of some scheme to use silver, but no suggestion was made as to what scheme or how it could be done. We know very well, we ought to know, that any agreement in which Germany and England concur will be the practical end of silver.

I hope the amendment will be reconsidered in order that I may offer an amendment to it which will prevent harm. I do not believe the scheme can do any good; it is all harm; but I want something to the amendment that will prevent such an agreement as will be urged as binding on us.

Mr. COCKRELL. The conference could not make any agreement that will be binding. It is impossible.

Mr. STEWART. But, ah, after it is made—
Mr. COCKRELL. It has to be carried out by Congress.

Mr. STEWART. You have the President and the next House.

Do you believe this body can withstand that influence? It has been tried once before and found wanting.

Mr. COCKRELL. It does not make a bit of difference what the agreement is. Ought not the Senator look at the fact that there is a law already authorizing the appointment of commissioners by the President? Is that preferable to this amendment? That is the only question there. I say to the Senator there is a law already authorizing the President to appoint a commission. The law is in force now. It will continue in force. If the President wants to do so he will appoint a commission of his own choosing and we shall have no discretion about it. Is that preferable to this amendment?

Mr. STEWART. Decidedly.

Mr. COCKRELL. I do not think so.

Mr. STEWART. Decidedly. If the President does it, it will be on his responsibility, without a special law of Congress authorizing the fixing of the ratio, and the President alone has not the same influence in the country to enforce such an agreement as Congress and the President would have. If the amendment is agreed to the plea will be that Congress is committing. But what I object to is having Congress implicitly committed in any other way by direct agreement or otherwise, committed to changing the ratio so as to put more silver in a dollar than 16 to 1.

Mr. ALLEN. Will the Senator from Nevada permit me a moment?

Mr. STEWART. Certainly.

Mr. ALLEN. Will the Senator permit the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations to ask the Senator to inform me that I am still like to have adopted before we commence voting on the bill? It will take but a moment to do it.

Mr. STEWART. I will let the vote be taken on this question by yeas and nays, and then I will determine what my course will be. I ask for the yeas and nays on my motion to reconsider.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the yeas and nays be called.

The PRESIDENT (after Mr. F. C. Johnson is in the chair). The question is on the motion of the Senator from Nevada [Mr. STEWART] to reconsider the vote by which the amendment offered by the Senator from Colorado [Mr. WOLCOTT] was agreed to.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DAVIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURNER].

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. McLAURIN (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON].

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon (when his name was called). I am paired with the senior Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. VILAS].

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I again announce, and for the day, my pair with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PITCHFORD].

Mr. PERKINS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ROACH]. He informs me, however, that if he were present he would vote "nay." I will vote "nay."

Mr. PETTINGREW (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from West Virginia [Mr. CAMDEN]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. WOLCOTT (when Mr. POWELL's name was called). The Senator from Montana [Mr. POWELL] has been unexpectedly called from the Chamber. He desired me to announce that if he were present he would vote "nay."

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOFER].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. PALMER. I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. HANSENBOUGH]. I should vote "nay" if he were present.

The result was announced—yeas 9, nays 52; as follows:

YEAS—9.

So the motion to reconsider was not agreed to.

Mr. GALLINGER. I submit an amendment to the pending bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After the word "contract," in line 1, on page 129, it is proposed to insert:

And including $1,000 additional salary for compensation for the foreman of printing.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HUNTON. In line 25, on page 33, I move to strike out the word "five" and insert "six."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. In line 25, on page 33, before the word "thousand," it is proposed to strike out "five," and insert "six," so as to read:

Salaries Coast and Geodetic Survey. For superintendent, $3,000.

Mr. HUNTON. This amendment affects the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and I beg to call the attention of the Senate to it for a moment.

The Coast and Geodetic Survey was established in 1853, and when it was established the superintendent was allowed a salary of $6,000, and for all the period from 1853, down to the present time, the salary of the superintendent has been $6,000, and the Secretary of the Treasury in his estimates of appropriations on this year has asked for $6,000 to pay the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

The present head of that office is a very accomplished gentleman, an engineer of very high standing, and a gentleman of the highest character, and I can not for the life of me see why the salary of that officer should be cut down in the face of all these facts and in the face of the request of the Secretary of the Treasury that he be paid the sum of $6,000.

This is quite an important office, Mr. President. In addition to the conduct of a bureau which has grown immensely since it was established, and the salary put at $6,000, the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey has many other duties to perform, for which he receives no compensation additional to that which he receives as Superintendent. He is Commissioner of Weights and Measures; he is civilian member of the Light-House Board; he is commissioner on the northeastern boundary to determine the line between Maine and New Brunswick; he is commissioner on the northeastern boundary to determine the line between Alaska and British Columbia, and he is chairman of the board to determine the opening of the harbors on the Atlantic coast. All these duties pertain to that office, in addition to the regular and specified duties of the office of Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

I know the fact that the present superintendent of that office in the last six weeks has spent two weeks in the State of Georgia, superintending the opening of the harbor of Brunswick, in that State. So the duties of the office are not only onerous, but are of the highest character, and I submit that it would not be right to make this reduction in face of the fact that all of his predecessors, from 1853 down to the present time, have received $6,000; and it would look like a slap at the present incumbent to say that he was not worth as much as his predecessors.

Mr. HOAR. I heard imperfectly what the Senator from Virginia said, but I thought he stated that all these other positions are held ex officio by the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Mr. HUNTON. Yes, sir; by statute.

Mr. HOAR. I did not know that.

Mr. HUNTON. I am so informed by the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and I feel sure he would not mislead me.

Mr. HOAR. My impression—I am not going to put my recollection, without a reference to the statute, against the information of the Senator from Virginia, still less against his assertion; but I think I could be quite sure were it not for that statement that the additional offices referred to have been merely accidental, and that he was appointed to them—I say, without wishing to be too positive, that my impression is that some of the Superintendents of the Coast and Geodetic Survey have not held those additional offices at all, and that the late Superintendent held his office as a member of the Light-House Board certainly long after he resigned the former office or was removed by the President; and that is one of the violations of the civil service reform principles which are to be inducted to this Administration, if any are; and also I must be certain that the office of commissioner on these boards is a separate one.

Mr. HUNTON. In reply to the Senator from Massachusetts, I beg to say that I called upon the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey to give me an outline of his duties, and in reply to that request he gave me the list which I have read, signed by himself, and I take it for granted that that gentleman, whom I undertake to endorse here as a gentleman of the highest character, would not give me a statement of duties that he had to perform which do not belong to the office of Superintendent of that Survey. That is the only authority I have for my statement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Virginia.

Mr. HUNTON. On that I call for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. McLAURIN (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. DIXON]. If he were present I should be "yea."

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SNODGRASS].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. WILSON of Iowa. I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON], and therefore withhold my vote.

Mr. CAFFERY. I am paired with the Senator from Montana [Mr. POWER], and therefore withhold my vote.

The result was announced—YEAS 58, NAYS 38, as follows:

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. QUAY. I have two amendments which I desire to move to the bill, and I will say that, as I understand, they are unobjectionable to the committee. I call the attention of the Senator from Missouri to the amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The first amendment submitted by the Senator from Pennsylvania will be read.

The SECRETARY. On page 50, after line 3, after the word "dollars," it is proposed to insert:

"And it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Fisheries to make a special investigation as to the extermination of migratory fishes on the Indian River of Florida."

Mr. QUAY. I will say, in explanation of the amendment, that the Indian River, in my belief, is the spawning ground of the migratory fish, which appear at regular intervals during the summer along the North Atlantic coast, and owing to the seining, which the State of Florida has vainly endeavored to prevent in the different inlets communicating with the sea, they are gradually being destroyed, and they have almost entirely disappeared on the coast of New Jersey.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the amendment submitted by the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. QUAY. I now offer the other amendment to which I referred, to come in on page 4, after line 21.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 4, after line 21, it is proposed to insert:

"For public building at Gettysburg, Pa.: For purposes of acquiring a suitable site, by purchase or otherwise, and to cause to be constructed the public building hereinafter provided for at Gettysburg, Pa.: $100,000, and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to contract for the completion of said building at a cost not to exceed $100,000."

Mr. COCKRELL. Let me ask the Senator, is there any law authorizing the construction of that building?

Mr. QUAY. A law was passed a few days ago, and passed finally in this body when the bills for the public building at Newport and the public building at Cumberland were passed, which were provided for on this bill yesterday. This is the same appropriation that was made for these public buildings.

Mr. COCKRELL. What is the limit on cost?

Mr. QUAY. Sixty thousand dollars is the limit of the appropriation.

Mr. COCKRELL. I suggest that we have never gone over a third, and I have had an elderly man that far, and that we should only appropriate $20,000 for the first year.

Mr. QUAY. I accept the suggestion of the Senator, and modify the amendment by inserting $20,000, instead of $30,000, as the appropriation for this year.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from Pennsylvania, as modified.

The amendment, as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. SQUIRE. I offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 79, after line 21, it is proposed to insert:

"For an investigation of the coal and gold resources of Alaska, $500."

Mr. SQUIRE. I wish to say a very few words on this subject.

What little is known of the geological history of Alaska as regards the mountain system, which forms part of the continuous mountain chain of the west coast of our continent, points to a considerable analogy with that of the western slope of the Sierra Nevada in California, so well known as a great gold-producing region. It is well known that the geological conditions vary very much in all the different gold-producing regions of the world, and a want of knowledge of these peculiarities is the cause of many failures of mining enterprises, a great waste of capital, and, often absolute ruin to the pioneers who undertake the development of the mineral veins without previous knowledge of their geological peculiarities.

It appears to me that it is one of the most prominent functions of the United States Geological Survey to make the preliminary investigations, and thus give miners and capitalists some surer basis to work on.

It has been proved that Alaska is rich in mineral resources, and by the efforts of the hardy and adventurous miners who have had the courage to make the pioneer efforts to develop those resources, the output of gold is steadily increasing. In 1880 the amount of gold received was produced in Alaska was $5,951, in 1882 it was $1,000,000, and the amount is steadily increasing.

There is a certainty, also, that the actual amount of gold produced is much larger than is shown in the official reports, as there are a large number of individual miners who carry away and sell the gold they obtain. It is therefore a certainty that the actual amount extracted is very much larger than indicated by the figures I have quoted.

Dr. Day, the expert of the Geological Bureau, prepared a careful work entitled Mineral Resources of the United States, being the edition of 1887, in which he gives the statistical matter relative to gold and other minerals in Alaska. I shall ask to have inserted in my remarks the list which appears in this volume. I shall not take ALASKA—MINED.

ALASKA—NOT MINED.

ALASKA

In late last fall, however, explorations made at open places again have already led to vein mining. One important mine, the Treadwell upon Fair Island, in latitude 6° southness, however, was situated near the coast rather than inland.
It is a quartz vein 100 feet in width carrying free gold on native rock.

barren, which outcrops on a steep hillside running down to the seashore. The ore is of much very low grade, that were it not for the peculiarly advantageous situation of the mine, which reduces cost to a minimum, it could hardly be worked at all. And, lastly, the poor management and an inefficient expenditure of capital have developed a large paying mine, which has produced during the past four years an average percentage of nearly three-quarters of a million of gold, and has had a most beneficial effect in stimulating systematic mining in the region.

The mineral belt as far developed has a longitudinal extent of about 100 miles, and extends in a northerly and southerly direction, but is said to be only a few miles wide, and even should it prove to be geologically wider, climatic conditions will probably confine the area of profitable working to the immediate proximity of the coast. The general geological conditions of the belt as far developed are as follows:—A low, close resemblance to the gold belt of California. Like the latter, the values are practically in gold, which is accompanied in certain parts of the region by silver, calaverita, and copper ores. It is probable, however, that in the coastal region the limit in depth of free gold or oxidized ores will be more reached and the immense amount to face the problem of profitably treating auriferous sulphides, which has so often proved an insurmountable obstacle to the continued development of gold mines. This obstacle has, however, already been successfully overcome in the Treadwell mine by the adaptation of the chlorination process.

The principal product of the Territory, which is given as exclusively gold, the silver produced being comparatively insignificant, shows a steady increase during the decade. This increase is remarkable either for its regularity than its amount, and is hence a most favorable argument for the permanency of the development of the mineral resources, there would be one subject to violent fluctuations, for while the discovery of exceptionally rich ore bodies undoubtedly causes a rapid development of the district in which they occur, the reaction which has already been experienced in such districts may never be more than a passing phenomenon, while they have had, so far as its permanent prosperity is concerned.

Production of gold in Alaska since 1890.

Years.	Value.	Years.	Value.
1890	55,951	1897	$675,000
1891	15,000	1898	850,000
1892	139,193	1899	900,000
1893	29,000	1900	282,000
1894	203,000	1901	900,000
1895	503,000	1902	1,000,000
1896	445,000

I merely wish to say in conclusion that I think while we have the Geological Bureau we ought to make it of advantage to the people of the extreme northwestern part of the country. It may be said that the appropriation already made for that Bureau is sufficient to cover the proposed investigation in Alaska. I wish to address myself to that point for one moment, and then I shall take my seat. In 1891-92 the appropriation was $115,000; in 1892-93 it was $50,000; in 1893-94 it was $70,000; in 1894-95 it was $100,000. In addition to the appropriation of $15,000 for the year 1891-92 the sum of $20,000 was appropriated for the salaries of geologists. This was cut down in 1892-93, under the Carey amendment, to $13,700, and the amount has not since been changed.

In the pending bill the total appropriation for geology, including salaries, is fixed at $113,700. Owing to the large reduction as compared with the appropriation of 1891-92 it is not deemed advisable, without action of Congress, to divert the money that is now being used in the geologic work in the States for investigations in Alaska.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HOAR. On page 82, line 20, I move to strike out the word "three" and substitute the word "eight."

THE SECRETARY. On page 82, line 11, strike out the word "three" and insert "eight;" so as to read:

For compensation of the Howard University, to be used in payment of part of the salaries of the teachers, professors, teachers, and other regular employees of the University, the balance of which will be paid from donations and other sources, $24,500.

Mr. HOAR. This, in substance, is the amendment reported from the Committee on Education and Labor; that is, instead of striking out the whole sentence and putting in a new one, it strikes out the word and inserts another, which gives it the same effect.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Massachusetts.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WHITE. I desire to offer an amendment, which I ask may be read for information.

THE SECRETARY. On page 51, at the end of line 9, insert:

"That the whole, and is hereby, granted to the State of California 5 per cent of the net proceeds of the gold raised by the public lands which have been heretofore sold to the United States since the admission of said State as a member of the Union, to be used for the support of the State of California common school fund, and the amount of money necessary to pay said 5 per cent of said net proceeds, to be appropriated out of any money in the Treasury which shall be available for such purpose. That the amount appropriated shall be paid to said State in five equal annual installments, the first in full to be paid on or before the 1st of January, 1905, and each of the other four in full on or before the 1st of January each year thereafter until the whole is paid."

Mr. WHITE. In explanation of this matter I desire to state that with the exception of the proviso which declares that the payment shall be made in installments, the amendment I offer has been approved by the Senate committee having such matters in charge, the Committee on Public Lands. A bill in the same words for the same purpose was passed by the Senate unanimously more than a year ago. It was sent to the other House and was reported favorably by the House committee. A similar bill has passed this body twice before without objection and after debate.

The State of California is the only public-land State that has not received the 5 per cent, although it has been justly her due for many years. The delay has been so great and the justice of the matter being admitted, it appears to me there should be no question of the adoption of the amendment. Knowing the difficulties that surround the Committee on Appropriations, I have suggested that it be paid in installments, and have proposed five equal annual installments, though this provision was not in the original bill which passed the Senate. It appropriates the gross amount, I am not so particular about the first installment as I am to get the matter disposed of. It is admitted by everyone to be a just claim. I have read all the debates upon the subject, and have found no dispute here whatsoever upon the proposition.

Mr. COCKRELL. I make the point of order that it is a claim in the first place; in the next place it is general legislation upon an appropriation bill; and there is no law authorizing any such payment.

Mr. WHITE. It can not be general legislation, I suggest, and it is recommended, as I have said, by the committee. A bill for this purpose has already passed this body, and it has the endorsement of the whole body. I think we ought at least to have a vote upon an admittedly just matter of this kind, when there are so many items that refer to propositions of late birth, this being an old affair and something concerning which the State of California has not been treated as all the other public-land States of the Union have been treated.

Mr. GRAY. What does it amount to?

Mr. WHITE. The whole matter amounts to $800,000. I will state to the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations that as I do not think there is any dispute that the money is justly due California, I am willing to fix 1896 for the first installment instead of 1895, so that it shall not burden this fiscal year at all, and to let it stand at five annual installments. I have the word of the Senator himself in a previous debate that he has examined the matter and thinks the money is justly due.

Mr. COCKRELL. It is impossible, and it is not right to ask the Senate or the Committee on Appropriations to do it, to put on appropriation bills every liability of the United States. The Senator shows by his own remarks here that this is an old claim which has been pending here year after year, involving $800,000 or $1,000,000.

Mr. WHITE. Eight hundred thousand dollars.

Mr. COCKRELL. And now it is proposed, at the closing hours, that it shall be inserted as an amendment to the appropriation bill. It is not in order, in my opinion.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. President—

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. No debate under the rules of the Senate is allowed in reference to a point of order. The Chair desires information from the Senate. Is the Chair to understand that there is any law authorizing this payment to the State of California?

Mr. COCKRELL. Not a particle.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there any existing law?

Mr. COCKRELL. There is no law.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. If there is no law which authorizes this payment to the State of California, the Chair is of opinion that the amendment is obnoxious to the rule, and therefore is not in order.

Mr. WHITE. I appeal from the decision of the Chair. I desire to state that when we have repeatedly stood here and voted large sums of money for matters which, as I have said, are of recent origin, it is most singular that a discrimination should be made upon the ground that a claim is too old.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair submits to the Senate the question, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Senate?

Mr. WHITE. This is a case where the Government of the United States has the money and has had it for many years; and the attack is made on the proposition that it is old. In other words, the money has been due so long that the matter ought not to receive favorable consideration.

Mr. COCKRELL. I raise the point of order that the appeal is not debatable.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair overrules the point of order.

Mr. WHITE. I am willing to submit the question to the Senate. THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair submits to all the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Senate? [Putting the question.] The ayes have it. The decision of the Chair is sustained.

Mr. KYLE. On page 89, after line 17, I move to insert:

To enable the experimental department of the South Dakota Agricultural College to rent or purchase a suitable farm in the James River valley to sink an artesian well thereon, and to conduct an experimental farm according to the most approved methods of irrigation, $20,000.

I wish to say just a word about the amendment. It is along the line of practical investigation of the irrigation question. We have appropriated a good deal of money from time to time for the purpose of investigating the artesian water basin, but what our people in the West wish to know is whether the water can be applied to practical purposes upon the farm. I submit that the amount of money here asked is very small—the mere sum of $20,000, as appropriated to the State of South Dakota. It is not $800,000, as was asked for the State of California; it is not $200,000, as was asked for the State of Georgia, or $125,000, as was asked for the State of Tennessee. It is simply the sum of $20,000 to demonstrate to the farmers of the West whether we can make use of the artesian water in a practical way. I hope the Senate will vote favorably upon the amendment.

Mr. COCKRELL. This matter was fully considered by the committee. We did not see how we could make the appropriation, and I hope the amendment will not be agreed to. The amendment ought to have gone on the agricultural appropriation bill if it went on any bill. There is provision in that bill for irrigation. Now, to undertake to establish an experimental irrigation farm in a valley of one State to determine the process of irrigation by artesian wells at the expense of the United States is not right. They have their experimental agricultural stations in other States, and if they get just the same that every other State gets, and if they want to use the money for experiment purposes they ought to use that. I make the point of order on the amendment.

Mr. KYLE. There is no question but that the money will return to the United States a hundredfold within a very few years if this question can be demonstrated in a practical way. The Government owns 125,000,000 acres of public lands in those regions, yet it is all lying over this great artesian body of water. If we can demonstrate the fact that this water can be used successfully on the lands the Government now has at its disposal they will be set straight up, but in case this is not demonstrated, where there are ten people now we shall have no more than three, four, or five, in the future, and the public lands of the United States will not be taken in that region.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri makes the point of order against the amendment. The Chair is of opinion that the point of order is well taken.

Mr. KYLE. I appeal from the decision of the Chair on that question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota appeals from the decision of the Chair. The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Senate?

Mr. VEST. That is not debatable. I believe.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The appeal is debatable.

Mr. VEST. I merely want to inquire where we are to stop in this sort of legislation? Three hundred thousand dollars was voted this morning for grain to put in the ground, and now we are asked to vote $20,000 to water it. The next proposition will be for machines, I suppose, to cut it and gather it, and then we shall be asked to appropriate so much to transport it.

Mr. CULLOM. To thresh it.

Mr. VEST. If they intend to be heard to this sort of business, if the Government of the United States is to be turned into a great unnecessary institution, let the people understand it and let us throw upon the public Treasury so that everybody can grab at it.

Mr. KYLE. As a representative of the Northwest from Missouri the United States, I want to say to the Senator from Missouri that we in that country are about tired of placing millions upon millions of dollars upon rivers and harbors for the exclusive benefit of the South alone. The time has about come for us to call a halt, and I am willing to be one to call a halt upon that question. Eighteen million dollars are appropriated for rivers and harbors, hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent for little streams in the South that can not be located upon the geographical map to day. When it comes to a question of the South getting money from the United States Treasury for the question of appropriating only a small amount of money for the great Northwest, to build reservoirs and dam the streams whose melting snows rise and overflow the Mississippi in the South, then there is not a single dollar to spend. I hope this $20,000, which is no more than has been given for a single light-house upon the Atlantic coast, can be given to my State to demonstrate this practical question.

Mr. CAREY. Mr. President, when I heard of appropriations for the West, but I did not think the Senator from South Dakota is a little unfair when he alludes to this matter. We have in my State no less than five experimental stations, five farms situated in different places in the State, 40 acres in each farm, one planting to each acre, and all done by means of irrigation ditches. We have artesian wells in my State in which they are experimenting for agricultural purposes with the water taken. I believe in the continuation of those experiments; and the $15,000 that the Agricultural College receives in each State for this purpose enables us to experiment in that direction.

This question of irrigation is a very important one. I have great faith that we will make important agricultural success in the arid States and Territories. The Greeley colony in the State of Colorado, within 45 miles of the town where I live, have ordered 7,000 cars from the Gulf and Texas Railroad, for potatoes out of that one colony. The whole colony does not cover more than 125,000 acres of cultivated land. Our people are making all the necessary experiments in this direction; and they are doing it, and it is possible for the Government of the United States to do it.

I might also illustrate the matter by stating another case. A woman in my State received a prize of $500 from the Agricultural Association of the United States, I think it is termed, for producing the greatest number of bushels of potatoes on one acre. We want a donation of land on the condition that we will reclaim it. Congress has been very liberal in that respect. The Appropriations Committee increased our appropriation in this bill for the measurement of water from $12,500 to $25,000.

Now, I do not believe that this request on the part of the Senator from South Dakota is fair, because we have the very legislation in another bill, and we have been carrying it out with great success.

Mr. KYLE. I should like to ask the Senator from Wyoming what single dollar upon the appropriation bill can be appropriated in a practical way? Not a dollar of it. The amount for gauging streams is all very well. We do not care a snap of our fingers in the State of South Dakota how much water there is over a gauge in Jim River or any other river. We have the water in our ground; we know how much is there. We know what the pressure is. We want to know whether it can be utilized in a practical way whether it can be utilized for the purpose of irrigation. It is different from what it is in Wyoming. We have a peculiar kind of water in our State, and it has not yet been demonstrated by private capital, in our State whether it can be utilized.

Mr. CAREY. Heaven has, I know, blessed South Dakota so far as irrigation wells are concerned. Probably there is not such an other artesian district in the world as is here found in the valley of the James River. But I say to the Senator from South Dakota that we have these experimental stations. Congress is very liberal with us with regard to the matter. We have four or five of them in each State. We certainly have in my State. This proposed expenditure will not do as much good as the continued operation of one good irrigating farm in the James River Valley. I do not believe in dividing up these things or in dwarfing what is already being done by Congress in this respect.

Mr. KYLE. I will state to the Senator that the $15,000 granted to our State is scarcely sufficient to conduct the agricultural experiments in the State. There is not a dollar left over in any one year. We have not at the present time an experimental farm in the State of South Dakota.

Mr. CAREY. It is your fault. I say there are four or five in my State, 40 acres in each farm.

Mr. PETHGREW. Mr. President, it seems to me that this is not an unnecessary expenditure. In the valley of the James River, in South Dakota, they have discovered at a depth of about 1,000 feet the most remarkable reservoir of water probably in the world. One of the great wells near Huron, in South Dakota, which is 8 inches in diameter, throws a stream of water 15 feet into the air before it breaks, and when confined into a pipe 2 inches in diameter it throws a stream of water 150 feet into the air. That well has been running for the last four years without any diminution in the power and volume of its flow. It would irrigate a vast section of country. Yet that water has gone to waste, and has not been utilized largely because our people do not understand using it.

It seems to me in that country, where the rainfall is so slight and where the soil is so dry, that the Government of the United States can afford to set an example; that it can afford to dig one well, build a reservoir, and distribute that water. The people of that country are poor. One of these wells cost four or five thousand dollars when a reservoir is distributed. The means of distributing it are also expensive.

It appears to me that we can afford to make this one investment. We, without any hesitation what we have granted a bonus to the Louisiana sugar planters of $8,000,000. Without any hesitation whatever we voted $20,000,000 to build a canal to connect Claus Spreckels' sugar plantation at Hualapai with his refineries in San Francisco. Yet when South Dakota asks for $20,000 to make an experiment that will interest every person in this country Senators rise upon their feet and condemn it and the expense.

Mr. President, my colleague is seldom right on any question; but when he is right I hope to see him sustained and borne out in his position.

Mr. KYLE. I wish to state that my colleague in seven cases out of ten votes with me.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Senate?

Mr. KYLE. On that I call for the yeas and nays. The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. VILAS].

Mr. PERKINS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from North Dakota [Mr. ROACH].

Mr. WILSON of Iowa (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Georgia [Mr. GORDON].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. WHITE. It appears that a quorum has not voted, and I vote "nay."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will state to the Senator from California that a quorum has voted.

Mr. WHITE. I withdraw my vote. I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUR].

The result was announced—yeas 34, nays 14; as follows:

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate decides that the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. KYLE] is not in order.

Mr. KYLE. On page 135, at the end of line 15, I move to insert:

Sec. — That the amount paid printers and bookbinders for day labor in the Government Printing Office shall be at the rate of 50 cents per hour for time actually employed; and that hereafter all skilled mechanics, such as carpenters, machinists, plumbers, painters, etc., employed in the Government Printing Office shall be paid at the rate of 50 cents per hour for time actually employed.

In regard to this amendment I will state that it has the approval of the Committee on Education and Labor, and merely raises the wages of these employees to that of the pressmen. A bill passed the Senate and the House a short time ago and became a law raising the wages of pressmen to 50 cents per hour. These men perform like labor and are entitled, we think, to an increase from 40 to 50 cents per hour. This rate is not extraordinary in any way whatever. I understand that private establishments, like that of the Evening Star in the city of Washington, and of important papers in New York City, pay at the rate of 50 cents per hour for this kind of labor. There is no reason why, under these circumstances, these employees should not receive the same rate. As all understand, piecework in the Government Printing Office has been abolished, so that no man can earn at the present time more than 40 cents per hour. This will equalize the matter and enable all to earn at the rate of 50 cents per hour during the day.

Mr. COCKRELL. Mr. President—

Mr. GALLINGER. I desire to submit an amendment to the amendment, if the Senator from Missouri will allow it to be read. I will say before the amendment is offered that it was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. COCKRELL. I remind the Chair that the five-minute rule is not applicable to this revision.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will state that the hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the five-minute rule is now in operation by the unanimous consent agreement.

Mr. GALLINGER. I was saying—I will take only five seconds to say it—that the amendment which I submit to the amendment was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor, of which the Senator from South Dakota is chairman, and was reported back favorably. It refers to a certain other class of skilled mechanics in the Government Printing Office.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment to the amendment will be read.

The SECRETARY. All at the end of the amendment:

That hereafter all skilled mechanics, such as carpenters, machinists, plumbers, painters, etc., employed in the Government Printing Office, be paid at the rate of 50 cents per hour for time actually employed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the amendment of the Senator from New Hampshire to the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. COCKRELL. I reserve the point of order on the amendment. As a matter of course, the amendment to the amendment is to be voted upon before we can raise the point of order upon this amendment.

Mr. GORMAN. There may be, and probably is, great merit in this proposition; but I submit to the Senator who offers the amendment and to the Senate that the matter has been in the last year or two thoroughly investigated by the proper committee of this body, the Committee on Printing, and the rate of wages has been fixed at 40 cents per thousand. I submit further that the Committee on Education and Labor had no jurisdiction in either of the cases now presented to the Senate. I have stated to those interested in this matter that we would be very glad at the next session to take it up and consider it. I therefore make the point of order upon both amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair is of opinion that the point of order upon the amendment of the Senator from New Hampshire is well taken.

Mr. COCKRELL. Also on the other amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is the point of order made upon the other amendment?

Mr. COCKRELL. I make the same point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair is of opinion that the point of order is well taken, and that the amendment is not in order.

Mr. KYLE. I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. From the decision of the Chair the Senator from South Dakota appeals. The question is, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Senate? [Putting the question.] The yeas seem to have it. The yeas have it. The decision of the Chair is sustained, and the amendment is ruled out of order.

Mr. COCKRELL. There is a little matter that I wanted to refer to. The Senator from Oregon [Mr. MITCHELL] reported an elaborate amendment, which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, to adjust the controversy between the contractors for furnishing stone for the building of the Library of Congress, and the Department did not have time to investigate it and pass upon it. On page 80, at the end of line 22, under the head of "Library of Congress," I move to insert:

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS.

That the Secretary of the Interior is authorized and directed to consider and execute the terms of the contract between the United States and William H. B. Stock, Cyrus J. Hall and Isaac S. Bangs, dated April 21, 1888, for furnishing stone for the Congressional Library building, which was resumed by the act of Congress of October 2, 1888, making appropriations for civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1889, and to what extent it was executed prior to its rescission and what payments have been made, and whether in justice and equity any sum additional to the payments is due in his judgment to said contractor, and, if so, to make such sum make report of his action at the beginning of the next Congress.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MARTIN. On page 78, after line 11, I move to insert:

That any person who may have heretofore filed or shall hereafter file a declaratory statement or notice of homestead entry on any of the public lands of the United States, and has failed or shall fail to secure title to such lands by reason of any irregularity, accident, mistake, and without any fault or wrong upon his or her part, shall be entitled and allowed to acquire title to the same or less quantity of any of the unappropriated public land of the United States subject to entry under the laws thereof notwithstanding the fact that such person may have previously filed a declaratory statement or made such homestead entry.

Mr. ALDRICH. That is an amendment too important to be considered now, and I make the point of order upon it.

Mr. PLATT. Has the amendment been reported by a committee?

Mr. MARTIN. What is the point of order which the Senator from Rhode Island makes?

Mr. ALDRICH. That it is general legislation.

Mr. PLATT. Has it been reported by a committee?

Mr. MARTIN. I trust the Senator will withdraw his objection. If we are to rely upon the point of order that it is general legislation, no further bill might be ruled out substantially for the same reason. I think it is very late in the day now, after this matter has been thoroughly and carefully considered by a committee, to make an objection of that kind. It is recommended by the Department.

Its main dependence is a small spring in the foothills, which during the dry season of the past summer failed to yield more than four or five thousand gallons. I think that the people of Cheyenne, and the question which presents itself is to what point can its garrison be most advantageously moved. I respectfully request mature consideration of the proposition which I have presented. It is considered impracticable to place the garrison at Magnolia Bluff, in case a sufficient acreage is secured there to accommodate a large post (a movement which should take place next spring), then to what point shall it be moved? But the authorities decide that my recommendation in this particular matter has merit. I respectfully ask that they carefully weigh the great value of Magnolia Bluff as a very important factor in the permanent security of the country of troops within the system of defenses recommended by the Fortification Board, for the necessary protection of the inhabitants of the Puget Sound country.

I have incorporated this lengthy extract from my report of November 6, as it presents fully the entire subject. I am informed that the action recommended therein was approved by the general commanding the Army on November 23, and also by the United States Fortification Board and by the Chief of Engineers on December 1 and 1, respectively.

As concerns the Senate bill inclosed, I am disappointed that the amount of land (300 acres) which I have suggested to Government is so abridged. This 300 acres includes the most desirable portion of Magnolia Bluff, but Government should own, for obvious reasons, all approaches to the water to the north, west, and considerable of that south of the same, or all land in those directions. It already owns the extreme point of the bluff, where a light-house is established. These approaches are bold bluffs, can not be held by troops, and should accompany any grant accepted on the part of the United States.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

E. A. OTIS,

Brigadier-General, United States Army.

ABJUTANT GENERAL, UNITED STATES ARMY,
Washington, D. C.

Mr. GORMAN. I offer an amendment.

The SECRETARY. On page 136, after line 15, it is proposed to insert:

For preparing the history of the international congresses held at Chicago under the authority of the Government of the United States, said history not to exceed 10 volumes of 1,000 pages each, and to be prepared under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing, and at compensation to be fixed by said joint committee, not exceeding $10,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CULLOM. I desire to have a formal amendment inserted. On page 13, after the word "department," in line 14, I move to insert the words "including the temporary post-office building to be erected at Chicago, Ill."

Mr. ALLISON. Are not those words now in the bill?

Mr. CULLOM. They are in one or two other places, but it is necessary to insert them here.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is correct. Let the words be inserted. The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CULLOM. On page 14, line 16, after the word "stations," I move to insert the words which were put in the bill a moment ago on page 12.

The SECRETARY. In line 16, page 14, after the word "stations," insert:

Including the temporary post-office building to be erected at Chicago, Ill.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on concurring in the amendments made as in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. VEST. I desire to reserve a vote upon two amendments.

Mr. STEWART. I desire to reserve a vote on the amendment as to delegates to an international monetary conference.

Mr. McLAURIN. I desire to reserve for a separate vote the committee amendment on pages 34 and 35.

Mr. GORMAN. What is the amendment?

Mr. McLAURIN. With reference to the assistants in the Coast Survey, and in connection with the Coast Survey, to read a letter from the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. He says:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, D. C., February 26, 1895.

SIR: In reply to your inquiry of the 25th instant, I have the honor to state that the estimate for 34 assistants for the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey contained in the sundry civil bill now pending in the Senate, meets with the approval of the Department.

Respectfully, yours,

C. S. HAMLIN, Acting Secretary.

Hon. A. J. McLAURIN.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on concurring in the amendments made as in Committee of the Whole, except those which have been reserved.

The amendments were concurred in.

Mr. DUBOIS. I offer an amendment.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to insert after the word "be," in line 12, on page 70:

Selected from and serve in the States from which they are appointed.

So as to make the proviso read:

Provided, That agents and others employed under this appropriation shall be selected from and serve in the States from which they are appointed, selected under the civil-service law, rules, and regulations, and shall be allowed per diem, subject to such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe, in lieu of subsistence, at a rate not exceeding $1 per day each and actual necessary expenses for transportation.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CAREY. I offer an amendment, to come in on page 9, commencing in line 14, as a substitute for the paragraph as amended by the Senate as in Committee of the Whole.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out all of page 9, beginning with line 14, down to and including line 2, on page 10, and insert in lieu thereof:

To enable the Secretary of the Treasury to select, designate, and procure by purchase suitable sites and for the commencement of the construction of public buildings thereon, in the city of Cheyenne, the capital of Wyoming; in Boise City, the capital of Idaho; and in the city of Helena, the capital of Montana, there is hereby appropriated, out of any moneys not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $5,000,000. Each of said sites shall contain at least 16,000 feet of ground, and shall leave open space around the building to be erected thereon, including streets and alleys, not less than 100 feet. Neither of said sites shall cost in excess of $2,000,000 and neither of said buildings, each of which shall be five-story, shall cost, including the site, in excess of $1,000,000; and the appropriation herein made shall be available during this fiscal year for the purchase of sites and the commencement of the construction of the buildings, with power to contract for each of the buildings within the limit of $1,000,000 for each building.

Mr. SQUIRE. I should like to understand this matter. As I understood when the provision passed the Senate as in Committee of the Whole, the capital of the State of Washington, Olympia, was included in the number. Is Olympia now omitted?

Mr. GRAY. It never was in the bill.

Mr. SQUIRE. I should like to have some explanation of the reason why it is not in the amendment.

Mr. GRAY. It never was in the bill.

Mr. SQUIRE. It was put in the bill in the Senate as in Committee of the Whole, I understood.

Mr. GRAY. No, sir.

Mr. PETTINGREW. Question!

Mr. COCKRELL. Let us vote on the amendment of the Senator from Wyoming.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY].

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendments upon which a separate vote has been demanded will be taken up in their order.

Mr. STEWART. I ask for a separate vote on the amendment proposing to appoint delegates to an international monetary conference.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That amendment will be reserved. The first reserved amendment in order is that reserved by the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. McLAURIN].

Mr. McLAURIN. Mr. President, I simply want to say in reference to the amendment—

Mr. ALDRICH. Regular order.

Mr. COCKRELL. The hour for voting has arrived.

Mr. HALE. I call for the regular order. No further debate is permissible.

Mr. McLAURIN. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair thinks the Senator from Mississippi is not in order, under the rules of the Senate, in proceeding to debate the amendment.

Mr. McLAURIN. Very well; I will yield.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on concurring in the amendment reserved by the Senator from Mississippi. The amendment will be stated.

Mr. COCKRELL. It is simply the amendment restoring the Coast and Geodetic Survey assistants to what they were last year.

Mr. McLAURIN. If debate is in order on the amendment I want to make an explanation myself.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state to the Senator from Mississippi that debate is not in order except by unanimous consent.

Mr. McLAURIN. The Senator from Missouri—

Mr. COCKRELL. I simply stated what the amendment is. There was no debate about it.

Mr. McLAURIN. I simply want myself to state what the amendment is.

Mr. HALE. Regular order.

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the amendment be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be read.

The SECRETARY. The Senate as in Committee of the Whole struck out after of line 4, on page 34, down to and including line 24 on the same page in the following words:

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is, Will the Senate concur in the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole?

The amendment was concurred in.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The next reserved amendment will be stated.

Mr. VEST. I ask for a vote on the amendment which I offered in Committee of the Whole to the amendment on page 11.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.
THE SECRETARY. In line 8, on page 11, after the word "of," strike out the words "all the right, title, and interest of" and insert "a fee simple title to;" so as to read:

For the purchase of a fee simple title from Harriet Stanwood Blaine, etc.

Mr. VEST. On that I ask for the yeas and nays.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Missouri, to amend the amendment made as in Committee of the Whole, on which he demands the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered; and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

The amendment as modified was concurred in.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair understood the Senator from Nevada [Mr. STEWART] to reserve an amendment.

Mr. STEWART. I reserved for a separate vote the amendment providing for rates to an international conference. I desire to offer an amendment to come in at the end of the thirteenth line of the amendment, immediately after the words "United States." I offer the amendment to show that I am not a backslider.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

Mr. DANIEL. I desire to offer an amendment. After line 10, on page 12, I move to insert:

The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to cause plans and specifications to be prepared for a building for the use of the Department of Justice, with a view to its erection on the lot at the corner of Pennsylvania avenue and Lafayette Place, inclusive of the space now occupied by the building used by the said Department and that lately occupied by the Blaine mansion.

Mr. COCKRELL. I raise the point of order that the amendment is general legislation.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The point of order is made against the amendment submitted by the Senator from Virginia.

Mr. DANIEL. I beg leave to say it carries no appropriation.

Mr. COCKRELL. That does not make any difference; it is general legislation.

Mr. DANIEL. The amendment carries no appropriation.

Mr. COCKRELL. It is not a debatable proposition.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair is compelled under the rules of the Senate to sustain the point of order.

Mr. BERRY. I gave notice the other day that I would reserve the amendment on page 70, line 10, in regard to timber agents; but believing that the House conferees will insist upon the House provision, and hoping that the conferees on the part of the Senate, when they come to examine the report of the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the General Land Office, will yield that amendment, I did not ask to have it reserved for a separate vote in the Senate.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read the third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. COCKRELL. I move that the Senate request a conference with the House of Representatives on the bill and amendments.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to ap-has all the machinery for taking testimony pro and con, while the committees of Congress from time immemorial have considered claims almost invariably upon ex parte affidavits. Investigation in the court is vastly more thorough and its machinery is better adapted to this kind of investigation than the methods that have been adopted or can be adopted by a committee of Congress.

When a claim has been sent to that court, has been investigated by that judicial tribunal, and it has reported the facts it has found after careful and judicial investigation, it is a mockery if we are to sit here on our committees and undertake to overrule or override its finding of facts, with our machinery and our means of ascertaining what the facts are. The act authorizing such references should be repealed or the court abolished if we are to give no more credit to its findings. If we are to give any credit to its findings of fact, we should act upon them as facts.

As to the propriety of putting these items upon this bill, I know nothing about the French spoliation claims, but I do know a great deal about that class of claims in respect to which this amendment is proposed.

Mr. BUTLER. Mr. President, I submit that the point of order made by the Senator from Missouri is not well taken. I offered this amendment to a provision in the bill inserted by the committee, the provision which reads:

For payment of the judgment rendered by the Court of Claims in favor of the Southern Pacific Company, $1,809,539.70.

Some Senator on my left suggests that that is a judgment of the Court of Claims. That may be true; but, as suggested by the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. HARRIS], the finding of the Court of Claims in respect to the French spoliation claims and those under the Bowman Act ought to be as binding as a judgment of that court.

Is it now proposed, after referring these claims to the Court of Claims, where, as the Senator from Tennessee has suggested, they have all the machinery to investigate, to inquire, to reject incompetent evidence, etc., that the committees of this body are going to supervise the action of the Court of Claims? Mr. President, if that be true, the act under which they are referred to that court is an absolute mockery.

Now, I have in my possession the findings of the Court of Claims known as the French spoliation claims, and those under the Bowman Act. The court has found so much due each individual claimant. The time has expired when there could be an appeal from that finding, and no appeal has been taken. Is it now proposed that this Government shall repudiate those claims by refusing to pay them, and put them on this bill? That is the practical effect of the opposition to my amendment.

These claims have been before Congress session after session, year after year, to get a recognition of these claims found by the court appointed by Congress. Now, the Senator from Missouri comes in and makes the point of order against them.

I submit that they are not subject to a point of order, because if that provision in this bill is in order, and a number of others similar to it, I submit that this amendment is in order, and that this provision should be inserted in the bill, which reduces the amount in the original amendment by one-half, and allow these people to receive the money which is justly and honestly due them under the law of the country.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Missouri state his point of order?

Mr. COCKRELL. The point of order is that the amendment proposes to provide for private claims, and the claims were referred to the committee on Claims, and that committee has refused to report them favorably to be placed on a general appropriation bill.

Mr. BUTLER. If the Senator will allow me, I will inform him—

Mr. COCKRELL. I am making the point of order, and I insist that the point of order is not debatable. I have said—

Mr. BUTLER. The Senator is debating it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair desires to hear the suggestion of the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. COCKRELL. I am stating the point of order. I have not said a word about the merits or the demerits of the claims, but I may have something to say on that subject if the point of order is not sustained.

Mr. BUTLER. I insist, the Senator having stated his view of the case on the point of order, that it is but fair to me that I should be permitted to state mine.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will hear the Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. BUTLER. I do not understand that the Committee on Claims have reported against these claims. They simply have said that the claims are meritorious, but they have made no recommendation in regard to them. The claims come to the Senate from a regularly organized court of the Government, and I submit that they are entitled to as much consideration, and a great deal more, than the action of any committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will submit to the Senate the question. Is the proposed amendment in order?

Mr. COCKRELL. Let us have the yeas and nays on that question.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. COCKRELL. Just a word. The Senator from South Carolina said that the Committee on Claims had not passed upon those claims. It is so plain a proposition, it seems to me, that no one can doubt it. Here is the report of the Committee on Claims, made by the chairman of that committee:

The Committee on Claims, to whom was referred an amendment, introduced by Mr. HARRIS of Tennessee, to the bill (H. R. 8748) making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes, have given the same careful examination and submit the following report thereon:

Mr. BUTLER. I understood the Senator from Missouri to state that the question of order was not debatable, and I object to debate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair sustains the point of order made by the Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. COCKRELL. Then I hope the Chair will hereafter when a point of order is made decide the same way in every case.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question submitted to the Senate by the Chair is: Is the proposed amendment in order? The Secretary will call the roll.

Mr. DUBOIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH], and therefore withhold my vote.

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. BURROWS. I am paired with the junior Senator from Maryland [Mr. GIBSON], but I transfer that pair to the Senator from Nevada [Mr. JONES] and vote. I vote "yea."

Mr. GALLINGER (after voting in the affirmative). I inquire if the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] has voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am paired with that Senator, and withdraw my vote.

Mr. WASHBURN. I inquire if the Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] has voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Missouri has not voted.

Mr. WASHBURN. I am paired with that Senator, and withhold my vote. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. DUBOIS. I observe that the Senator with whom I am paired is present, and therefore I record my vote. I vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 35, nays 24; as follows:

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The point of order is overruled, and the question now is: Agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from South Carolina to the amendment of the committee.

Mr. COCKRELL. Why not put all the claims in, Mr. President? I think the Senator had better move to insert them all in the bill.

Mr. BUTLER. I thank the Senator for his suggestion, but I shall stand on the amendment I have offered.

Mr. COCKRELL. I move that all the cases which have been reported to the Senate under the Bowman Act be included in the list proposed to be inserted. The clerks can get the lists and insert them. It is not right that one class should be put in and not another, and there is quite a large number of these claims. I move that they be inserted as a portion of the amendment. Justice, equity, and fair dealing require that all claims of that class should be placed on the same footing.

Mr. BUTLER. Very well, Mr. President.

Mr. ALLISON. I hope the Senator will not press that amendment.

Mr. FRYE. If the Senator makes that motion he may as well move to include all the French spoliation claims.

Mr. COCKRELL. I say they all ought to be included.

Mr. VILAS. Including the insurance claims as well?

Mr. COCKRELL. Yes, all of them.

Mr. CULLOM. If that were done it would load this bill down so that it would sink in spite of anything that could be done to save it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The pending question is on the amendment proposed by the Senator from South Carolina to the amendment of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. PALMER. Let me call the attention of the Senator from Missouri—

Mr. GORMAN. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. COCKRELL. Just one moment. I wish to know if the modification, in line 7 of page 61, which I proposed has been disposed of.

Mr. GORMAN. That was passed over.

Mr. HOAR. I understood the rule requires the committee amendments to be first considered.

Mr. COCKRELL. That was the understanding, but I supposed when this question was called up that we could dispose of it very quickly, and therefore I made no point about it.

Mr. FRYE. It was disposed of.

Mr. COCKRELL. I know it was disposed of very quickly.

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President—

Mr. COCKRELL. I wish to have a committee amendment put in there and agreed to.

Mr. GORMAN. Will the Senator from Missouri permit me on this particular amendment? I understood the Senator from South Carolina to offer an amendment to come in at the end of the amendment in line 14, appropriating $1,809,339.70 to the Southern Pacific Company. Only the amendment to the amendment was adopted. Now the question comes up on the whole proposition.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. That is the pending question.

Mr. GORMAN. Yes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment as amended.

Mr. SHERMAN. I should like to have that read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will again be stated.

The SECRETARY. After line 10, on page 64, add the following: For payment of the judgment rendered by the Court of Claims in favor of the Southern Pacific Company, $1,809,339.70.

Mr. SHERMAN. I should like to have a statement made in regard to that judgment. What is it for?

Mr. BUTLER. The amendment I offered simply provides that there shall be appropriated three hundred and odd thousand dollars—I do not remember the exact amount—to pay the French spoliation claims, and three hundred and odd thousand dollars for claims under the Bowman Act. The original amendment which I offered provided for $1,408,242.29. I have modified the amendment, and I do not remember the amount stated, but it is six hundred and odd thousand dollars instead of one million four hundred thousand; and that sum is to be divided up between the two classes of claims.

Mr. FRYE. That amendment has been adopted.

Mr. BUTLER. It has been adopted.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. President—

Mr. GORMAN. As an amendment to the amendment.

Mr. BUTLER. As an amendment to the amendment of the committee.

Mr. COCKRELL. I understand the amendment in lines 11 to 14, on page 64, has already been agreed to.

Mr. GORMAN. Nobody knows.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It has not been agreed to, the Chair will state.

The amendment of the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. BUTLER] to the amendment of the committee was agreed to.

Mr. COCKRELL. Was not the committee amendment agreed to before the amendment to it was offered?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question on the amendment as amended has not been submitted to the Senate.

Mr. HARRIS. I should like to ask the Senator from South Carolina a question, so that I may understand his amendment. In respect to the payment of the French spoliation and Bowman Act claims, does the Senator provide for paying one-half of each claim, as found by the court, or does his amendment appropriate a specific sum to pay the whole of certain claims, paying nothing on others?

Mr. BUTLER. That is it.

Mr. FRYE. Question!

Mr. SHERMAN. The amendment just read at the desk relates to an entirely different subject-matter. I want to know what we are voting upon.

Mr. COCKRELL. I ask for a division of the two propositions.

They are separate and distinct questions, and I desire to have a separate vote.

Mr. FRYE. The Senator from Ohio [Mr. SHERMAN] asks the Senator from Missouri [Mr. COCKRELL] what the Southern Pacific Company judgment is.

Mr. COCKRELL. It is a judgment of the Court of Claims which was rendered some years ago. It is not connected in any shape, manner, or form with any of the Government obligations, and I think it is as honest and just a debt as any judgment which the Court of Claims has rendered upon a full hearing on both sides. I have no sympathy—

Mr. FRYE. It is drawing 4 per cent interest.

Mr. COCKRELL. It is drawing 4 per cent interest, and it will continue to do so until it is paid. I can see no reason on earth, except a mere sentimental one, because it is a railroad company, why the judgment ought not to be paid.

Mr. SHERMAN. There are great and I believe just claims on the part of the United States due from this railroad company, if it is the one I speak of, the Southern Pacific Company; and although the judgment may be rendered for a particular claim, I think there are counter claims to be made by the United States against the company in connection with the Central Pacific Railroad. I do not think it is right for us to appropriate money to pay this large sum of money when these claims on the part of the United States are still pending and in controversy. That is the way it seems to me. I suppose it is for that reason that the delay has occurred.

Mr. COCKRELL. There is no controversy about the matter at all.

Mr. FRYE. Can the Senator from Ohio name a claim of the United States against the Southern Pacific Company?

Mr. SHERMAN. I think the Southern Pacific Company is responsible for a large portion of the claim that will be made by the United States.

Mr. FRYE. Not a single dollar, in any way.

Mr. SHERMAN. That is a question.

Mr. FRYE. I had the honor of investigating that question very thoroughly. The Southern Pacific Company owes the United States nothing. The Central Pacific does. It is simply leased by the Southern Pacific.

Mr. SHERMAN. The Southern Pacific is a mere offshoot of the Central Pacific, and when the question comes to be determined I have no doubt the Southern Pacific will be made responsible for a large part of the losses which the Government has sustained through the Central Pacific.

Mr. FRYE. Does the Senator from Ohio give it as his opinion as a matter of law that the Southern Pacific Company can be held responsible for any debt of the Central Pacific?

Mr. SHERMAN. My impression is it can be.

Mr. FRYE. That is utterly impossible.

Mr. SHERMAN. Therefore, I ask—

Mr. HOAR. I should like to ask the Senator from Maine—

Mr. PALMER. I hope the Senator from Massachusetts—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Illinois is entitled to the floor.

Mr. PALMER. I hope the Senator from Massachusetts will give me the benefit of the recognition I had.

Mr. HOAR. I did not know that the Senator from Illinois was entitled to the floor.

Mr. PALMER. I desire to say that I think the claim in favor of the railroad ought to wait a final adjustment of the matters between the States and the United States. I protest that there is a large number of claims against the United States under the Bowman Act and other acts, including judgments of the Court of Claims, and there ought to be some general arrangement for their settlement. I can think of nothing more unjust than the selection of certain of these claims for immediate payment, and I am somewhat surprised that the Senator from Missouri, who is usually so cautious and just, should favor the selection of particular claims of these various classes and appropriation for their present payment. They ought to be disposed of by some general scheme of adjustment. I insist that the selection of particular claims—

Mr. COCKRELL. Will the Senator from Illinois let me say one word more right here?

Mr. PALMER. With great pleasure.

Mr. COCKRELL. To-day, as for years past, we are paying the Southern Pacific Company every dollar on account of the same class of indebtedness as that for which the judgment was rendered. We are not pretending to dispute our liability now. We have been paying it for years. Payment was suspended for a while, and that compelled the company to sue. They have their judgment, and after they get judgment the United States goes on and pays them month by month. But we will not pay this claim. The others are drawing no interest, while this is drawing 4 per cent interest every year; and yet the Government will not pay it. We pay all other judgments of the Court of Claims. Right here we put in a provision paying all the judgments which are ren-

States, reentered the service and continued in the active discharge of his duty until his death.

Mrs. Tassin, after the death of her husband, made application for a pension, and the same was allowed under the general laws at $17 per month—the Pension Office holding that his fatal disease (disease of kidneys) originated while he held the rank of first lieutenant in the Regular Army, although his widow contends that the disease had its origin in an attack of typhoid fever while a colonel of the volunteer forces.

The beneficiary in this bill accompanied the soldier during his service in the Regular Army, she having married when quite young, and remained by his side until his death. She was left, I am creditably informed, comparatively penniless, and is encumbered by a young daughter who is now in school. I am convinced that no more meritorious case has come before Congress for special legislation, and I trust it will receive the favorable consideration of this House.

Mr. HOOKER of New York. Has that bill been reported from the committee?

Mr. TAYLOR of Indiana. It has been.

Mr. HOOKER of New York. Has it been considered at a Friday evening session?

Mr. TAYLOR of Indiana. No, sir; I could not reach it last night.

There being no objection, the House proceeded to the consideration of the bill; which was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. TAYLOR of Indiana, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT OAKLAND, CAL.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (S. 2754) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Oakland, in the State of California.

Mr. ENGLISH of California. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of this bill.

The bill was read.

Mr. HOOKER of New York. Before consent is given—

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. HOOKER of New York. Before consent is given for the consideration and passage of this bill I think it no more than fair to ask some gentleman on the other side to back me in my charge.

The SPEAKER. That is a matter with which the Chair has nothing to do. The question is on granting consent for the consideration of this bill.

Mr. HOOKER of New York. If this bill is to be taken up and passed I think it should be with the understanding that a similar bill of some gentleman on this side of the House shall be permitted to go through the same course through the House in my charge for the erection of a public building at Jamestown, N. Y., in my district, a bill equally meritorious with the one which the gentleman from California is seeking to pass; and if his bill passes I want consideration for mine.

The SPEAKER. Objection is made.

Mr. ENGLISH of California. I ask that this bill remain on the Speaker's table.

The SPEAKER. Without objection it can lie on the table.

MONONGAHELA NAVIGATION COMPANY.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the joint resolution (S. R. 141) to extend the time for taking testimony in relation to the value of the improvements of the Monongahela Navigation Company on the Monongahela River in Pennsylvania.

Mr. DALZELL. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of this joint resolution.

The joint resolution was read.

Mr. DUCKERY. Reserving the right to object, I should like to hear some explanation.

Mr. DALZELL. The last river and harbor bill provided that the Secretary of War should inquire and report to this House as to the terms on which the Monongahela Navigation Company's works could be purchased, and should also take testimony and report to the House as to the commercial value of those works, to the end that Congress might determine upon the expediency of making the purchase. This joint resolution simply extends the time for taking such testimony. It involves no charge upon the Treasury. It authorizes the Secretary of War to report on this subject at the next session of Congress, instead of this Congress.

Mr. DUCKERY. Has this measure the approval of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors?

Mr. DALZELL. That committee approves the measure.

Mr. CATCHINGS. Mr. Speaker, by a provision of the last river and harbor bill it was made the duty of the Secretary of War to take testimony regarding the value of these works. For some reason he has been unable to complete the taking of the testimony during the time allowed. The only object of this resolution is to extend the time within which the Secretary of War may do what he was directed to do in this matter. The resolution carries no appropriation whatever, and it ought to pass.

There being no objection, the House proceeded to consider the joint resolution; which was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. DALZELL, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the joint resolution was passed was laid on the table.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT OAKLAND, CAL.

Mr. ENGLISH of California. I understand that objection is now withdrawn to my request for the consideration of the bill (S. 2754) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Oakland, in the State of California.

Mr. DUCKERY. I wish to say that after much persuasion on the part of the gentleman from California I have agreed that, so far as I am concerned, I will not object to the consideration of this bill if an agreement can be reached by which one gentleman on the other side can be reconciled.

Mr. DINGLEY. That is all right, if such an arrangement can be made.

Mr. HERMANN. I represent to-day the capital of the only State in this Union for which a public building has not been provided; and if this request is granted, I claim similar consideration for my State.

Mr. KIEFER. My case is precisely similar.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

The Clerk again read the title of the bill.

Mr. WELLS. I object.

HARBOR REGULATIONS FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the bill (S. 1508) to establish harbor regulations for the District of Columbia.

Mr. HEARD. I desire to ask that this bill be considered now. I wish to state that a House bill, a precise counterpart of this, was passed by the House on the 9th of April last, was sent to the Senate, and was there favorably reported.

The SPEAKER. The House will be in order. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. HEARD] asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of this bill.

The bill was read at length.

Mr. HEARD. Mr. Speaker, this bill has been prepared by the District authorities and was forwarded to the committees of the House and Senate at the beginning of the session of Congress. It was favorably reported in both branches of Congress and passed the House unanimously on the 9th day of April. The Senate passed a similar bill; and now I ask, in order to complete the legislation, that the House take up and pass the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the bill was considered and ordered to a third reading; and being read the third time, was passed.

Mr. BYNUM. I demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is proceeding with the regular order now.

BRONZE STATUE OF PROFESSOR GROSS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the joint resolution (S. R. 117) granting permission for the erection of a bronze statue in Washington, D. C., in honor of the late Prof. Samuel D. Gross, M. D., LL. D., D. C. L.

The SPEAKER. This is a Senate resolution. The House amended the resolution, which amendment was disagreed to by the Senate, and a conference is now asked on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses.

Mr. CLARKE of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House further insist on its amendment, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER announced the appointment of Mr. BARTLETT, Mr. ROBERTSON of Louisiana, and Mr. ADAMS of Pennsylvania as conferees on the part of the House.

JUDICIAL DISTRICT, TEXAS.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 7151) to provide for terms of the circuit and district courts of the western judicial district of the State of Texas to be held at the city of Laredo, and for other purposes; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

REFERENCE OF A SENATE FILE.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the bill (S. 2519) granting an increase of pension to Adelaide Morris; which was referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

REPORT ON DECEASED.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following concurrent resolution of the Senate:

Resolved, That there be printed and reported to the report of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry on cotton, Thursday submitted, or which 500 shall be for the use of the said committee, 200 for the State Department, 500 for the Bureau of Statistics, 1,500 for the Senate, and 3,500 for the House of Representatives.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of this resolution, which meets the approval of the Committee on Printing.

There being no objection, the resolution was considered, and concurred in.

SEALER OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The SPEAKER also laid before the House the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Secretary be directed to furnish to the House of Representatives, in compliance with its request, a duplicate copy of the amendments to the bill (H. R. 3246) for the appointment of a sealer and assistant sealer of weights and measures in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, the bill referred to there is a House bill with Senate amendments. I hope consent will be given for the present consideration of the amendments of the Senate, as the District Commissioners desire that legislation shall be had on this matter at this session of Congress. The amendment of the Senate meets the approval of the House committee.

The amendment of the Senate was read at length.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, this amendment provides, as will be seen, for a better system of law governing the duties and emoluments of the sealer of weights and measures in the District of Columbia. The amendment of the Senate does not increase the cost to the public, and the Commissioners recommend, and urgently recommend, the passage of the bill now. The present law is sadly deficient.

I insert in this connection, as explaining the whole matter, the report of the Senate committee, prepared by Senator McMillan, upon this subject.

It is as follows:

The Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 3246) "for the appointment of a sealer and assistant sealer of weights and measures in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes," after consideration, report the bill back with an amendment in the nature of a substitute and recommend that the bill, when so amended, do pass.

The necessity for more action on the subject is shown by a letter addressed to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia by the present inspector, who says:

The bill, as prepared by the present sealer of weights and measures, and introduced by the Commissioners, was passed by the House of Representatives. It has seemed best to your committee, however, to change the House act in some essential features, while at the same time providing remedies for the defects in the existing law.

It has been the aim of Congress to do away with the fee system of payment for the services of District officials, and to substitute the salary system. The present sealer of weights and measures now receives fees amounting to more than $4,000; and it has been estimated that the act as it came to the committee would increase the amount to from $5,000 to $10,000 per annum. Out of his income he pays his assistants and a laborer, and he also provides a horse and wagon when necessary. His net receipts are about $2,000, the amount of salary provided for in the amendment submitted.

Inasmuch as the correctness of weights and measures is a matter of public concern, the committee believe that no fees should be exacted. Moreover, they believe that the best interests of the service require that there should be no money relations between the officers and the owners of scales and measures.

The committee has also inserted several sections for the better protection of the buyers of coal by providing for tests at the instance of either the purchaser or the sealer of weights and measures.

WASHINGTON, September 15, 1893.

GENTLEMEN: Herewith I transmit draft of a bill providing for the annual measurement of yardsticks, the annual correction of counter scales, the inspection of butter in market, and the inspection and sealing of bucketers' weights and measures, with the request that you will ask for its enactment by Congress.

The law at present does not permit the sealer of weights and measures to inspect a yardstick upon which his official stamp has already been placed, notwithstanding he may have reason to suspect that it has been shortened. Legislation is therefore required which will allow of a yearly inspection of yardsticks.

While I am permitted to examine spring scales four times a year, counter scales, like yardsticks, may not be examined after they have been declared correct, and the same necessity exists for their periodic inspection as in the foregoing case, for it is very evident that such scales are frequently tampered with after they have been officially stamped.

There does not at present seem to be any adequate law for the protection of purchasers against short-weight butter, and although I find large quantities of butter having a shortage in weight of from one ounce to two and a half ounces in the pound, I am powerless to take any action in the matter. It is at the earnest request of many citizens that I include the provision for the inspection of butter.

All hucksters, without exception, have false measures. Every one I meet on the street has a peck or half-peck measure with a false bottom, or he has false stave out of it, and the result is the same. The system is so well known to prohibit this nefarious practice, and hence these men are daily imposing upon the public. To take their measures from them has no effect other than to cause them to procure others equally deficient, and the enactment of some punitive legislation is therefore urgently required.

Respectfully,

FRANK A. BOND,
Sealer of Weights and Measures.

THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

I ask that the House concur in the Senate amendments.

The motion was agreed to.

On motion of Mr. RICHARDSON of Tennessee, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

By unanimous consent, leave was granted to withdraw papers in the following cases:

To Mr. HARRIS, in the case of Daniel Woodson and the estate of Eli Moore, Fifty-third Congress, no adverse report having been made thereon.

To Mr. TRACEY, in the case of Margaret F. Brannan, Fifty-third Congress; no adverse report.

Also to Mr. TRACEY, in the case of John V. Behan, Fifty-third Congress; no adverse report.

To Mr. FITHIAN, papers before the Committee on Invalid Pensions in the case of James A. Crouch.

ELIZABETH MOORE ENGLISH.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Speaker, I submit a conference report.

The SPEAKER. The report will be read.

The report was read, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (H. R. 6385) granting a pension to Elizabeth Moore English, having met after a full and free conference have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same.

C. L. MOSES,

J. F. STALLINGS,

J. A. TAWNEY,

Managers on the part of the House.

JOHN M. PALMER,

J. H. GALLINGER,

JOSEPH R. HAWLEY,

Managers on the part of the Senate.

The House managers submit the following statement:

The managers on the part of the House submit the following statement: H. R. 6385, as reported to the House by the Committee on Pensions, granted to the widow of Earl English, late rear-admiral United States Navy, a pension at the rate of $50 per month. This amount was reduced by the House, and the bill was passed at $30 per month. The Senate amendment increases the amount to $40, the original amount reported by the House committee. The effect of the report of the managers on the part of the House is to increase the amount to be paid to the beneficiary in the bill named from $30 to $50 per month.

C. L. MOSES,

J. A. TAWNEY,

J. F. STALLINGS.

Mr. TAWNEY. I move the adoption of the report.

The report was adopted.

On motion of Mr. TAWNEY, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

tance of one-eighth of a mile. It is recommended that steps be taken to purchase an additional lot and also to build an iron coaling wharf in front of the coal shed.

Mr. CHANDLER. The Secretary speaks of a coal shed, but he does not make it very clear that a pier could not be built on the land we now own. Here is a very large appropriation for an additional lot for the coal shed. Forty thousand dollars for the pier itself and $20,000 for the land. If we have several acres of land at Key West, it would seem that it would be good enough to build the pier on our present land instead of buying more. But then I yield my opinion on the subject to that of the Secretary of the Navy, because beyond all question there ought to be ample coaling facilities at Key West.

Mr. HIGGINS. I should like to ask a question. Is this station a mere coaling station or is it a naval station for any other purpose?

Mr. PASCO. It is there for other purposes, if desired.

Mr. HIGGINS. What other purpose?

Mr. PASCO. The United States has a fort there.

Mr. HIGGINS. Is that a part of the naval station?

Mr. PASCO. It is there for the purpose of protection.

Mr. CHANDLER. There is no naval workshop there.

Mr. PASCO. There is no naval workshop there. There are some tools there, and there is some Government work there, as stated in another part of the report of the Secretary of the Navy. I will read it if the Senator desires.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. PASCO. On that I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. GORMAN. I trust the Senator will not ask for the yeas and nays. I hope he will not persist in this matter. We have a small wharf down there. It is true that it is not all that the Navy Department desires. The Department wants to enlarge it by buying a lot for $20,000 and putting up an additional wharf.

If the Senate had paid attention to the letter of the Secretary of the Navy it would have observed that he does not say this is necessary now for naval purposes. It is desirable looking ahead to occurrences that may come hereafter; we ought to have it. Next year, in the judgment of the committee, it would be just as well as now; probably a year or two later. In view of the immense appropriations carried in the bill I trust the Senate will not permit the item to go in the bill.

Mr. PASCO. The Senator from Maryland forgets that this is an economical matter. Money will be saved by it. The coal will be bought at less than half its present price. We are now getting foreign coal from foreign ports. With this facility we will be able to use coal from our own mines, at our own ports, and take it upon our own vessels. It seems to me that those reasons ought to prevail with the Senator from Maryland and cause him to leave the matter stand as the House of Representatives left it.

Mr. CALL. I desire to say a single word. Key West is one of the most important stations on the whole coast of the United States. Every vessel that enters the Gulf of Mexico, whether foreign or domestic, touches at Key West. The purchase of this lot has been recommended for many years as an additional accommodation and a necessary one. I hope if any of these appropriations are retained in the bill this provision will be.

Mr. GORMAN. I wish to say to the Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL] that all the like appropriations for all these yards have been stricken out in the bill. If we give a coaling wharf at Florida, we will have to give similar appropriations in all the other cases.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the committee, upon which the yeas and nays have been ordered.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GALLINGER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS].

Mr. GORMAN (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON].

Mr. HANSBROUGH (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Illinois [Mr. PALMER].

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (when Mr. HARRIS's name was called). The present occupant of the Chair is paired with the Senator from Vermont [Mr. MORRILL]. Otherwise would vote "yea."

Mr. HIGGINS (when his name was called). I am paired with the senior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. MCPHERSON]. In his absence I withhold my vote.

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUR].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GALLINGER. I transfer my pair with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] to the Senator from Montana [Mr. MANTLE], and vote "nay."

Mr. DUBOIS. Inquire whether the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD] has voted?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. He has not voted.

Mr. DUBOIS. I announce that my colleague [Mr. SHOUR] is paired with the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BLANCHARD].

Mr. WHITE. I will now vote, as my pair with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUR] has been transferred. I vote "nay."

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon (after having voted in the negative). I voted under a misapprehension. I am paired with the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. VILAS], and withdraw my vote. If the Senator from Wisconsin were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. BLACKBURN. I ask to make an announcement, and I shall not repeat it during the session. The junior Senator from Missouri [Mr. VEST] is paired with the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WASHBURN].

Mr. CAREY. I am paired with the junior Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. MITCHELL]. I therefore withhold my vote.

The result was announced—yeas 24, nays 25; as follows:

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. FRYE. I ask the Senator from Maryland to allow me to offer an amendment to come in at the end of the bill in order to correct a mistake made in a bill which became a law yesterday.

Mr. GORMAN. By unanimous consent that can be done. There is no objection to it.

Mr. FRYE. In a bill which became a law yesterday the words "Jacksonville, Florida, Bangor, Maine, New Haven, Connecticut," were ordered to be inserted after the word "Illinois." The word "Illinois" unfortunately occurs in two places, and the insertion was made in the wrong line. I offer this amendment simply to correct it.

The SECRETARY. At the end of the bill it is proposed to add:

That entitled "An act to amend section four of Title LII of the Revised Statutes of the United States, concerning the regulation of steam vessels, approved August 7, 1882, and to amend section 41, Title LII of the Revised Statutes, regulation of steam vessels, approved March 1, 1885, is hereby amended by striking out the words 'Jacksonville, Bangor, Maine, New Haven, and New Britain, Connecticut,' where said words occur in the third paragraph of the second section thereof, following the word 'Illinois,' and inserting thereunto in the second paragraph of section 2 of said act after the word 'Ill.'"

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I move to insert the amendment I send to the Clerk's desk.

The SECRETARY. After the word "President," in line 16, page 36, insert:

Provided, That every Representative or Delegate in Congress whose district of Territory is not now represented at the Naval Academy, for any cause by which he shall be prevented and authorized to recommend a candidate for appointment as a cadet at the Naval Academy of the United States, such recommendation to be made on or before the 31st day of March, 1895, subject to the qualifications now prescribed by law, shall be in writing, and shall be countersigned by the commanding officer of the Naval Academy, as now provided by law.

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The reading of the bill will be proceeded with.

The reading of the bill was resumed. The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 45, in line 23, to strike out "three" and insert "two"; so as to read:

IN SENATE, FEBRUARY 27, 1895.

That to the said sum of twelve hundred and eighty thousand dollars of the United States Treasury, hereunto appropriated, there be and there is hereby appropriated the sum of one hundred and eighty thousand dollars, to enter the present session and until provided otherwise.

Mr. ALDRICH. I suggest to the Senator from Maryland that the amendment be passed over for the present without action.

Mr. HALE. It is all there is left.

Mr. ALDRICH. No, there are two or three other pages of the bill.

Mr. HALE. They are on the other subject, "Increase of the Navy."

Mr. GORMAN. All of the amendments, except one on page 50, relate to this subject. I will, for the moment, ask that we may pass over all the amendments in relation to the increase of the Navy, down to the amendment on page 50, and consider that for the time being.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. If there be no objection that course will be pursued.

The SECRETARY. The Committee on Appropriations report an amendment on page 50 after line 5 to add:

That the Secretary of the Navy is hereby authorized and required to remit to N. F. Palmer, jr., of the City of New York, City, the time penalties exacted by the Navy Department under the contracts with said company for the construction of gunboat numbered 3, known as the Concord, and gunboat numbered 4, known as the Benjamin, the United States having suffered no damage by the delay in the construction of the said gunboats.

Mr. CHANDLER. I do not propose to oppose the amendment, but I do wish to call attention to the fact that when we began to build our new ships we adopted a system of premiums and penalties. We have premiums for excessive speed and other extraordinary performances of the vessels—

Mr. HALE. Which we pay.

Mr. CHANDLER. And penalties for various failures on the part of the contractors. I believe the practical result is that we have paid premiums in nearly every case, and we never yet have exacted a penalty. I wish to ask the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN] to be kind enough to tell us whether we have ever exacted a penalty in any case?

Mr. BLACKBURN. I shall not say that we have received a penalty, but I will say that the Committee on Naval Affairs at the present session of Congress has refused to recommend the remission of penalties upon four ships. I will state further, with the permission of the Senator from New Hampshire, that the remission of the penalties upon these two ships is recommended by the Committee on Naval Affairs, and passed the Senate unanimously in the shape of an independent bill, but failed of consideration—it was not rejected, as I remember—in the other House. That relates to the two vessels named here. But there are four ships upon which the penalties have been exacted to be remitted. The Committee on Naval Affairs has declined to recommend to the Senate their remission.

Mr. CHANDLER. I have no doubt that a good equitable case was apparently made out here. The Government did not suffer money loss, and the contractors were entitled to consideration. But all the time while we have been remitting these penalties we have been paying enormous premiums. I am glad to say that I think the premium system has been ended. Perhaps some member of the committee can inform me on that subject. I believe the Navy Department has concluded to discontinue the system of premiums for excessive speed.

Mr. HALE. There is no provision of that kind in bills providing for other ships.

Mr. CHANDLER. I understand not. The naval constructors have come to the conclusion that we can now estimate in this country what a ship will accomplish and be so accurate in their estimate that there is no need of undertaking to stimulate the builders of ships by promising the premiums which have cost the Government so much.

I am glad this conclusion has been reached. I only wish to emphasize the fact that we never yet have succeeded in collecting penalties that have been provided for in any contract.

Mr. BLACKBURN. It is true, in answer to the question of the Senator from New Hampshire, the ships provided for in the bill do not carry any offer in the shape of premiums for speed in excess of that provided for. It is true that the Navy Department has determined to abandon the practice of offering premiums as hitherto followed; but in the case of these two ships the Navy Department did state in its communications to the Committee on Naval Affairs that the Government had not only suffered no harm but that the Government had gotten better ships than the contract called for, and that the failure to comply with the terms of the contract was not the fault of the contractor. Upon that a report was made from the Committee on Naval Affairs to the Senate recommending the remission of the penalties in these two cases, and that was a bill which passed the Senate unanimously and failed to receive consideration in the other House. Now it is offered in the shape of a paragraph to the pending bill.

Mr. CHANDLER. That statement I understand to be exactly correct. I have no doubt that the equities are with the contractors in this case.

Mr. ALDRICH. I should like to know (if it may have been stated when I was not paying attention to the discussion) what amount is involved in the amendment?

Mr. BLACKBURN. My recollection is that it is about $30,000.

Mr. HALE. About $30,000.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I am corroborated in that recollection by the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE].

Mr. ALDRICH. Another Senator, who said he was familiar with the facts, said it was $96,000.

Mr. BLACKBURN. No; the Senator from Maine, who is a member old in service of the Committee on Naval Affairs—not old in years—agrees with me in his recollection that it is about $30,000.

Mr. ALDRICH. Has the money been paid into the Treasury?

Mr. HALE. That is my recollection.

Mr. ALDRICH. Or does it exist merely in the form of a claim?

Mr. HALE. I think about $32,000 has been paid, though I may be wrong in my recollection.

Mr. BLACKBURN. That is my recollection. I do not think it has been paid into the Treasury. Otherwise it would require a special appropriation here to take it out of the Treasury.

Mr. ALDRICH. It seems to me on general principles we ought to know something about the amount.

Mr. BLACKBURN. As I stated in answer to the question of the Senator from New Hampshire, there is now pending an application to remit all time penalties on four other ships, amounting in the aggregate to about $40,000.

Mr. HUNTON. Forty thousand three hundred and fifty dollars.

Mr. BLACKBURN. But the Committee on Naval Affairs has not recommended that remission, nor has the Secretary of the Navy.

Mr. ALDRICH. Then the contract which was entered into with these gentlemen was a one-sided contract. If the Government lost, the gentlemen were not obliged to pay.

Mr. BLACKBURN. In answer I would say it was left entirely in the discretion of Congress. If any harm had come by reason of the fault of the contractor, then I should say Congress ought not to remit the penalties; but in this case we have the authority of the Government for the statement that the Government suffered no harm by reason of the failure to comply with the terms as to time, but that, upon the contrary, the Government got better ships than the contract called for. Upon that statement the Secretary recommended these remissions, and the Committee on Naval Affairs so recommended, and the Senate passed the bill.

Mr. HUNTON. Mr. President, I agree to all that has been said by the Senator from Kentucky, but I must insist that the same is exactly true of the other four vessels alluded to by the Senator from Kentucky, to wit, the Yorktown, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Newark, and that the time penalties on those four vessels, amounting to $40,350, should be remitted. In the contract for those four vessels there was no time premium, but only the time penalties. The same state of facts exists as to those four vessels that exists as to the two mentioned by the Senator from Kentucky. I have in my hand a copy of an answer made by the chief of the construction division of the Navy Department, which I will read for the information of the Senate:

[Second indorsement.]

JANUARY 14, 1893.

1. Respectfully returned to the Department.
2. The amount named in the first statement, $40,350, is correct. In regard to the third question, the Bureau is of opinion that the Government sustained no loss or damage by reason of the delay in completion of the vessels referred to, beyond the loss of their service during the increased time of their construction; also, that the changes made in these vessels, which undoubtedly delayed their construction, improved their character and efficiency, and were made for that purpose alone.
3. The amendment (inclosure 1) is returned herewith.

PHILIP HICHBORN,
Chief Constructor U. S. N., Chief of Bureau.

Now, whatever is true of the two ships mentioned in the bill is true of these four. The time penalty which was incurred by the contractor for the building of these four vessels grew out of the fact that the Government changed the plan. By the change the Government got better vessels; and that change in the plan was the cause of the delay in completing the contract. Therefore, if these two vessels are to be released from the time penalty I appeal to the committee, and especially to the Senator from Maryland, who has charge of the bill, to allow the time penalties upon those four other cruisers to be remitted also. I appeal to the Senator from Maryland, who has charge of the bill, to allow these four vessels to go in also.

Mr. HALE. That is not like the case under consideration.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is, will the Senate agree to the amendment reported by the committee?

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Secretary will report the amendment passed over on page 45.

The SECRETARY. On page 45, line 23, before the word "seagoing," the committee report to strike out "three" and insert "two," so as to read:

That for the purpose of further increasing the naval establishment of the United States the President is hereby authorized to have constructed by contract two seagoing coast-line battle ships designed to carry the heaviest armor and most powerful ordnance upon a displacement of about ten thousand tons, etc.

Mr. GORMAN. Mr. President, I desire to detain the Senate for only a moment on this proposition. The Senate understands perfectly what it is. The provision as it comes from the House authorizes the construction of three battleships at a cost of $4,000,000 each, exclusive of the armament, and the amount of the appropriation $12,000,000. The Senate committee, after a careful consideration of all the provisions of the bill and all the conditions that surround the Treasury, reported an amendment to strike out "three" and insert "two."

Mr. ALDRICH. Will the Senator from Maryland allow me?

Mr. GORMAN. Certainly.

Mr. ALDRICH. It is very evident that we can not complete the discussion of this amendment to-night. I suggest to the Senator from Maryland that we take a recess for half an hour, with an understanding that at that time we shall take a recess until 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Mr. GORMAN. There is no objection to the consideration of the bill, I understand.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the consideration of the bill indicated by the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. PEPPER. I move to amend the bill by adding at the end of the last line what I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the Senator from Maryland will be stated.

The SECRETARY. Add at the end of the bill—

Except that part of said agreement contained in the following paragraph: "Nothing in this settlement and agreement is intended to shall in any construction be held to preclude the right of the State of Arkansas to assert and establish her title to any lands which were granted or claimed to her by the said act, approved September 28, 1850, March 2, 1853, and March 3, 1857, in so far as the same is disputed by those Indians, among any subsequent grant made or claimed to her, and the scope and purpose of this settlement being hereby declared to be the adjustment of all disputes between the United States and the State of Arkansas, and to leave undisturbed inasmuch controversies between said State and other parties in which the United States is not beneficially interested."

Mr. BERRY. Will my colleague yield to me for a moment?

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Certainly.

Mr. BERRY. In the first place, there can be no amendment in regard to this matter because it is an agreement based upon the act that was passed in August, which authorized the agreement and which might be ratified by Congress. The State has already ratified it, and the governor has already signed the agreement, and any amendment, of course, would not be binding upon the State of Arkansas. In the second place—

Mr. GORMAN. Now, Mr. President—

Mr. BERRY. Just one moment, if the Senator from Maryland will permit me, I hope we can get a vote.

Mr. GORMAN. A vote can be had in a moment I will yield.

Mr. BERRY. Very well.

Mr. CALL. I ask the Senator from Arkansas to allow me to present a conference report.

Mr. BERRY. I hope the Senator from Florida will not interpose now.

Mr. CALL. I will withhold it for a moment.

Mr. BERRY. As I was going to state, in the second place, what would simply be the effect of the amendment. This is a full settlement of all claims between Arkansas and the United States Government of every character and description. There is a contest between the Iron Mountain Railroad and the State of Arkansas with which this Government has nothing whatever to do, and the agreement leaves the rights and claims of the Iron Mountain Railroad and the State precisely as though this bill and this agreement never had existed.

There is a contest between Arkansas and the Iron Mountain Railroad, not between Arkansas and any of her citizens, as to whether the Iron Mountain Railroad shall pay her State for certain lands that the Iron Mountain Railroad obtained, and which the State claimed, and it is solely this bill that it is not affected by this bill. Whatever the railroad company have without the passage of this bill the company will still have after its passage. Arkansas gets no pay from the Government, nor no offset for any lands lying within the Iron Mountain grant. The swamp lands for which the State receives credit are not the lands claimed by the Iron Mountain Railroad.

I trust that the amendment will not be adopted, because that contest is not a matter in which the United States is interested in any way, directly or indirectly.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Kansas.

Mr. PEPPER. I desire to be heard very briefly on this question.

Mr. GORMAN. Now, Mr. President—

Mr. CALL. If the bill is going to be debated I must insist upon presenting a conference report. At all events, the report ought to go back to the other House immediately.

Mr. GORMAN. It must go back at once.

INDIAN APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. CALL submitted the following report:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate numbered 47, 65, 97, 125, 138, 144, 148, 150, and 201 of the bill (H. That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 125, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In line 1 of said amendment strike out the word "four" and insert in lieu thereof the word "two" and strike out all after the word "That," in line 18, down to and including the word "Survey," in line 22 of said amendment; and the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 148, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In line of the said amendment insert the following: "and the Senate agree to the same."

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 200, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In line of the said amendment insert the following: "and the Senate agree to the same." That the amendments of law made to the (Crow Indians in the Indian Territory, in pursuance of an act of the Cheyenne national council, approved March 23, 1894, be and the same be hereby ratified and confirmed, subject to revision, correction, and approval by the Secretary of the Interior. Provided, however, that any allottee who may be dissatisfied with his allotment shall have all the rights to contest the same provided for in subject of the Cheyenne national council, subject to revision, correction, and approval by the Secretary of the Interior. On the amendments of the Senate numbered 47, 136, and 144 the committee of conference have been unable to agree.

WILKINSON CALL.

F. M. COCKRELL.

H. M. TELLER.

Managers on the part of the Senate.

W. S. HOLMAN.

J. M. ALLEN.

J. A. PICKLER.

Managers on the part of the House.

The report was concurred in.

Mr. CALL. I move that the Senate further insist upon its amendments disagreed to by the House of Representatives and agree to the further conference asked by the House.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. CALL, Mr. COCKRELL, and Mr. TELLER were appointed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. PEPPER. Mr. President, the amendment that I have proposed to the bill called up by the Senator from Arkansas brings up all that there is in dispute between the Senator from Arkansas and myself about this matter. I am not certain that it is altogether a dispute, either; but I want the Senate to understand what we are doing.

Mr. GORMAN. If this bill is to lead to discussion it is not possible for me to give way to it or any other measure at this time. If the Senate can not agree to come to a vote upon the measure I shall have to call for the regular order.

Mr. PEPPER. I will say to the Senator from Maryland that I shall not occupy more than five minutes, and after that I shall make no further objection.

Mr. GORMAN. If we can have a vote on the bill in five minutes I shall give way.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I ask the Senator from Maryland to give us ten minutes.

Mr. BERRY. I ask unanimous consent that we may have ten minutes, and that at the end of that time the vote be taken.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Arkansas?

Mr. CHANDLER. I objected to this bill several days ago. I am unwilling to prevent consideration of it, but since I objected to it I am unwilling to reconsider the vote whereby the Senate concurred in its passage. I shall find it necessary to make a statement of facts as I understand them. It will not be a long statement, but I am not willing to confine myself to ten minutes in stating the case as I understand it.

Mr. GORMAN. Then I feel compelled to demand the regular order.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection to the request of the Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. BERRY. If there is an opportunity some time before adjournment to-night I hope we can finish the bill then.

SUPPRESSION OF LOTTERY TRAFFIC.

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President, I move to proceed to the consideration of a motion to reconsider the vote whereby the Senate concurred in the House amendments to the bill (S. 1620) for the suppression of lottery traffic through national and interstate commerce and the postal service subject to the jurisdiction and laws of the United States. I propose if that is taken up to move to lay the motion to reconsider upon the table.

Mr. GORMAN. I trust the Senator from Massachusetts will withdraw that motion and let us proceed with the consideration of the appropriation bill. That would displace the naval appropriation bill.

Mr. HOAR. I understand it.

Mr. GORMAN. The appropriation bill has not yet been considered, and I can not give way to that or any other business.

Mr. HOAR. I wish to ask the Senator from Maryland if it is his purpose to hang up the lottery bill on the formal amendments.

Mr. GORMAN. It is my purpose to try and pass the naval appropriation bill, and I must decline to give way for any motion whatever.

Mr. HOAR. I ask the Senator whether he will arrange for a time for a vote on the lottery bill.

Mr. GORMAN. I have no objection to the Senator calling it up, but I can not yield until after the appropriation bill is concluded. I must decline every proposition. The Senate is perfectly well aware that the great questions involved in the naval appropriation bill have yet to be considered, and with the conference reports on the other appropriation bills coming in it will be utterly impossible to get the naval appropriation bill through unless its consideration is concluded by the Senate at a very early hour. I appeal to the Senator from Massachusetts that there is ample time between now and the next twenty-two hours for the motion he wants to enter or for any other bill that may be considered.

Mr. HOAR. I am not asking any consent from the Senator from Maryland. I am making a motion in my own right. But as the Senator has spoken to it, perhaps I may be permitted to say a word.

This is an important measure. It passed the Senate unanimously after a great deal of consideration. It has passed the other House. It is what is known as the antislavery bill, to prevent the agents of the lottery companies getting into a boat off the shore of our country and flooding us with lottery tickets. The other House adopted several merely verbal amendments, which do not change the substance or meaning of the bill one particle, and the Senate concurred in those amendments. The Senator from Maryland entered a motion to reconsider that concurrence.

Mr. GORMAN. No; I did not.

Mr. PASCO. It was the Senator from Ohio [Mr. BRICE].

Mr. HOAR. It was the Senator from Ohio, but I suppose the Senator from Maryland understands it very well. Now I do not think that the appropriation bill should be used by that Senator or any other to defeat a measure of that kind which has passed both Houses, where there is only a mere technicality in the way. I propose, therefore, to move that the Senate proceed to consider that bill, and then to move to lay the motion to reconsider on the table. If my honorable friend from Maryland will agree that that motion may be taken up, as far as he is concerned, after the appropriation bill is over, I shall not interfere. Otherwise I shall insist on my motion.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I object to any such agreement being made.

Mr. HOAR. Very well, then; I move to proceed to the consideration of the motion to reconsider the vote by which the amendments of the House were concurred in. If the motion is agreed to I shall then move to lay the motion to reconsider on the table.

Mr. GORMAN. If the Senator persists I shall ask for yeas and nays, and the Senate may decide whether the appropriation bill shall be displaced or not.

Mr. PASCO. It will take but a few minutes.

Mr. GEORGE. We could have passed it in the last few minutes while Senators have been quarreling about it.

Mr. GORDON. May I ask, in order to guide my vote, whether the Senator from Massachusetts intends to make a motion to lay the motion to reconsider on the table?

Mr. HOAR. I do. It will take no time.

Mr. GORDON. Then I appeal to the Senator from Maryland to let that vote be taken.

Mr. HOAR. I will withdraw the motion if there can be an agreement to take it up after the appropriation bill is disposed of.

Mr. GORMAN. I object to debate. Let the motion be put.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. GORMAN. Let us have the yeas and nays. It displaces the appropriation bill. That is the result of an affirmative vote.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. MANDERSON. Before the roll is called I desire to say that this colloquy in the center of the Chamber was conducted in the midst of so much confusion that, seated here and trying to pay attention, I am unable to ascertain what the question is. I hope it will be stated so that it may be understood.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Massachusetts to take up the motion to reconsider the vote whereby the Senate concurred in the amendments of the House to Senate bill 1620.

Mr. HOAR. I shall immediately move to lay the motion to reconsider on the table if it is taken up.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will call the roll on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Massachusetts.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. COKE when his name was called. I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH].

Mr. GORDON when his name was called. I am paired with the Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON].

Mr. HILL when his name was called. I am paired with the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LOTTEN].

Mr. MITCHELL of Wisconsin when his name was called. I am paired with the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CAREY].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I am paired with the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. VILAS], or I should vote "yea."

Mr. BATE (after having voted in the affirmative). I am paired with the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. ALLEN]. I learn that he has not voted, and I withdraw my vote.

Mr. WHITE. I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SMITH], but I will transfer that pair to the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH] whom I do not see in the Chamber, and I will vote "nay."

Mr. GIBSON (after having voted in the negative). I voted, not observing that the junior Senator from Michigan [Mr. BURROWS], with whom I paired, is absent. I withdraw my vote.

The result was announced—yeas 17, nays 28; as follows:

YEAS—17.
Call,	Hansbrough,	Pasco,	Pugh.
Caudwell,	Hawley,	Perkins,	Sherman.

Mr. HOAR. I desire to give notice that I shall renew the motion when the naval appropriation bill is disposed of, or before, if I can get the opportunity.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bill:

A bill (S. 2342) granting a pension to Maj. Gen. John A. McClelland;

A bill (S. 2385) for the relief of Fred Korman; and

A bill (S. 2463) to grant a township of land to the State of Mississippi for the use of the Institute and College for Girls.

The message also announced that the House insisted upon its amendment to the bill (S. 1201) to provide for reimbursement of claims and claims for property lost or destroyed in the naval service of the United States, disagreed to by the Senate, agreed to the conference asked for by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and had appointed Mr. BUNN, Mr. CAMPBELL, and Mr. LOUD managers at the conference on the part of the House.

The message further announced that the House returned to the Senate, in compliance with its request, a duplicate engrossed copy of the bill (H. R. 1310) for the relief of John H. Willis.

NAVAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8665) making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes.

Mr. DANIEL. I desire to offer an amendment to come in on page 50, after line 13. It is an amendment reported by the Committee on Naval Affairs. I call the attention of the Senator from Maryland to it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 50, after line 13, insert:

That the Secretary of the Navy is hereby authorized and directed to audit and adjust the claim of the Richmond Locomotive and Machine Works, of Richmond, Va., against the Government of the United States for damages and losses sustained by the said Richmond Locomotive and Machine Works in the execution of the contract to construct and deliver thereunto required by the United States in the construction of the hull of said battleship Texas, and to report to Congress at the next session what amount may be due to said Richmond Locomotive and Machine Works.

Mr. GORMAN. There is no objection to the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment reported by the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. PLATT. Let the amendment be stated.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated. The SECRETARY. On page 45, line 23, before the word "seagoing," it is proposed to strike out "three" and insert "two;" so as to read:

That for the purpose of further increasing the naval establishment of the

"Let that poor devil alone." We have done it before. Are we going to sneak out and run away from all these opportunities of gallant and chivalrous things, and for the defense of high purposes, because of the question of economy?

I do not wish to sneer at economy. I do not want a dollar wasted nor a dollar stolen; but I find if I know anything of the American people (and I have been for forty-five years and more making speeches to them), there is nothing to which they respond with more sincerity and heartiness than they do to appeals like the one I have just been making.

I never knew an American citizen—perhaps I did not see all of them—come to this city and pass through these noble streets, look out upon these fine prospects, and look through this and the other very noble buildings, without plainly in his or her face showing their pride in their country. Did anyone of them ever go through here and say to you: "Oh, this is so good, so good. Do you not think it is very magnificent?" They would not care if you put $10,000,000 more, it would not waste it. That is what our people are. We make a little mistake. The Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY] says that there is danger of a reaction. I do not think there is. So long as our plans are well laid by skillful engineers and experienced officers and approved by wise officers in the Cabinet, I have no fear of a reaction. But reactions come in all sorts of unexpected ways in political affairs, and reactions or no reaction all have convictions and I have certain convictions as to what we ought to do in this regard. We ought to have not a Navy large enough to engage in aggressive work, but abundant for manly and safe defense. We ought to have a Navy considerably larger than we have now. Of that proposition I have no doubt whatever.

I picked up the report of the Secretary of the Navy just now, and by accident turned to page 25. England has 49 battle ships, and 10 building. France has 18 battle ships and 12 building. Germany has 15 and 1 building. Poor Greece has 3 battle ships. Italy has 9, and 9 building. Russia has 8, and 9 building. Turkey, the unspeakable Turk, has 7 good battle ships.

Now, is it unreasonable to say that we ought to have six or eight or ten at least? We have a good Navy, somebody says. That is about correct. For the size of it, and the number of it, and the weight of it, it is about as good as any nation has. But you must realize that that it is very largely composed of lighter classes of vessels that go at a very considerable speed about the world, and that endanger an enemy's commerce or act as picket posts to warn us of the coming of a heavy squadron.

They form the light cavalry, the Uhlans out in front of the sea, and come in warning us that there is a great squadron coming up from Bermuda or from Kingston or somewhere else upon our coast. Then the vessels come up and these smaller vessels can not join battle in regular form with them. Then come necessity for a heavier, if you choose a clumsier, class of vessels that are not expected to sail at the rate of 20 knots an hour, but to make 12, 14, 15, or 16 knots—well-armed vessels, with the most powerful guns known—and they are, to use the expression of a soldier on shore, to draw up elbow to elbow and give battle. Unless you have something of that kind you may as well admit that you have no Navy in certain emergencies. A pretty one in time of peace, an excellent cavalry outpost, but nobody could conduct a great battle with it.

I shall not detain the Senate longer.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 8518) making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes.

The message further announced that the House had passed the following bill and joint resolution:

A bill (S. 707) for the relief of Orin R. McDaniel; and

A joint resolution (S. R. 19) authorizing the Secretary of War to correct the military record of Capt. Edward Wheeler, Fifty-sixth New York Volunteers.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bill and joint resolution; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

A bill (H. R. 6841) granting a pension to Mrs. Mary E. Wyse, widow of Lieut. Col. F. O. Wyse; and

A joint resolution (H. Res. 286) to extend time in which members of the Fifty-third Congress may signed documents.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

The message further announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the enrolled bill (S. 2463) to grant a township of land to the State of Mississippi, for the use of the Institute and college for girls; and it was thereupon signed by the Vice-President.

NAVAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the bill (H. R. 8665) making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes, the pending question being on the amendment of the Committee on Appropriations, on page 45, line 23, before the word "seagoing," to strike out "three," and insert "two," so as to read:

That for the purpose of further increasing the naval establishment of the United States the President is hereby authorized to have constructed by contract two seagoing, first-line battleships designed to carry the heaviest guns and most powerful ordnance then a displacement of about 10,000 tons.

Mr. GORMAN (at 10 o'clock p. m.). The yeas and nays have been ordered on the pending amendment of the Committee on Appropriations.

The VICE-PRESIDENT, The Secretary will call the roll.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CAFFEY (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Montana [Mr. POWER].

Mr. COKE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Oregon [Mr. DOLPH]. If he were here I should vote "yea."

Mr. DAVIS (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. TURPIE]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. LIXON (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE] upon this question. I understand that he would vote "nay," and therefore I take the liberty of voting. I vote "nay."

Mr. GORDON (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Iowa [Mr. WILSON], but I am informed by his colleague that I am at liberty to vote. I vote "nay."

Mr. HALE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. RANSOM].

Mr. HIGGINS (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the senior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. McPHERSON] to the Senator from Nevada [Mr. JONES] and vote "nay."

Mr. HILL (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE]. If he were present I should vote "nay."

Mr. PASCO (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. PRITCHARD]. If he were present I should vote "yea."

Mr. HILL (when the name of Mr. VOORHEES was called). I beg to announce that the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES] is paired on this question with the Senator from Ohio [Mr. BRICE].

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. LIXON (after having voted in the negative). I will withdraw my vote and announce my pair with the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. GEORGE].

Mr. GALLINGER. I inquire whether the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] has voted.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. He has not voted.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am paired with that Senator and will withhold my vote.

Mr. BRICE. I inquire if my pair has been announced with the Senator from Indiana [Mr. VOORHEES]?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It has been announced.

Mr. BRICE. If the Senator from Indiana were present I should vote "yea" and he would vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 33, nays 29; as follows:

YEAS—33.

So the amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 46, line 3, after the word "each," to strike out:

And nine torpedo boats of from 100 to 300 tons each, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Navy, at a cost not to exceed an average of $100,000; and the Secretary of the Navy is further directed to construct three additional torpedo boats of from 100 to 300 tons each, at a cost not to exceed an average of $170,000, one of which shall be constructed at the Brooklyn Navy-Yard, Brooklyn, N. Y., one at the Norfolk Navy-Yard, Norfolk, Va., and one at the Mare Island Navy-Yard, Mare Island, Cal.

And insert:

And six light-draft composite gunboats of about 1,000 tons displacement, to be fixed by the Secretary of the Navy, and no one of which shall cost more than $250,000, or in all for said six gunboats $1,350,000, exclusive of armament, and more than two of said gunboats shall be built in one yard, or by one contracting party, and in each case the contract shall be awarded by the Secretary of the Navy to the lowest best responsible bidder; and three torpedo boats at a cost not exceeding $150,000 each, subject to the provisions hereinafter made, one seagoing battle ship, and one of said torpedo boats shall be built on or near the coast of the Pacific Ocean, and in the waters connecting therewith, and one torpedo boat on the Mississippi River, and one torpedo boat on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

Mr. PERKINS. I desire to offer an amendment to the amendment proposed by the committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to amend the amendment of the committee on page 46, line 23, after the word "bidder," by inserting:

And one torpedo boat shall be built at the Mare Island Navy-Yard, Cal., at a cost not to exceed $100,000.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the amendment to the amendment.

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. President, I desire to explain the amendment.

Mr. FRYE. You can not explain under the agreement.

Mr. GORMAN. Under the agreement there was to be no debate.

Mr. PERKINS. I ask unanimous consent to explain the amendment.

Mr. BUTLER. I object, Mr. President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

Mr. PERKINS. I am sure that the Senator from South Carolina will not object when I ask for unanimous consent to say half a dozen words.

Mr. BUTLER. The reason I object is that I think the Senator will get his amendment through if he does not talk, and if he does that he will lose it. [Laughter.]

Mr. PERKINS. I do not desire to make a speech.

Mr. BUTLER. I will draw the objection.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

Mr. HARRIS. If we allow the Senator from California to debate this amendment there is no reason why we shall not allow every other Senator to debate any other amendment.

Mr. HOAR. I call the Senator from Tennessee to order, Mr. President.

Mr. HARRIS. I object.

Mr. GORMAN. I move to lay the amendment on the table.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Maryland to lay the amendment of the Senator from California on the table.

Mr. PERKINS. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were not ordered.

The amendment was rejected.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question recurs on the amendment of the committee.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HUNTON. I desire to call the attention of the Senator from Maryland, in charge of the bill, to what seems to me to be a contradiction in terms in the amendment in line 18, which reads "and not more than two of said gunboats shall be built in one yard, or by one contracting party;" and then it proceeds to say that "in each case the contract shall be awarded by the Secretary of the Navy to the lowest best responsible bidder." It may be that the best responsible bidder may have made two or more bids.

Mr. GORMAN. That will be attended to when the bill gets into conference. I think there will be no conflict in relation to it.

The next amendment reported by the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 47, line 14, after the word "manufacture," to strike out:

In making proposals for contracts for building the vessels authorized by this act it shall be required that one of such battle ships and three of such torpedo boats shall be built on or near the coast of the Pacific Ocean or in the waters connecting therewith, and two torpedo boats shall be built on the Mississippi River. Provided, That if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the President of the United States, from the biddings for such contracts, when the same are opened and examined by him, that the said vessels can not be constructed at a fair cost on or near the coast of the Pacific Ocean, and that the torpedo boats aforesaid authorized can not be constructed at a fair cost on the Mississippi River, he shall authorize the construction of said vessels, or any of them, elsewhere in the United States; and if the Secretary of the Navy shall be unable to contract at reasonable prices for the construction of any of said vessels, then he may procure the vessels in such navy-yards as he may designate. And provided further,

And insert:

If it shall appear to the satisfaction of the President of the United States, from the biddings for the contracts for either of said torpedo boats and one of the foregoing battle ships to be built on the Pacific coast, when the same shall be opened and examined by him, that the said torpedo boats or battle ship can not be constructed at a fair cost at the places fixed in the proposals and biddings, he may authorize the construction of said torpedo boats, or any of them, elsewhere in the United States, subject to the limitations as to cost hereinbefore provided; and any of the ships, gunboats, and torpedo boats provided for in this act may be constructed of steel or other metal, or of alloy, except where it is otherwise provided in this act, and

Mr. HALE. I offer an amendment to the amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment to the amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to amend the amendment of the committee in line 13, on page 48, after the words "torpedo boats," by inserting:

Or the battle ship, the biddings for which provide for building upon the Pacific Coast.

Mr. HALE. That is all right. It is only to conform to the rest of the bill.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment was amended was agreed to.

The next amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 49, line 9, before the word "thousand," to strike out "five million two hundred and eighty-seven" and insert "four million eight hundred and thirty-seven;" and in line 10, after the word "available," to strike out:

Provided, That no higher price shall be paid for armor and gun steel than is paid by the contracting firm for like armor and gun steel furnished private parties or other governments.

So as to make the clause read:

Armor and armament: Toward the armament and armor of domestic manufacture for the vessels authorized by the act of August 3, 1886; of the vessels authorized by the act approved March 2, 1889; of those authorized by the act of June 30, 1890, of the one authorized by the act of March 2, 1891, of those authorized by the act of July 19, 1892; and of the vessels authorized by the act of March 3, 1893; and of the three torpedo boats, each of which one of the vessels authorized under said act $4,837,670, of which sum $2,000,000 is to be made immediately available.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CAMERON. I offer an amendment to come in after line 13, on page 50.

Mr. FRYE. Are the committee amendments completed?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The committee amendments are completed. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Pennsylvania will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 50, after line 13, it is proposed to insert:

The Secretary of the Navy is hereby authorized and required to remit the time penalties on the Yorktown, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Newark, and such other vessels appropriated for this purpose.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. TELLER. I move to insert, on page 6, after the word "dollars," in line 20, the amendment which I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 6, after line 20, it is proposed to insert:

To enable the Secretary of the Navy to pay, should he consider such payment desirable, for the exclusive rights to and for ordnance appliances now in use on naval vessels, and protected and covered by patent No. 533,171, and patent being embraced in a contract dated January 28, 1893, and signed by the Secretary of the Navy and the patentee, as authorized in the "act making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893, and for other purposes," $25,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to be immediately available.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. PASCO. I report an amendment which has been referred to the Committee on Claims, and reported favorably by that committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. After line 13, on page 50, it is proposed to insert:

To pay to the parties who may be found entitled to receive the same any balance that may be due and unpaid on account of the purchase money of the California, Idaho, and Benard, authorized by the United States from the New York and New Orleans Steamship Company, by authority of an act of Congress approved July 18, 1861, $41,000.00.

Mr. GORMAN. Now I trust the bill will be reported to the Senate.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I submit at this time a conference report on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses upon the bill making appropriations for the diplomatic and consular service for the next fiscal year.

The REPORT is pro tempore. The report will be read.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. Under protest?

Mr. MANDERSON. Under duress?

Mr. BRICE. Under duress.

Mr. MANDERSON. There is precedent for the defeat of deficiency appropriation bills, and I think this is an instance where it would be very safe to follow the precedent. I believe that so much has been given away in conference of righteous, just, and honest amendments placed upon the bill by the Senate that the suggestion of the Senator from Ohio, one of the conferees, is an excellent one, and that this deficiency bill had better fail, even at the risk of an extra session of Congress, although I have no idea that that disastrous result would obtain.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. Not at all.

Mr. WHITE. I simply desire to say that the mere fact that some of us have lost the claims that we thought should have been allowed (and I feel extra poor myself since the report has been read) should not induce us to defeat a bill which may bring solace to some one else. Therefore I shall vote to adopt the report.

Mr. HIGGINS. I do not know but that this is a shrewd movement upon the part of some of the astute Senators upon the other side to put this side in the Calvinistic dilemma; and that if we defeat this appropriation bill under Democratic auspices the Republicans will have to take up the load in the next Congress.

Mr. STEWART. Has it passed the jurisdiction of the Senate, so that we can not disagree to the report and ask for a further conference?

Mr. MANDERSON. No; we can still further insist.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Of course the Senate can agree or disagree; and when it has disagreed the Senate will decide whether it will ask for a further conference or not.

Mr. STEWART. I do not think there is any necessity to kill the bill. There is plenty of time to have the amendments submitted to the House and the Senate be treated with due consideration in form if we gain nothing in fact. I think it is an exceedingly bad practice to bring in the bill in the first instance, leaving one side without a reason many of whom Senators believe meritorious. I think we ought to disagree to the report and ask for a further conference. I move that the Senate disagree to the report and ask for a further conference with the House on the disagreeing votes.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The motion of the Senator from Nevada is not necessary, because the question is, Will the Senate concur in the report? If the Senate refuses to concur then motion for further insistence and further conference will be in order.

Mr. STEWART. Is not my motion in order?

Mr. HAWLEY and others. No.

Mr. MANDERSON. It is already before the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The motion is not in order. The question is, Will the Senate concur in the report of the committee of conferees?

Mr. STEWART. On that I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GALLINGER (when his name was called). I am paired with the junior Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS].

Mr. GORDON (when his name was called). I learn that I can vote without any inconsistency, and I vote "yea."

Mr. HIGGINS (when his name was called). I transfer my pair with the senior Senator from New Jersey [Mr. McPHERSON] to the Senator from Nevada [Mr. JONES] and vote "nay."

Mr. PALMER (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. HANSBROUGH].

Mr. CULLOM and others (to Mr. PALMER). Vote.

Mr. PALMER. I vote "yea."

Mr. WHITE (when his name was called). I am paired with the Senator from Idaho [Mr. SHOUPE]. I will transfer my pair to the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH] and vote "yea."

The roll call was concluded.

Mr. GALLINGER. I will transfer my pair with the Senator from Texas [Mr. MILLS] to the Senator from Montana [Mr. MANTLE] and vote "yea."

The result was announced—yeas 37, nays 14; as follows:

SUPPRESSION OF LOTTERY TRAFFIC.

Mr. HOAR. I move to take up the motion for the reconsideration of Senate bill 1620.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The title of the bill will be stated.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 1620) for the suppression of lottery traffic through national and interstate commerce and the postal service subject to the jurisdiction and laws of the United States.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Massachusetts moves to reconsider the vote by which the Senate agreed to the House amendment to the bill the title of which has been stated. The question is on that motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. HOAR. I now move to lay the motion to reconsider on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

ACCOUNTS BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND ARKANSAS.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 2892) to approve a compromise and settlement between the United States and the State of Arkansas.

Mr. PALMER. Mr. President, it occurs to me that there has been a unanimous-consent agreement that pension bills should be considered, and I think we are proceeding under that agreement.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I ask unanimous consent to consider the bill I have indicated.

Mr. HIGGINS. How much money does it carry?

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. It proposes that the State of Arkansas shall pay to the Government $165,000.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The amendment heretofore proposed by the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEPPER] will be stated.

The SECRETARY. At the end of the bill it is proposed to insert

Nothing in this settlement and agreement is intended to or shall in any connection be used to prejudice the right of the State of Arkansas to assert and establish its title to any lands which were granted or confirmed to her by the said acts approved September 28, 1850, March 2, 1855, March 3, 1857, in so far as the same is disputed by those claiming under any subsequent grant made or claimed to have been made, the scope and purposes of this settlement being hereby declared to be the adjustment of all disputes between the United States and the State of Arkansas, and to leave undisturbed incidental controversies between said State and other parties in which the United States is not beneficially interested.

Mr. CHANDLER. Mr. President, I have no desire to delay action upon this bill, but I can not give it my support. I know nothing of the question raised between the Senators from Arkansas and the Senator from Kansas about land settlements, but I find that the United States by this bill is going to release to the State of Arkansas a very large sum of money.

The State owes to the United States on account of the Smithsonian fund $500,000, the interest on which up to October 26, 1861, thirty-four years ago, was $425,000.

The State of Arkansas also owes to the United States $252,000, money due to the Chickasaw Indians. The interest on those bonds up to January 1, 1893, is $317,000. The total amount of those bonds and interest which is to be released to the State of Arkansas according to the statement I hold in my hand, is $1,611,893.61.

It will be noticed that the interest on the $500,000 of Smithsonian bonds is only reckoned up to 1861. There is said to be an opinion of the Attorney-General of the United States that no interest is due upon those bonds since 1861, thirty-four years. By what process the Attorney-General reached the conclusion that no interest was due upon those bonds I do not know.

No one is pressing Arkansas for this release. There is no disposition to crowd the State of Arkansas to make her pay this money; and there is therefore no haste about this settlement. The State of Arkansas is to pay for this release $160,000 in money, and beside that, it is to surrender to the United States some swamp lands, the complications of which I do not understand; but I do not believe, when there is no pressure being brought to bear upon the State of Arkansas in connection with this loan, that we ought at this hour of the session to take up so important a bill as this and pass it. I am therefore against its passage.

Mr. HIGGINS. Is the consideration of the bill still open to objection?

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. No.

Mr. BERRY. The bill has already been taken up.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question has been presented to the Senate, and by unanimous consent the bill has been taken up for consideration, the pending question being on the amendment proposed by the Senator from Kansas [Mr. PEPPER].

Mr. BERRY. I hope the amendment will be voted down.

Mr. STEWART. I do not like so much discrimination in treating different sections of the country in relation to the claims which they present. I am tired of it. When the claims of California, Oregon, and Nevada, which are more meritorious than those which have been allowed to Texas and Missouri, and the nonpayment of which has embarrassed my State so much, a claim for money expended in a time when they were called upon by the officers of the Government to aid in the suppression of the rebellion, we are told that those claims can not have the dignity of being allowed to go before the House of Representatives for consideration, and that, too, after all the efforts we have made for the same time, under the same bill, other States secure large amounts of money; Texas, for example, getting a million dollars for its Indian war claims subsequently to the rebellion. I think it pretty hard that these claims should be continually granted to other States and such discrimination made against the Pacific Coast. In view of that I do not think that this case, which does not come before us with the report of a committee—

Mr. BERRY. Oh, yes, it does.

Mr. STEWART. What committee of the Senate has reported it?

Mr. BERRY. The Committee on Public Lands has unanimously reported it.

Mr. STEWART. The Committee on Public Lands of the House did not report it.

Mr. BERRY. I beg the Senator's pardon; they did report it.

Mr. STEWART. Not unanimously.

Mr. BERRY. The Committee on Public Lands of the House reported in its favor.

Mr. STEWART. But there is a minority report. I am not in the habit of obstructing legislation, but I can not be ignorant.

Mr. CULLOM. I do not think we can settle this bill to-night.

Mr. BERRY. I hope the Senator from Nevada will allow us to take a vote.

Mr. STEWART. There are times when I feel it my duty to call attention to the discrimination and the injustice with which my section has been treated after having labored so long.

Mr. BERRY. Does the Senator think I am in anywise responsible for the report of the committee of conference to which he has referred?

Mr. STEWART. No, you are not responsible, but the Congress of the United States is responsible; somebody is responsible for turning a deaf ear to a whole section of the country, and it is time that that section should take care of itself.

We have sat here and voted money to other sections without interfering with their requests. The Senators from the Pacific Coast have been most liberal to those of other sections, and have been most uncomplaining; and it is an outrage that that section should be treated in the way it has been by this Congress and by preceding Congresses. At every session claims come in from other States which receive favorable consideration.

In this case the minority report of the Committee on Public Lands of the House of Representatives, which to me seems very important and which ought to challenge the attention of the Senate, is signed by six members of the committee, and I think the Senate had better understand the objections to this bill before it is passed. I find in the minority report the following:

We, the undersigned, members of the Committee on Public Lands, feel constrained to dissent from the report of the majority of the committee on the bill H. R. 8911. We regret to do this, because we have not had an opportunity for the time to consider the matter such an examination as its importance demands. The legislation involved in the settlement of the claims of the Indians and the acquisition of the lands involved in the transactions between the State and General Government from the time of the admission of the State into the Union. It is a subject of great importance and one which should be considered with due care by the Congress. Congress only authorized the settlement of the claims, which should have no binding effect until approved by Congress.

This resolution was put in the act in order that the proper committee and Congress might give the transaction a suitable and full examination. We have now to report on this, as the matter was first heard in the committee on the 10th of March, 1894, with only three days remaining of the session. It is a subject of great importance and one which should be considered with due care by the Congress. Congress only authorized the settlement of the claims, which should have no binding effect until approved by Congress.

The Government has put in the act in order that the proper committee and Congress might give the transaction a suitable and full examination. acre, and a large part was given to settlers as homesteads for nothing. The contract assumes that the State is now entitled to select other public lands in lieu thereof and that the said lands should be secured to the State by stopping the interest on the bonds and computing that the value of the lands have increased fourfold the rights of the Government have been cut off both ways.

The report shows that 7,532,565 1/2 acres of swamp land have all been patented to the State, amounting to nearly 12,000 square miles. The enormous quantity of land thus patented as swamp lands would indicate that Arkansas has not been unkindly dealt with in the certification of such lands being available for the purpose of the time given to consider the matter it is impossible for us to examine the question.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Will the Senator yield to me?

Mr. STEWART. I will.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I want to ask the Senator if his purpose is to prevent action upon the bill. I do not want to put the bill in the way of other Senators. This is the fifth time I have asked for its consideration, and I should be glad to have a vote upon it; but I do not want to be unkind to other Senators, and I will not be in the way of others, anxious as I am to have the bill passed, and earnest as I am to have it done. If it is the purpose of the Senator to prevent the passage of the bill I will ask leave to withdraw the request for its consideration; but I hope the Senator will not insist upon his objection, but will allow us to have a vote.

Mr. STEWART. I do not think this bill ought to pass without more consideration. I think it ought to have been brought here earlier in the session so that we might have had an opportunity to examine and discuss it.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. Then let us have a vote. If other Senators are ready to vote let us vote on the bill, and if it is voted down that will be the end of it.

Mr. BERRY. All we ask is a vote.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I do not wish to stand in the way of other Senators.

Mr. STEWART. I think Senators would like to know something about the bill before they vote upon it. I think a bill of this kind ought to be maturely considered.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I withdraw the request for unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill, but I want to say it is an outrage of the gravest kind against the sovereign State of Arkansas in the interest of a corporation, and that it is an inquiry.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The request for the consideration of the bill is withdrawn.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed a bill (H. R. 8983) to admit antioxyne free of duty; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

OUTER BAR OF BRUNSWICK, GA.

Mr. GORDON. Mr. President, I wish to appeal to the Senate to allow a bill to pass which is of great moment to the State of Georgia and to commerce generally. It is Order of Business 1052.

I wish to say, as I said yesterday, that I have not troubled the Senate, and I have yielded time and time again, when I had the right to the floor, in order to facilitate the public business. This is a very important bill. It is simply for the widening of the bar at Brunswick on the same basis precisely agreed to by the Senate at its last session, without changing one particle the basis of remuneration, and without advancing one dollar by the Government for the work.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The title of the bill will be stated.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 2721) to amend the river and harbor act of August 7, 1894, providing for improving the outer bar of Brunswick, Ga.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Georgia asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill. Is there objection?

Mr. PETTIGREW. Let the bill be read for information.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The bill will be read.

The SECRETARY read the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. STEWART. Is it a House bill or a Senate bill?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A Senate bill.

Mr. STEWART. I thought the understanding was that we should not consider Senate bills.

Mr. GORDON. I should not have consented to that, because there was an understanding between the Senate and myself four days ago that this bill should be considered.

Mr. STEWART. I am not going to object. I wanted to know what the bill was.

Mr. GORDON. It is simply for widening the outer bar of Brunswick, Ga.

Mr. FAULKNER. This bill was included in the agreement.

Mr. GORDON. I called attention to it at the time the agreement was made, and I am satisfied there is no objection to the bill.

Mr. STEWART. I do not make any objection.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Commerce with amendments.

The first amendment was, in section 1, on page 2, line 2, before the word "act," to strike out "this" and insert "said;" after the word "act," to insert "of 1894," and in line 5, before the word "reaches," to strike out "depths" and insert "channel;" so as to read:

"That an act entitled 'An act making appropriations for the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors, and for other purposes,' received by the President August 7, 1894, and which became a law without his signature, be amended so that the item of said act providing for improving the outer bar of Brunswick Ga. by adding after the words 'outer bar,' in the third line of said item, on the fifth page of said act, the words: 'For each additional width of 100 feet at the least as great depth as the least depth existing in the channel 100 feet wide, across said bar at the date of the passage of said act of 1894, procured and certified as hereinafter provided, additional sums of $3000 shall be paid, until the total width of such channel reaches 500 feet.'

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, in section 1, on page 3, line 5, before the word "act," to strike out "this" and insert "said;" and in the same line, after the word "act," to insert "of 1894;" so as to read:

"And that said item be further amended by striking out the words 'and not over 50 feet' in the twenty-fifth line of said item, and by adding after the word 'bar,' in the twenty-sixth line of said item, the words 'and removing material therefrom,' so that the item as amended shall read as follows: 'For each additional width of 100 feet at the least as great depth as the least depth existing in the channel 100 feet wide, across said bar at the date of the passage of said act of 1894, procured and certified as hereinafter provided, additional sums of $3000 shall be paid, until the total width of such channel reaches 500 feet.'

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CASH ENTRIES OF OFFERED LANDS.

Mr. MARTIN. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 4344) to confirm cash entries of offered lands.

Mr. ALDRICH. I object to the consideration of that bill, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Objection is made.

Mr. COCKRELL. I move that the Senate take a recess until 9.30 o'clock.

Mr. CULLOM. I hope the Senator will allow me to ask the Senate to consider and pass a small pension bill for an old Indian woman.

Mr. STEWART. The understanding was that we should pass pension bills.

Mr. CULLOM. The bill is for the benefit of an old Indian woman who was captured when she was a child.

Mr. COCKRELL. Is it a House bill?

Mr. CULLOM. Yes.

Mr. MANDERSON. Let me suggest that the motion to take a recess is in violation of the unanimous-consent agreement.

Mr. COCKRELL. Senators have stated to me that it was not.

Mr. MANDERSON. The unanimous-consent agreement was that after the Indian appropriation bill was disposed of unobjectioned House bills should be taken up on the call of Senators, and House bills where Senate bills of the same character had been passed by the Senate. That was the distinct understanding, and I appealed to Senators to allow the unanimous-consent agreement to be carried out.

Mr. COCKRELL. It will be impossible, then, for the Senate to take a recess.

Mr. ALDRICH. We should have to stay in session all night under that construction of the agreement.

Mr. FAULKNER. I will say to the Senator from Nebraska that I do not think there was such an agreement as he has indicated.

Mr. MANDERSON. Let the agreement be read and then we shall see what has been agreed to.

Mr. FAULKNER. I am satisfied there is no such agreement as that.

Mr. MANDERSON. Let it be read and that will be better than the Senator's remembrance.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The agreement will be read. The Secretary read as follows:

The PRESIDENT OFFICIAL. The Senator from Maryland asks the unanimous consent of the Senate that the vote upon the amendments to the naval appropriation bill and on the bill be taken not later than 10 o'clock, but that if the amendments be retained before that time the vote shall proceed, and that all House bills shall be considered.

Mr. GORMAN. Unobjectioned House bills.

The PRESIDENT OFFICIAL. Unobjectioned House bills shall be considered. Mr. GORMAN. And all Senate bills that have come from the other House.

Mr. DANIEL. I merely wish to say this: Suppose Senators should desire to bring up a new bill that has not passed either House. I understand that such an agreement would cut him off. It seems to me that it would be better to leave it to the discretion of the Senate, without ruling out any bill.

Mr. GORMAN. Let me appeal to my friend from Virginia to permit us to make a recess. I have been here as the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations and others, practically for the last two days.

Mr. HARRIS. I should like to suggest to the Senator from Maryland, or rather to ask, why we should extend the time to 10 o'clock. Why not let us have a recess until 9 o'clock, with the understanding that it will be disposed of at that time?

Mr. GORMAN. My request is not later than 10. If we can reach a vote at 9 or half past 9 or a quarter of 10 it will be taken.

Mr. DANIEL. I do not object to that, but I object to cutting Senators off from having bills considered.

Mr. HARRIS. Then let us take a recess until a quarter after 6 o'clock, and Mr. GORMAN. Let us have an agreement to take the vote upon the bill at the earliest hour that Senators can consent to it.

Mr. DANIEL. Not earlier than half past 9.

Mr. GORMAN. I will say to the Senator from Virginia that if he would ask unanimous consent to have his bill considered he would no doubt secure it, and that is the only way he can get his bill through.

Mr. DANIEL. I merely did not wish to agree to anything which might stop me from asking unanimous consent.

Mr. GORMAN. That would not prevent the Senate from proceeding by unanimous consent. Anything can be done by unanimous consent.

Mr. DANIEL. I make no further objection.

Mr. GORMAN. I hope that will be accepted.

Mr. ALDRICH. Would the agreement prevent the calling up of the question of the appointment of the delegates to the international monetary conference?

Mr. GORMAN. I understand it would not preclude any business that is confined to the Senate itself. I only referred to bills.

Mr. HAWLEY. Unobjectioned bills.

Mr. GORMAN. Unobjectioned bills.

Mr. WOLCOTT. This is not an unobjectioned bill.

Mr. GORMAN. But it is a matter pertaining to the Senate itself as the matter of selecting a committee.

Mr. HOWE. I want to be quite sure that I believe the Senator from Maryland stated very clearly as I understand it myself that his word "unobjectioned" applies to House bills but is not included in that part of the stipulation which relates to Senate bills that have been acted on by the other House.

Mr. GORMAN. Any bill of the Senate that has been acted on by the House and is pending here for amendment. That is what I mean.

The PRESIDENT OFFICIAL. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Maryland? The Chair hears none and it is so ordered.

Mr. COCKRELL. There is nothing against a recess.

Mr. MANDERSON. I ask that the first page of the report be read. The Secretary read as follows:

Mr. GORMAN. I now ask unanimous consent that at or before 10 o'clock the debate upon the pending bill, the naval appropriation bill, shall close. It may cease prior to 10 o'clock, but I insist that not later than 10 o'clock the vote shall be taken without further debate upon all the amendments and upon the bill.

Mr. SHELMAN. Why not vote now?

Mr. COCKRELL. That is impossible. We must take a recess for an hour or two.

Mr. LODGE. We can vote now.

Mr. GORMAN. And I ask that after that House bills unobjectioned to and Senate bills that have been acted on by the other House may be considered.

Mr. LODGE. Why can we not vote now on the appropriation bill?

Mr. GORMAN. It is impossible to do it now. I will say to the Senator. I ask the Senate to agree that those unobjectioned bills shall be considered, together with what other business pertaining to the Senate may come in, after the appropriation bill is passed. If it is agreed to I shall ask that a recess may be taken until half past 5 o'clock.

Mr. MANDERSON. Enough has been read. It shows exactly what I stated, that after the naval appropriation bill was finished unobjectioned House bills and Senate bills, like bills having passed the House, should be considered. There was no proposition in the agreement.

Mr. COCKRELL. There is no proposition against a recess.

Mr. MANDERSON. Wait one moment until I finish the sentence. There was no proposition that in the midst of carrying out the unanimous consent agreement there should be a recess.

Mr. DANIEL. There was not.

Mr. COCKRELL. There was no proposition that there should not be a recess.

Mr. DANIEL. Will the Senator from Missouri allow me?

Mr. ALDRICH. The interpretation put upon the unanimous-consent agreement by the Senator from Nebraska would keep the Senate in continuous session until 12 o'clock to-morrow.

Mr. DANIEL and Mr. GALLINGER. There is no harm in that.

Mr. ALDRICH. It would do harm to the clerks and to those who take care of the bills.

Mr. MANDERSON. They have frequently stood the strain before under like circumstances.

Mr. CULLOM. If the Senator from Missouri is going to make his motion I hope he will make it. If he is not, I ask the Senate to take up the bill I have indicated.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair will state that it has no power to enforce the unanimous-consent agreement.

Mr. COCKRELL. I made the motion to take a recess, but some Senators appear to think it is opposed to the agreement. I will state that the bill will not get to the President to be signed. It is time thrown away for nothing. There will not be anything gained by it.

Mr. DANIEL. I hope the Senator will allow us to go on and try.

Mr. CULLOM. I hope the Senate will take up the bill I have indicated.

Mr. ALDRICH. I rise to a question of order. The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Rhode Island will state his question of order.

Mr. ALDRICH. I should like to have a construction put upon the agreement under which we are now proceeding. I understand that the bills are to be considered under the eighth rule. If it is not so understood they certainly should be considered under that rule in order that objection may be interposed at any time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. There is no provision in the consent agreement that the bills are to be considered under Rule VIII. If there had been it would have been announced.

Mr. ALDRICH. Then I ask that all bills hereafter taken up shall be considered under the eighth rule.

Mr. MANDERSON. All right. The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Rhode Island?

Mr. COCKRELL. If we are to transact business it must be in an orderly and methodical way. I do not know but that I shall want to talk more than five minutes. It depends entirely upon what the bill is.

Mr. MANDERSON. The Senator can object to the consideration of any bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Missouri objects to the request of the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH].

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill [H. R. 6516] to amend the title of the District of Columbia Suburban Railway Company.

Mr. ALDRICH. I shall object to any bill of that character.

Mr. DANIEL. That is all agreed upon by everybody.

Mr. ALDRICH. I do not care. The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Rhode Island objects.

Mr. DANIEL. I hope the Senator will reconsider the matter. (CREDENTIALS.)

Mr. POWER. I present the credentials of Hon. Thomas H. Carter, chosen by the legislature of the State of Montana a Senator from that State for the term commencing March 4, 1895. I will state that these are the corrected credentials, and I wish to withdraw those formerly presented.

The credentials were read and ordered to be filed.

ISSUANCE OF BONDS.

Mr. POWER presented a memorial of the legislative assembly of the State of Montana, which was referred to the Committee on Finance, and ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[Telegram.]

HELENA, MONT., March 2, 1895.

[House joint memorial No. 9. Introduced by Mr. Tallant.]

To the honorable the Senate and House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.: We, your memorialists, the four legislative assemblies of the State of Montana, respectfully represent that—

Whereas the President of the United States and other prominent officials of our country have suggested the issuance of a large amount of United States bonds and

Whereas the country is now in a condition of peace and the most productive and recuperative nation on earth; and

Whereas the believing such issue of bonds would be detrimental to the prosperity of the vast majority of the citizens of the country, and would eventually lead especially hard upon the most numerous and poorer class of our people who were residing throughout the land, and could only in any event lead to the advantage of the wealthy capitalists and money powers of this country and Europe. Therefore

Be it resolved by the house of representatives (the senate concurring), That we solemnly and earnestly protest against the Government of the United States issuing such bonds as has been recommended, and be it

Resolved, That we request the Senators and Members of Congress from this State to use their best efforts and all honorable means to prevent the issuance of any and all bonds authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States to issue United States bonds at this time, and under existing circumstances.

W. H. SWEET,
Speaker of the House.
ALEXANDER C. BOTKIN,
President of the Senate.

Senator LEE MANTLE,
Washington, D. C.

DISTRICT SUBURBAN RAILWAY COMPANY.

Mr. GALLINGER. I understand the Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. ALDRICH] is willing to withdraw his objection to the bill. I asked leave to call up a few moments ago.

Mr. ALDRICH. I am willing to withdraw the objection upon the solicitation of a large number of Senators who seem to be interested in the measure.

Mr. GALLINGER. I call up the bill [H. R. 6516] to amend the title of the District of Columbia Suburban Railway Company.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. GALLINGER. I desire to submit a substitute for the bill as it was reported.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The substitute will be read.

The SECRETARY. Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert—

Mr. COCKRELL. Let the whole bill be read, so that we may know what is to be stricken out. I want to understand it. It is a very important measure. I want to have the bill read.

Mr. DANIEL. Will the Senator from Missouri allow me to make a statement?

Mr. COCKRELL. With pleasure. We have plenty of time.

Mr. DANIEL. This is the matter of the suburban road bill which I called up several nights ago, and which was objected to by the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. QUAY]. It has been examined by the Committee on the District of Columbia; it is recommended by the District Commissioners, and there were certain objections to it on the part of Senators which are now withdrawn because of changes in the route of the railroad and the limitations put upon its passage into the city, which obviate all the criticisms and objections heretofore made to it. I hope the Senator from Missouri will not retard its passage.

Mr. COCKRELL. I have not had an opportunity to read it. I generally read such bills before they come up.

Mr. GALLINGER. The Senator of course has no interest in the original House bill, which it is not proposed to pass.

Mr. COCKRELL. I want to know what the Senator proposes to strike out. I may prefer what is to be stricken out to what is proposed to be substituted for it.

Mr. HARRIS (Mr. FAULKNER in the chair). I wish to state to the Senator from Missouri that we have had some controversy here between two or three railroad companies as to the charter that should be granted. Every one of the contending parties has agreed upon a line; it is perfectly satisfactory to the Commissioners of the District, to the District Committee, and to every party in interest, and it is reflected in the substitute which the Senator from New Hampshire asks may be read.

Mr. CHANDLER. I ask the Senator from Tennessee whether there will be any injury to the public interest in passing the bill.

Mr. COCKRELL. That is what we ought to protect.

Mr. HARRIS. The Committee on the District of Columbia, so far as I have known its objects and purposes, and I have been connected with it for eighteen years, has consulted the public interest rather than the interest of any other party or parties.

Mr. CHANDLER. And the Senator from Tennessee makes those remarks applicable to this particular bill?

Mr. HARRIS. The Senator from Tennessee intends to make them absolutely applicable to this subject.

Mr. COCKRELL. I am not objecting to the bill, but I want to understand what is going on.

Mr. GALLINGER. Let the original bill be read.

Mr. HARRIS. If the Senator from Missouri wants all of the original bill read, of course he has that right, and I shall not object.

The Secretary proceeded to read the bill.

Mr. HARRIS. I appeal to the Senator from Missouri to allow the substitute that the District of Columbia Commissioners recommended—that all the parties in interest agree to and that the District Committee has agreed to—be read.

Mr. COCKRELL. The Senator from Tennessee and other Senators know perfectly well that the Senate is not in a condition at this late hour to pass bills indiscriminately. Senators say we can not take a recess. A question was raised which prevented the Senate from taking a recess. Now, I do not know of any better business that the Senate could be engaged in than reading the bill. I want it to go through, but there is plenty of time to read the original bill and to read the substitute, and then it will go through. I think the Senate will employ its time much better in doing that than it would be in doing something else.

Mr. HARRIS. If the Senator from Missouri will allow me to say so, I have sat here for days and nights, and in respect to a great many matters that I have had no opportunity to thoroughly examine for myself I have trusted him and his committee in respect to those matters which pertain to their jurisdiction.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FAULKNER in the chair). The Secretary will proceed with the reading of the bill.

Mr. PALMER. I had supposed that some two hours ago there was an understanding that the pension bills should be considered to-night.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is mistaken as to the unanimous consent that was given.

Mr. PALMER. I ask it now.

Several SENATORS. Regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The regular order is called for and the reading of the bill will proceed.

The Secretary resumed the reading of the bill.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

Mr. GALLINGER. I move that the Senate request a conference with the House of Representatives upon the bill and amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the Presiding Officer was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate, and Mr. FAULKNER, Mr. McMILLAN, and Mr. GALLINGER were appointed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 8665) making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes.

CHARLES DEAL.

Mr. PARSCO. I ask unanimous consent to call up the bill (H. R. 7603) for the relief of Charles Deal.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to pay to Charles Deal, late a deputy collector of customs at Champlain, N. Y., $240.04, for expenses incurred by him in the case of Hugh O'Hara against the said Deal.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

J. M. BILLINGS.

Mr. WHITE. I desire to call up the bill (H. R. 995) for the relief of J. M. Billings.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to pay J. M. Billings, of Santa Clara County, State of California, $550, for money, money orders, and stamps, and other property stolen from the post-office while he was postmaster in the town of Santa Clara, Santa Clara County, State of California, on the night of September 11, 1877.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

POTOMAC RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. DANIEL. Mr. President—

Mr. PLATT. I wish to inquire whether Senate bills that have not been acted on are within the rule.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. They are not within the unanimous-consent agreement.

Mr. DANIEL. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 2673) to provide for the construction of a bridge across the Potomac River. It is a matter which has been much considered. It is recommended by the Secretary of War and much desired by him.

Mr. ALDRICH. Is it a Senate bill?

Mr. DANIEL. Yes, sir; and I ask that it be considered by unanimous consent. I have had no recognition in all the days of recognition, and I have stayed here all night long.

Mr. CHANDLER. I desire to suggest that the Senator had most signal recognition this very evening.

Mr. DANIEL. I apologize for the fact.

Mr. HARRIS. I beg to suggest to the Senator from Virginia that it is a Senate bill, and the attempt is fruitless. I hope he will not insist upon its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Virginia?

Mr. PLATT. The Senator ought to withdraw it.

Mr. DANIEL. It is a very short bill. It would be very gratifying if it could be passed.

Mr. MITCHELL, of Oregon, and others. Consent.

Mr. HAWLEY. I shall be obliged to object to it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is objection to the request of the Senator from Virginia.

EMORY AND CLINCH RIVER BRIDGES, TENNESSEE.

Mr. HARRIS. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 8659) to authorize the construction of bridges across the Emory and the Clinch rivers, in the State of Tennessee.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

KATE EBERLE.

Mr. CULLOM. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 7645) for the relief of Kate Eberle, an Indian woman.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to pay to Kate Eberle, her heirs and representatives, $672.08 out of the trust fund held and credited by the Government to the Sac tribe of Indians, the same being the approximately estimated cash value rightfully due her instead of her pro rata share of the provision in land or otherwise made by the Government according to the treaties, which would have accrued to her had she remained with the Sac tribe.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

SUITS AGAINST UNION AND CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROADS.

Mr. PETTIGREW. Several days ago I introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 192) authorizing the employment of counsel for the purpose of bringing suits against the directors and stockholders of the Union and Central Pacific railroads. As I think my remarks in connection with that resolution will be more appropriate when a settlement comes up next winter, I ask to have the joint resolution referred to the Committee on Pacific Railroads.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The joint resolution will be so referred.

* ALLOTMENT OF LANDS TO INDIANS.

Mr. PETTIGREW. I offer the resolution which I send to the desk, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER pro tempore. The resolution will be read.

The Secretary read as follows:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior is hereby directed to inform the Senate how many allotting agents have been employed in allotting lands to Indians in the State of South Dakota during the years 1881 and 1882, the amount paid said allotting agents and their assistants, the number of allotments made by each agent, also the duties performed by said agents, and the reason and necessity for their employment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. BATE. I do not object to its consideration, but is it according to the agreement of the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is in accordance with the order of the Senate. The question was made, when the order was adopted, whether resolutions which were controlled entirely by the Senate could be taken up, and the Senator who made the unanimous-consent request answered in the affirmative.

Mr. BATE. If it is within the rule, I have no objection.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to.

JOHN H. WILLIS.

Mr. MITCHELL, of Wisconsin. I am directed by the Committee on Pensions that it was referred the bill (H. R. 1516) for the relief of John H. Willis, to report it favorably, and I ask for its present consideration.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

COPYRIGHTS OF PHOTOGRAPHS AND ENGRAVINGS.

Mr. PLATT. I ask that House bill 8407, which is on the table, be now laid before the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the bill (H. R. 8407) to amend section 4965, chapter 3, Title LX, of the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to copyrights.

Mr. PLATT. I ask for the present consideration of the bill.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to ask the Senator from Connecticut if that bill or a similar one has been considered by the Committee on Patents.

Mr. PLATT. If the Senator and other Senators will listen to me I think they will understand the bill.

By the present law of copyright, if a daily paper, by mistake or inadvertence, publishes a photograph or an engraving, it is technically liable for a dollar for each sheet. In the case of a daily newspaper in New York the liability would be two or three hundred thousand dollars. Newspapers are constantly being blackmailed owing to this provision of the law, and this is to mitigate the severity of the penalty.

Mr. LANDERSON. It simply makes a new penalty.

Mr. PLATT. It makes a new penalty. The bill has not been formally considered by the Committee on Patents, but the subject-matter has been considered all the past winter, with the understanding that we should favor the passage of the bill when it reached here from the House of Representatives.

Mr. HILL. Is it satisfactory to publishers?

Mr. PLATT. It is satisfactory to the owners of newspapers, to the press associations, to the Copyright League, and to everybody who has an interest in it. The bill should be passed.

Mr. CHANDLER. What is to be the penalty hereafter?

Mr. PLATT. Not less than $100 nor more than $1,000 in case of the violation or infringement of a photograph; for a statue, etc., it is not less than $200, but the penalty is satisfactory all around to those who are interested.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY JANE LYNN.

Mr. QUAY. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of House bill 6565, which I think is the last pension bill on the Calendar.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 6565) granting a pension to Mary Jane Lynn.

Mr. COCKRELL. I should like to hear the report read in that case.

Mr. QUAY. That bill was objected to, I believe, by the chairman of the Committee on Pensions, but he withdrew his objection, I will say to the Senator.

Mr. COCKRELL. I must hear the report read, or otherwise I must stop to the bill.

Mr. QUAY. Let the report be read.

Mr. COCKRELL. I think it a bad precedent for the Senator from Pennsylvania to be sitting.

Mr. QUAY. I certainly thought that when the bill had passed the scrutiny of the chairman of the Committee on Pensions it would not offend the sense of propriety of the Senator from Missouri.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The report will be read.

The Secretary read the following report, submitted by Mr. QUAY March 1, 1895:

The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6565) granting a pension to Mary Jane Lynn, have examined the same and report: The report of the Committee on Pensions of the House of Representatives, hereto appended, is adopted, and the passage of the bill is recommended.

HOUSE REPORT.

The Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 6565) granting a pension to Mary Jane Lynn, and appropriating money therefor, having had the same under consideration, submit the following report:

Mary Jane Lynn, the applicant, is now over seventy-six years of age, and resides in the city of Altoona, Pa. She was born in Union County, Pa., November 23, 1817, and is the only surviving child of John R. Lynn and Jane Lynn. John R. Lynn, her father, enlisted as a private in Captain Gill's company of Colonel Moylan's regiment of Pennsylvania volunteers in 1860, to serve during the war, and resided at the time of his enlistment at Lancaster, Pa., and was honorably discharged from service. At the age of 63 years he was granted a pension as a Revolutionary veteran, his application being dated April 6, 1818. He died in Union County, Pa., September 28, 1847, and left to survive him a widow and the applicant, who continued to reside with her mother until her mother's death.

Mrs. Lynn, the applicant, is a maiden lady and is in indigent circumstances, and has made her living as a seamstress. She is now of such an age and is so infirm that she is unable to follow her employment, and is dependent to very large degree upon her friends (she having no relatives) for support.

All the facts relative to the service of the soldier are shown in the papers on file at the Pension Office, and in conformity to its regulations, and the relationship, age, and dependence of the beneficiary.

There are several precedents for the proposed legislation, and in the light of the claimant's necessities and circumstances your committee believe that the small pension proposed in the bill should be allowed to her. The passage of the bill is therefore recommended.

Mr. COCKRELL. I enter my vote on the record against that bill and the principle involved in it.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

OBION RIVER BRIDGE, IN TENNESSEE.

Mr. BATE. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 3873) authorizing the Dyersburg and Mississippi Railway and Improvement Company to bridge the Obion River, in the State of Tennessee, and for other purposes.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DISTRIBUTION OF DOCUMENTS.

Mr. MANDERSON. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the joint resolution (H. Res. 286) to extend time in which members of the Fifty-third Congress may distribute documents. It has been reported favorably by the Committee on Printing.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be read the third time, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN W. KENNEDY.

Mr. FAULKNER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 4162) for the relief of John W. Kennedy.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BASIL MORELAND.

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 4704) for the relief of Basil Moreland.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to pay to Basil Moreland $2,312 in full on all claim he may have against the United States for his land and improvements in Blue Earth County, Minn., taken by the United States for the Winnebago Indians.

Mr. COCKRELL. Has that bill been referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs?

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. It has been before the Committee on Claims. The bill passed the House of Representatives and went to the Committee on Claims, and was reported a few days ago.

Mr. COCKRELL. The Committee on Claims of the Senate?

Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. Yes; and after it came to the Senate I sent the case to the Department, and obtained an answer. It is a very meritorious claim.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MRS. E. WYSE.

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask the Chair to lay before the Senate a House pension bill which is on the table.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair lays before the Senate a bill, the title of which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. A bill (H. R. 6831) granting a pension to Mrs. E. Wyse, widow of Lieut. Col. F. O. Wyse.

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DISTRIBUTION OF APPROPRIATION BILLS TO COMMITTEES.

Mr. DUBOIS. I offer a resolution, which I send to the desk, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution will be read. The Secretary proceeded to read the resolution, which is as follows:

Resolved, That paragraph 1 of Rule XVI of the standing rules of the Senate be amended by striking out the words "All general appropriation bills shall be referred to the Committee on Appropriations, except bills making appropriations for rivers and harbors, which shall be referred to the Committee on Commerce," and inserting the following:

"The general appropriation bills shall be referred to committees as follows:

"To the Committee on Appropriations: The bills for legislative, executive, and judicial expenses, for sundry civil expenses, and for all deficiencies.

"To the Committee on Agriculture: The bill for the Agricultural Department.

"To the Committee on Foreign Relations: The consular and diplomatic bill.

"To the Committee on Military Affairs: The bill for the military establishment, including the Military Academy.

"To the Committee on Naval Affairs: The bill for the naval establishment.

"To the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads: The Post-Office appropriation bill.

"To the Committee on Indian Affairs: The bill for Indians and Indian tribes.

"To the Committee on Commerce: The bill for rivers and harbors.

"To the Committee on Coast Defense: The fortifications bill.

"To the Committee on the District of Columbia: The bill making appropriations for the District; and "To the Committee on Pensions: The pension appropriation bill."

Mr. ALDRICH. I move that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Rules.

Mr. CHANDLER. The Senator from Idaho has asked unanimous consent for its present consideration.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Objection being made, the resolution goes over.

Mr. CHANDLER. The reading of the resolution has not been completed yet.

Mr. ALDRICH. I have heard enough to satisfy me.

Mr. CHANDLER. The Senator may have heard enough, and I have no doubt he has.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution goes over, being objected to.

Mr. DUBOIS. I give notice that I shall call up the resolution on the first Monday of the next session.

Mr. COCKRELL. At 12 o'clock the resolution dies.

JOSEPH M'GUCKIAN.

Mr. BUTLER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution to place Joseph McGuckian on the messenger roll of the Senate.

Mr. COCKRELL. I object.

Mr. BUTLER. I ask the Senator from Missouri not to object, but to allow the resolution to pass. It is for the relief of an old employee of this body, Joe McGuckian, who is known very well to all Senators, and the resolution has been favorably reported by the Committee on Contingent Expenses.

Mr. COCKRELL. This is not the time to consider it.

Mr. ALDRICH. I move that the Senate take a recess for six hours.

Mr. MANDERSON. I ask that that motion may be withdrawn, as I desire to call up a joint resolution which will occupy but a moment.

Mr. ALDRICH. I withdraw the motion for a moment.

MEDAL OF HONOR.

Mr. MANDERSON. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the joint resolution (H. Res. 199) relative to the medal of honor authorized by the acts of July 12, 1862, and March 3, 1863.

By unanimous consent the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution, which had been reported from the Committee on Military Affairs, with an amendment to strike out all after line 9, in the following words:

Resolved, That the wearing of said medal or ribbon by any other than the persons above specified shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and subject, on conviction, to a penalty of $100.

So as to make the joint resolution read:

Resolved, etc. That any person who has been, or may hereafter be, awarded the medal of honor authorized by the acts of July 12, 1862, and March 3, 1863, respectively, may wear, in lieu of said medal, a bowknot of ribbon of a pattern used under regulations to be prescribed by the President of the United States.

The amendment was agreed to.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the joint resolution to be read a third time.

The joint resolution was read the third time, and passed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. ALDRICH (at 4 o'clock a. m., Monday, March 4). I now renew my motion, that the Senate take a recess for six hours.

Mr. MANDERSON. Fix the time.

Mr. ALDRICH. Until 10 o'clock.

Mr. COCKRELL. It may be necessary for the Presiding Officer to be in the chair at an hour earlier than that in order to facilitate the final passage of bills.

Mr. CHANDLER. I suggest to the Senator from Rhode Island to say 9 o'clock.

Mr. ALDRICH. I will name 9 o'clock, with the understanding that there is to be no general business transacted until 10.

Mr. FAULKNER. Nothing except in connection with enrolled bills.

Mr. ALDRICH. With that exception.

Mr. PLATT. We could not pass any measure after that hour and get it to the President in time to be signed.

Mr. ALDRICH. We might as well say 11 o'clock.

Mr. MANDERSON. There may be some matter which it is important to act on. There will be the usual formal matters incident to the closing hours of a session.

Mr. ALDRICH. Such business certainly can be done in two hours.

Mr. CHANDLER. I am sure it is better to say 9 o'clock.

Mr. ALDRICH. Very well, with the understanding that no business shall be transacted, except such as I have indicated, before 10 o'clock.

Mr. WHITE. Then Senators need not come here until 10 o'clock.

Mr. COCKRELL. Why not make it 11 o'clock? That will give us an hour longer.

Mr. MANDERSON. All right.

Mr. ALDRICH. Very well; I will modify my motion so as to extend the time until 11 o'clock.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. What is the motion?

Mr. ALDRICH. I propose that we now take a recess until 9 o'clock, and that no business shall be transacted until 11 o'clock except in connection with bills which have already passed the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the understanding which the Senator attaches to his motion?

Mr. FAULKNER. It is a request for unanimous consent, I understand.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Rhode Island asks unanimous consent that the understanding be that no business shall be done in the Senate until 11 o'clock, except in connection with conference reports on appropriation bills.

Mr. STEWART. I object to that.

Mr. COCKRELL. And all other bills that have been passed.

Mr. CHANDLER. And engrossed bills.

Mr. FAULKNER. And bills that have passed either House.

Mr. STEWART. Not to take up new bills, but to finish the business partly done.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. With the understanding that the President of the Senate shall sign bills and announce his signature before that hour.

Mr. MANDERSON. That is all right.

Mr. STEWART. Suppose there is a little amendment of the House to a Senate bill; let that be concurred in also.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the Senate concurring in a little amendment of the House of Representatives?

Mr. HAWLEY. I object.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The request of the Senator from Nevada is objected to. The agreement will stand as stated by the Chair, in the absence of objection.

RECESS.

Mr. ALDRICH. I now move that the Senate take a recess until 9 o'clock.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 4 o'clock and 7 minutes a. m., Monday, March 4, 1895) the Senate took a recess until 9 o'clock a. m.

At the expiration of the recess (at 9 o'clock a. m., Monday, March 4) the Senate reassembled.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills:

A bill (S. 333) for the relief of Margaret Kennedy;

A bill (S. 336) to amend the act entitled "An act authorizing the Texarkana and Fort Smith Railway Company to bridge the Sulphur River in the State of Arkansas or in the State of Texas," approved April 21, 1894;

A bill (S. 2503) for the relief of James Curran;

A bill (S. 1232) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the terms of the United States courts in the State of Washington," and

A bill (S. 3721) to amend the river and harbor act of August 7, 1894, providing for improving the outer bar of Brunswick, Ga.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6816) to amend the charter of the District of Columbia Suburban Railway Company.

The message further announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 1841) to provide that all persons employing female help in stores, shops, and manufactories in the District of Columbia shall provide seats for the same when not actively employed, with amendments; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message also announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the enrolled bill (H. R. 8518) making appropriations for the sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes; and it was thereupon signed by the Vice-President.

RECESS.

Mr. MANDERSON (at 9 o'clock and 5 minutes a. m.). In view of the fact that there seems to be no business to be transacted (the unanimous-consent agreement excluding all except that which is merely formal), and the further fact that the other side of the Chamber seems to be in a most dismal minority, I move that the Senate take a recess for fifteen minutes.

The motion was agreed to; and at the expiration of the recess (at 9 o'clock and 20 minutes a. m.) the Senate reassembled.

SEATS FOR FEMALE HELP IN STORES, ETC.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 1841) to provide that all persons employing female help in stores, shops, offices, or manufactories shall provide seats for the same when not actively employed.

The amendments of the House of Representatives were read, as follows:

In section 1, line 1, after the word "them," insert "in the District of Columbia."

In section 2, line 1, after the word "help," insert "in the District of Columbia."

In section 2, line 3, strike out the words "their shops, stores, or other places of business" and insert "his shop, store, or other place of business."

In section 2, line 6, strike out "they" and insert "he."

A amend the title so as to read: "An act to provide that all persons employing female help in stores, shops, offices, or manufactories in the District of Columbia shall provide seats for the same when not actually employed."

Mr. HARRIS. I move that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House of Representatives. They are simply verbal.

The motion was agreed to.

ENROLLED BILL SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had signed the enrolled bill (H. R. 8479) making appropriations for current and contingent expenses of the Indian Department and fulfilling treaty stipulations with various Indian tribes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes; and it was thereupon signed by the Vice-President.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. CALL. If there is no business before the Senate, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee to investigate the operations of the Louisiana or Honduras Lottery Company in the United States.

Mr. MANDERSON. It can not be that the Senator from Florida is aware of the unanimous-consent agreement under which the Senate took its recess at 4 o'clock this morning.

Mr. CALL. I was not present.

Mr. MANDERSON. That unanimous-consent agreement was that no business whatever should be transacted by the Senate except the signing and the announcement of the signature of the Vice-President to enrolled bills until the hour of 11 o'clock was reached.

Mr. HARRIS. And action upon conference reports.

Mr. MANDERSON. Yes; action, of course, upon conference reports.

Mr. CALL. I understood before I left that it was to be agreed that Senate resolutions might be considered, and especially this one.

Mr. MANDERSON. This agreement was made at 4 o'clock this morning and after a good deal of contest.

Mr. CALL. There could not have been a quorum here to make such an agreement.

Mr. HARRIS. There were a great many here, quite enough to agree that we would do nothing except consider the reports of conference committees and sign and announce the signature of enrolled bills until 11 o'clock.

Mr. CALL. What then?

Mr. HARRIS. Then it is supposed the Senate will be here and do what it pleases.

Mr. CALL. That supposition is a very extraordinary one, because the Senate never does what it pleases.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. T. O. TOWLES, its Chief Clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills; and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (H. R. 8665) making appropriations for the naval service for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, and for other purposes; and
A bill (H. R. 8892) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, and for prior years, and for other purposes.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

Mr. CULLOM presented a petition of sundry citizens of Bloomington, Ill., praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the appropriation of moneys for sectarian institutions; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

MATTHEW M'GUIRK.

Mr. WHITE, from the Committee on Territories, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1389) for the relief of Matthew McGuiRK, of Los Angeles, Cal., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

NOTIFICATION TO THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. VOORHEES submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That a committee of two Senators be appointed by the Chair, to join a similar committee appointed by the House of Representatives, to wait upon the President of the United States and inform him that the two Houses, having completed the business of the present session, are ready to adjourn, unless the President has some other communication to make to them.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the committee on the part of the Senate, and Mr. VOORHEES and Mr. SHERMAN were appointed.

PROTECTION OF FUR-SEAL HERD.

Mr. GRAY. I ask unanimous consent to take from the table the bill which came from the House of Representatives the other day, to protect the American fur-seal herd from further destruction, which was passed by the House with practical unanimity. And I think there is a very strong sentiment here in its favor.

Mr. MORGAN. Mr. President, after a night and day of great fatigue, I sat up nearly all night last night for the purpose of objecting to the passage of that bill under any and all conditions. I regard it as a surrender on the part of the Administration upon a question which is of very great importance to this country, a surrender to British demands without the slightest foundation in fact, law, or justice, and so I object to it.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection.

OBION RIVER BRIDGE.

Mr. HARRIS. I offer a concurrent resolution to authorize the Clerk of the House of Representatives to correct the enrollment of a bill, one section being omitted.

The concurrent resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate (the House concurring), That the Clerk of the House be authorized and directed to make such changes in the engrossed copy of the bill (H. R. 8535) entitled "An act authorizing the Dyersburg and Mississippi Railway and Improvement Company to bridge the Obion River, in the State of Tennessee, and for other purposes," as will cause said engrossed copy to conform with the said bill as it passed the House of Representatives.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE GUARD.

Mr. RANSOM. I ask unanimous consent to introduce a joint resolution, for which I ask present consideration.

The joint resolution (S. R. 143) authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to deliver to the First Regiment North Carolina State Guard two pieces of condemned cannon was read the first time by its title, and the second time at length, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the Secretary of the Navy be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to deliver to the First Regiment North Carolina State Guard two pieces of condemned cannon: Provided, That the same can be spared without detriment to the service, and that no expense is thereby incurred by the Government.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

VENTILATION OF SENATE CHAMBER.

Mr. HOAR submitted the following resolution, which was read; and referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

Resolved, That the Committee on Rules be directed to report at the next Congress whether any law or enactment can be made in the ventilation of the Senate Chamber, and in their discretion to obtain the opinion of experts on the subject, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.

CONTINUATION OF STANDING AND SELECT COMMITTEES.

Mr. GORMAN submitted the following resolution; which was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to:

Resolved, That the standing and select committees of the Senate, as now constituted, be, and they are hereby, continued, and the power to act and hold the first Monday in December, 1895, or until their successors are appointed; and that the Committee on Printing as it may be constituted on the 31st day of March, 1896, be, and it is hereby, authorized during the recess of the Senate to perform such duties as may be required by law.

BERING SEA SEAL FISHERIES.

Mr. CAMDEN. If there is no objection, I have a little business from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate which I will ask permission to have acted on now. I report favorably with an amendment the resolution I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The resolution will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution submitted by Mr. MORGAN on the 1st instant, as follows:

Resolved, That the message of the President received by the Senate on February 13, 1895, relating to the payment by the United States of the claims of Great Britain arising out of the Bering Sea controversy, is referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, with instruction that such committee examine into the question of such liability to Great Britain and the amount thereof, if any, and of any liability on the part of Great Britain or Canada arising out of said controversy, and that said committee shall have authority to report by bill or otherwise, and, in making such examination, may sit in the vacation of the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment of the committee will be debated.

The SECRETARY. Insert at the end of the resolution:

Said committee shall have authority to send for persons and papers, administer oaths to witnesses, and to employ the services of a stenographer, at a cost not to exceed $100.

Mr. GRAY. What is the parliamentary situation of the resolution?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution is reported from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate.

Mr. GRAY. I object to its adoption. Does it require unanimous consent?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Being reported at this time, one objection carries it over until to-morrow.

Mr. GRAY. I object. The present consideration of the resolution is objected to.

Mr. MORGAN. I hope my colleague on the Committee on Foreign Relations will allow that body to investigate this very important subject.

What remained of the Bering Sea controversy, if the Senate will allow me for a moment, after the tribunal at Paris had passed upon it, was a negotiation that was provided for in the fifth article. I believe it was, of the treaty under which the tribunal was organized and sat. The consideration of the question contained in the fifth article was withdrawn expressly from the tribunal by the consent of the two Governments. I did not believe that they had the jurisdiction to withdraw it. Yet that was the order of the tribunal, and it was referred to these two Governments as a subject of negotiation upon an agreed basis of fact, which facts were related to the number and the names of ships that were taken, and the points at which they were taken. No liability of the United States was discussed or decided, but that was reserved as a question for negotiation, not for arbitration.

The Secretary of State has informed us that he or the President has made an arrangement with Great Britain of a diplomatic sort to pay these alleged damages upon an agreed basis of fact, which facts were related to the number and the names of ships that were taken, and the points at which they were taken. No liability of the United States was discussed or decided, but that was reserved as a question for negotiation, not for arbitration.

If this matter had gone before the tribunal at Paris upon the evidence submitted, and upon the argument of Judge Blodgett that he made there, it would not have been possible, as I conceive, that the Government of Great Britain could have recovered a cent upon it.

In the strongest point in the claim, on the strongest view of this question, there can not be due to the Government of Great Britain more than $98,103.50; but no time remains this morning for me to state the account. Three vessels of the lot which were included in the claim of Great Britain were required to be appraised by the Government, either at the time when Mr. Bayard was Secretary of State or his successor, Mr. Blaine, was, I forget which, and they were appraised by Mr. Tingle, the commercial agent of the United States, at the seal isles, and another gentleman, Mr. Redpath, as I remember. Those appraisers valued the three ships at $12,000, and so reported to their Government. The Government of Great Britain claims $173,000 for those three ships, and this agreement allows it.

Now, I wish to investigate that subject. The message of the President is already referred to the committee. The committee is, in duty bound, of course, to make an investigation and report, but I want the opportunity of taking the testimony of two gentlemen. I want that testimony brought into the Senate. I want an investigation and a report made, and I do not wish that the Secretary of State shall avoid his constitutional duty and his privilege of making the negotiation as is required by that treaty and devolve it upon a set of commissioners who may perhaps not have any embarrassment in a negotiation.

I want this work to be done straight and right and by the diplomatic authorities, and I am more particularly interested in it because representations through the press, uttered, I have made the Paris tribunal responsible for the condition of affairs in the Bering Sea, which has been produced by the fact, as I believe, that this feature of the arbitration was withdrawn from them, and by the additional fact that the special regulations made by the Secretary of the Treasury, under the general regulations adopted by the Bering Sea tribunal, have assisted in destroying the seals in the North Pacific Ocean by permitting a violation of the restriction of that law in the present case, have been made to carry guns and ammunition on board of their licensed crafts under a seal that anybody can break at any time without detection. I wish to have these special regulations examined.

More than that, Mr. President, the Paris tribunal required that a log should be kept on board of each licensed sealer, and on that log should be entered the date and place of every killing and the sex of the seal killed. Those logs were required to be reported when each of these licensed ships returned to port. The Secretary of the Treasury informs us that they have not reported. He informs us that there are some papers, of what sort I do not know, which he withholds from the Senate because they relate to matters of a public character not proper to be known. I can not understand how the Secretary of the Treasury could have any fact in the archives of his Department which the Senate has not a right to.

Unless those logs are presented under the requirements of the award, it is impossible to determine how many seals have been killed, or the latitude and longitude in which they were killed, or the time of the year in which they were killed. Those vessels usually outfit in January. They first fish up 35° of north latitude. They then seal or pretend to have sealed up their guns and ammunition, cross the waters within which a close season prevails, go over the Commander Islands, where the vicinity where Japan and Russia have their seal herds, poach upon them until the time arrives for their entrance into Bering Sea, and come back without discharging their guns and enter Bering Sea. There, of course, the herds, closely concentrated, are exposed to slaughter at their hands, and the only security which is possible against the use of those guns and the maraud across the 60-mile limit is the log which the award requires to be produced and which has not been produced. I want them.

Mr. GRAY. Has the Senator from Alabama the letter he speaks of?

Mr. MORGAN. It is the letter of February 11, 1895, in which Mr. Carlisle, Secretary of the Treasury, says:

The papers above referred to constituted all the reports and documents in the possession of the Treasury which were compatible with the public interests to transmit to Congress at this time.

Great Britain in agreeing to this arbitration professed, as it had done in the whole course of its diplomatic correspondence with the United States, the greatest interest in and the most serious concern for the preservation of the seal herd. It may well have done so, because Great Britain gets more profit out of the manufacture of seal skins in London than the Government of the United States gets out of the seal islands which it owns. Great Britain has 10,000 people in London engaged in the manufacture of seal skins and at high wages. Those professions were accepted by the tribunal as being made in good faith, and were acted upon.

They were repeated in the arguments of counsel and they are the basis of the decree of the tribunal in a large part.

Now, each of these Governments, Great Britain having the greatest monetary interest in the seal herd, placed themselves against everybody else amenable to their laws. What was the result last year? Eighty per cent of the outfitting is done at Vancouver and 90 per cent of the profit of the poaching upon Bering Sea and the North Pacific Ocean goes to Canada. The wrongs that have been done the seal herd have come from Canadians and not from Americans to any large extent. Great Britain sent one ship during the last fishing season to restrain the poachers and watch and guard those seals against the marauds of her own people, and the ship spent the entire summer outside of Bering Sea in port. The United States had 10 ships there and had to maintain them at a heavy expense, to do what? To watch the subjects of Great Britain, to prevent them, as far as they could, from transgressing the law laid down between these Governments in the award of the arbitrators.

The administration of the law on the part of the Government of the United States has been slack. The administration of that law on the part of the Government of Great Britain has been absurdly inefficient. No attention, as I have observed before, of any valuable sort was paid to the requirement that the sealers shall furnish logs indicating what I have already referred to as to the location of their ships at the time when they took the seals. The result is that no evidence was presented to the Government of the United States upon which we can hold Great Britain to account for the conduct of her sealers. The whole thing is left under a cloud of uncertainty and doubt and darkness, and yet the Secretary of the Treasury tells us that there are papers in his Department which he does not send to us because he deems it incompatible with the public service to do so.

I think that under those circumstances it is due to this Government, and due to this body also, that the Committee on Foreign Relations should make a fair and impartial but thorough investigation of the subject, and that is the object of my motion.

Mr. GRAY. Mr. President, the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] has asked me to withdraw the objection. I owe it to him as I owe it to the Senate and to myself to state why I can not withdraw it.

The House of Representatives passed with practical unanimity a day or two ago, I think it was on Friday, a bill to protect the American fur-seal herd from further devastation and destruction. That bill lies upon our table. Its purpose, as is apparent upon its face, is to proceed by the only intelligent method by which that end can be accomplished, and provides for the appointment of a joint commission composed of delegates from Great Britain, the United States, Japan, and Russia, the countries that are immediately interested, and whose citizens and subjects are concerned in the fur-seal fisheries, in order to investigate what has been the destruction of that herd, what have been the causes, and what are the defects in the present regulations under the arbitration of Paris adopted for the protection of that valuable animal.

The bill I speak of ought to be taken up by the Senate for consideration. The Senator from Alabama has objected to this consideration. I believe there is a majority in favor of passing it. I am afraid that my honorable and distinguished friend from Alabama feels that in the passage of the bill there would be some imputation or reflection upon the tribunal of which he was an ornament and an honored member. The tribunal at Paris did, so far as the American members of it were concerned, all that was possible to be done to obtain such regulations as would protect the seal herd. The Senator from Alabama himself signed, with his associate member, Mr. Justice Harlan, and with one of the foreign members of that arbitration tribunal, I think Baron de Courcey, a declaration that in their opinion it was necessary, in order to thoroughly protect the herd and accomplish the end all had in view in adopting those regulations, to make a close season of three years, or two years at least.

Now, all that the bill to which I have referred proposes to do is that we shall have, through the expert commissioners of the commission, a further investigation of what regulations are necessary, and during the period that that investigation is being had there shall be a modus vivendi, which shall stop the destruction of the herd until better regulations can be formed.

Mr. President, it is no reflection on the Senator from Alabama that he was not able to obtain from the seven other delegates, or five other delegates, I forget which, of foreign countries, a better code than he has been able to obtain. All that the Administration is endeavoring to do, all that this bill proposes, is to supplement, after a year's experience of those regulations, the efforts that he has already made by another endeavor to obtain efficient regulations.

Mr. MILLS. Will the Senator from Delaware yield to me? I want to call up a little bill and put it on its passage.

Mr. GRAY. I shall be through in a moment.

There is not a particle of evidence which has been called to my attention showing that there has been any lax administration of these regulations on the part of the Secretary of the Treasury. We have had ten vessels crossing the waters. But one seizure has been made, and in that case the vessel was released. There is no evidence that seals have been destroyed to the extent that they have been during the past year—55,000. I think, of them—except by pelagic hunters in the open season that was allowed by the Paris regulations. The difficulty is that in the months preceding May and succeeding July, to wit, the months of March and April and the months of August and September, the pelagic hunters are licensed by these regulations to hunt and destroy the seals at their pleasure, and there has been a destruction to the extent that I have mentioned in that way. There is not a particle of evidence to show that there has been any destruction due to poaching upon the closed season provided by those regulations.

Now, Mr. President, in regard to the $425,000 that was offered to be paid by the United States as a lump sum in the settlement of claims for the seizure of British vessels on the high seas, the liability for which was admitted by the Paris Tribunal. That amount was far within the estimates made by the British claimants and the best estimates that could be made by the agents of the United States. When that matter was presented to the Foreign Relations Committee of this body, it is no impropriety to say that it was received with almost universal favor. I suppose the Senator from Alabama did not agree to it; but it seemed to us then a settlement very advantageous to the United States.

But that is out of the question now, and the Senate has had the opportunity to provide for the only alternative of settling this matter by a lump sum—that is, to provide for a convention between Great Britain and the United States in which the claims could be adjudicated and the amounts determined. That has been refused. Now, the bill from the House is before us, designed to prevent the lamentable destruction of this valuable herd of fur-bearing seals, and we refuse to act upon it, or at least the Senator from Alabama refuses to permit us to act upon it. I do not think, with all due deference to him, that the responsibility that he takes in this matter is a very light one.

Mr. President, in the minute that is left to me I desire to say that there is absolutely no ground for the imputation that the Secretary of the Treasury suppresses the logs of licensed sealing vessels or other documents which could throw light on the administration of the Paris regulations, as a perusal of the letter of the Secretary to which the Senator refers will show.

I am sorry that I am not permitted in these closing moments to say more.

Mr. MORGAN. Mr. President—

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution having been reported to-day and objected to, it goes over under the rule.

Mr. MORGAN. I ask the leave of the Senate to place in the RECORD a statement of the actual condition of the account between Great Britain and the United States, which I have had carefully prepared, showing how much we would be liable for, even upon the principles that they contend for.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, the statement will be read in the RECORD.

Mr. TURPIE. I object.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair hears objection.

Mr. GRAY. I ask to have printed as a part of my remarks the letter of the Secretary of the Treasury to which the Senator from Alabama alludes as the foundation of his statement that there have been logs of these vessels suppressed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Delaware?

Mr. MORGAN. I wish ask permission with like consent to put into the RECORD the letter of Mr. Phelps, of Vermont, showing what this award was and what its consequences are.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Delaware and the Senator from Alabama?

Mr. TURPIE. I object.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It is objected to.

DECISIONS AND PRECEDENTS OF THE SENATE.

Mr. GORMAN. I am directed by the Committee on Printing, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by the Senator from Delaware [Mr. GRAY] on the 28th of February, to report it with amendments; and I ask for its present consideration.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed 50 additional copies of Senate Miscellaneous Document No. 275, 57th session (Fifty-third Congress, Digest of Decisions and Precedents of the Senate and House of Representatives, etc.), for the use of the Senate.

The amendments of the Committee on Printing were, in line 1, before the word "hundred," to strike out "five" and insert "six," in line 4, before the word "for," to insert "500," and to add to the resolution "and 100 for the use of the special committee, to be bound in paper covers," so as to make the resolution read:

Resolved, That there be printed 60 additional copies of Senate Miscellaneous Document No. 275, 57th session (Fifty-third Congress, Digest of Decisions and Precedents of the Senate and House of Representatives, etc.), 600 for the use of the Senate and 100 for the use of the special committee, to be bound in paper covers.

Mr. TURPIE. I should like to inquire of the honorable Senator from Maryland what is the subject-matter of this document?

Mr. GORMAN. I ask the Secretary to read the title of the document which is mentioned in the resolution. It is a digest of election cases.

Mr. GRAY. Continuing them up to date. But let the Secretary state the title of the document.

The SECRETARY. A Digest of Decisions and Precedents of the Senate and House of Representatives.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. TURPIE. I understand that it is to print a digest of the decisions of the House of Representatives and of the Senate. On what subject?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Indiana addresses the Senator from Maryland.

Mr. TURPIE. I call the attention of the honorable Senator to the fact that the resolution as read does not show the subject-matter of the document, and I ask, what is the subject-matter?

Mr. GRAY. The Senator from Maryland has asked me to explain it, as being within my personal knowledge, for I submitted the resolution.

The special investigating committee of last summer had, during the progress of the work, to consult a great many precedents in regard to the powers and duties of the Senate in the matter of dealing with recalcitrant witnesses and corporations. During that examination a great many interesting precedents, both of this body and the other, and also decisions of the Supreme Court and of cases in the district courts of the United States, were collected. The clerk of that committee has made a most interesting volume of about a thousand pages of digest, with a table of contents, which will be of almost as much value in use as Taft's Election Cases. It is an exceedingly interesting volume, going back to the foundation of the Government, historical in its value and practical in its use. The resolution is to provide for the printing of a hundred copies of that digest. It is already in type.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

The Senate by unanimous consent proceeded to consider the resolution.

The amendments were agreed to.

Mr. HOAR. I desire to suggest to the honorable Senator from Delaware to add 25 copies for the use of the compiler. The gentleman who did the work ought to have some copies.

Mr. GRAY. I am willing that that amendment shall be made.

Mr. HOAR. I move to amend the resolution by adding:

Twenty-five copies in addition thereto for the use of the compiler.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

PATENT OFFICE GAZETTE INVESTIGATION.

Mr. GORMAN. I submit the report of the Committee on Printing on the investigation of the Patent Office photolithographing contracts, authorized by a resolution of the Senate of February 19, 1894. I also present the testimony taken by the committee; which I ask may accompany the report and be printed. The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It will be so ordered.

THE COMMITTEE ON RULES.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I ask for the immediate consideration of the resolution I send to the desk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Rules be instructed to inquire and report to the Senate what revision of or amendments to the rules, if any, should be adopted to secure a more efficient and satisfactory disposition of the business of the Senate, and for this purpose the said committee is authorized to sit during the coming recess of Congress at the city of Washington.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. STEWART. I object.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution, being objected to, goes over.

Mr. STEWART subsequently said: I desire to withdraw my objection to the resolution offered by the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN] with regard to the rules.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The objection being withdrawn, the Secretary—

Mr. PETTIGREW. I renew the objection.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The objection is renewed.

THANKS TO THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

Mr. MORRILL. I offer a resolution and ask for its present consideration.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That, as thanks of the Senate are due and are hereby tendered to Hon. ADAM E. STEVENSON, Vice-President of the United States, for the ability, dignity, courtesy, and impartiality with which he has presided over its deliberations during the present session of Congress.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and unanimously agreed to.

INVESTIGATION BY THE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE.

Mr. WHITE. Mr. President, some time ago I introduced a resolution in this body asking that the Committee on Commerce be authorized to make a trip to the Pacific Coast for the purpose of making certain investigations regarding the location of a deep-water harbor. There has been difficulty concerning that subject experienced by the members of the Committee on Commerce of such a character that they were unable to determine where the harbor should be located, and it was resolved by the committee at the last session of Congress that it was necessary to visit the ground. Adequate powers were conferred, but owing to matters over which the members of the committee had no control it was impossible to make the trip.

At the present session I had a similar resolution referred to the Committee on Contingent Expenses, but it has never been reported. The committee came to the conclusion, I understand, after consulting with various members of the Senate upon both sides of the Chamber, that it was inadvisable that any of these trips should be made. There has been some change in the membership of the Committee on Commerce, so that at the next session not more than two-thirds of those who now compose the committee will be members of the Senate.

After making considerable investigation I have ascertained that members of that committee design visiting the coast improvements during the recess; and finding it impossible to procure the authority to make the necessary expenditure I will extend to the members of the committee my earnest invitation to visit the work, and believe that, by so doing we shall have no difficulty at the next session of Congress in making a proper location for the proposed improvement.

I referred in a short address which I made on the 18th of February to a petition filed by my constituents here, those who live close to the region most particularly affected by this improvement, signed by some 20,000 taxpayers, regarding the work, and while at this time it appears impossible to procure the passage of the resolution I refer to, I repeat that in view of the promises of those who will remain members of the committee at the next session I believe the necessary inspection will be had.

THE COMMITTEE ON PRINTING.

Mr. RANSOM. Mr. President, the Joint Committee on Printing will have a great deal of business to do during the vacation. I am a member of that committee; and in order that the committee may have a full membership I tender my resignation as a member of it.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from North Carolina asks to be excused from further service on the Committee on Printing. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. GORMAN. I ask that the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of the Senator from North Carolina from the Committee on Printing may be filled by the Chair.

By unanimous consent, the President pro tempore was authorized to fill the vacancy, and Mr. BLACKBURN was appointed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. KERR, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had agreed to the concurrent resolution of the Senate directing the Clerk of the House to make and have in the engrossed copy of the House bill (H. R. 8773) authorizing the Dyersburg and Mississippi Railway and Improvement Company to bridge the Obion River, in the State of Tennessee, and for other purposes, as will cause said engrossed copy to conform with the said bill as it passed the House of Representatives.

The message also announced that the House had passed a joint resolution (H. Res. 287) authorizing the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives to pay to the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives borne on the annual rolls their respective salaries for the month of March on the 9th day of said month; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message further announced that the House had appointed Mr. CATCHINGS, Mr. OCHWAITE, and Mr. REED a committee on the part of the House to join such committee as had been appointed by the Senate to wait upon the President of the United States and to inform him that Congress, having finished its business, was ready to close its session by adjournment.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

The message further announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills and a joint resolution; and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (S. 1811) to provide that all persons employing female help in stores, shops, or manufactories in the District of Columbia shall provide seats for the same when not actually employed.

A bill (S. 1252) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the term of the United States courts in the State of Washington;

A bill (H. R. 8873) authorizing the Dyersburg and Mississippi Railway and Improvement Company to bridge the Obion River, in the State of Tennessee, and for other purposes; and

A joint resolution (S. R. 114) authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to deliver to the First Regiment, North Carolina State Guard, two pieces of condemned cannon.

LOUISIANA OR HONDURAS LOTTERY COMPANY.

Mr. CALL. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the resolution creating a special committee for the investigation of the operations of the Honduras Lottery Company.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Secretary will read the resolution.

The Secretary read the resolution submitted by Mr. CALL February 9, 1893, as modified, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate. That a special committee be, and is hereby, created, which shall be charged with the duty of inquiring and reporting to the Senate whether the Louisiana or Honduras Lottery Company has been established and is now operating in the United States and is engaged in business therein and the names of the names of the interstate commerce corporations or companies in violation of the laws of the United States.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. GORMAN. There have been introduced quite a number of resolutions to continue committees during the coming recess of Congress. After a conference of the committees on both sides of the Chamber it was thought to be wise that no privilege of this kind should be in a few hours; indeed, it has already passed away, although we are nominally in charge of the organization. The distinguished Senator from California on my left [Mr. WHITE] secured at the last session of the Senate the passage of a resolution directing the Committee on Commerce to visit the Pacific Coast to look at the very important work which he alluded to a moment ago. The committee for various reasons, with which the distinguished Senator from North Carolina [Mr. RANSOM] is perfectly familiar, were unable to go there and perform that duty.

Mr. RANSOM. There was no chance. The chairman of the committee made every effort to get the committee to make the investigation, but it was impossible for them to go to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. GORMAN. I am perfectly aware, of course, as the Senator from California stated a few moments ago, that he has been anxious for the members, those of us who are on the committee in the next Congress, to visit the Pacific Coast, knowing the importance of that work; but recognizing the propriety of the suggestion which has been made on both sides of the Chamber that it would not do to continue committees and encroach upon the small contingent fund during the coming recess, we have been compelled to refuse the Senator from California and all other Senators; and so far no authorization of any committee to remain in session or to sit during the recess has been granted except the Committee on Printing, which under the statute is required to perform certain duties during the recess, the approval of bonds and contracts, and so on, which committee during the coming recess—and this is true of that committee in every recess in the past—will not expend a single dollar of the public money for the performance of the duties imposed upon them during the recess. That was the agreement on both sides of the Chamber represented by the respective committees.

Mr. HOAR. I call the attention of the Senator from Maryland at this time, in order that in the confusion of this last hour there may be no misunderstanding, to the fact that I introduced a resolution directing the Committee on Rules to report at the next session of Congress whether the ventilation of this Chamber may be improved, and for that purpose to employ an expert at a cost of not exceeding $200. It will not involve any session of the committee in the vacation; and as it is a matter which affects the health of all of us, I am sure every Senator will regard it as an exception and not within the prohibition to which the Senator has referred.

Mr. GORMAN. Mr. President, there is a common understanding on both sides of the Chamber, in view of the facts to which I have alluded, that it will be unwise and impolitic to authorize any committee of the body, either standing or special, to remain in session during the recess of Congress if it shall become a charge upon the contingent fund of the Senate.

I desire to say to the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR], in answer to his inquiry, that I trust in the resolution to which he alludes, which is important to the health and convenience of all Senators, he will strike out any provision for an appropriation.

Mr. HOAR. I will modify the resolution in accordance with the suggestion of the Senator.

Mr. GORMAN. One other word. I desire to say to the distinguished Senator from California [Mr. WHITE] that so anxious are we that there shall be no variation from the understanding to which I have referred that those of us who are members of the Committee on Commerce, and who were unable to execute an order of the Senate made at the last session, propose at our own expense, and without any expense whatever to the Senate, to visit the Pacific Coast and to perform the duty then assigned to that committee.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President—

Mr. CULLOM. Will the Senator from Florida allow me to say a word about the resolution on which the Senator from Maryland has been speaking?

Mr. CALL. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. CULLOM. By leave of the Senator from Florida, I desire to say that the Committee on Commerce has twice, I think, been authorized by the Senate to make an investigation on the Pacific coast. It is well known that the extra session of Congress, and various matters concerning the public interests, have heretofore interfered with the committee making that investigation, but I agreed with the Senator from Maryland, and joined with him in arriving at the determination, that no committees should be authorized to sit during the recess or to travel at the public expense.

There has been a great deal of discussion for years past with reference to the location of a deep harbor on the southern Pacific coast. Some members of the committee have visited various places there heretofore, and claim that from their investigation they are satisfied as to the course which should be pursued, while others of us have not had that opportunity, and there has been a desire on the part of those who have not visited the coast and examined those harbors to do so for the purpose of determining what their duty requires them to do in the premises. I have been one of those, and I hope that I may have the opportunity during the vacation of going to the Pacific coast and seeing those places for myself at my own expense, and without any expense to the Government of the United States.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President, the resolution I have moved to take up asks for no appropriation of money and involves no expense. The religious and moral people of this country will contribute the necessary means for that investigation, which the Senator from Maryland desires to suppress. The considerations which are alleged by him have no reality; they do not relate to the subject. It is known that a great and powerful organization, a foreign corporation, is striking at the very vitals of republican government, and the moral and religious sentiment of the people of this country has been aroused against it. I have done all in my power. Let the division be made, Mr. President. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the resolution.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Florida to take up the resolution. [Putting the question.] The "noes" appear to have it.

Mr. CALL. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

The Secretary proceeded to call the roll.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is. Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. ALDRICH and Mr. MANDERSON. Let it be read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution will be read.

Mr. CULLOM. Before that is done, will the Senator from Florida allow me to call up a resolution in reference to the employment of an old messenger of this body?

Mr. CALL. I will yield for that purpose.

JOSEPH MCGUCKIAN.

Mr. CULLOM. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution for the employment of Joseph McGuckian as a messenger of the Senate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution reported from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate on the 19th ultimo, as follows:

Resolved, That Joseph McGuckian be placed on the messenger-roll of the Senate at a salary of $200 per annum, to be paid monthly out of the contingent fund of the Senate, and that he be assigned to one of the committees of the Senate now without a messenger.

Mr. COCKRELL. That resolution was called up last night; I objected to it, and I enter my objection to it now. It can not pass at this time.

Mr. CULLOM. I was not aware that the resolution had been objected to last night.

Mr. COCKRELL. It was.

Mr. CULLOM. I desire to say that it is for the employment of a poor old man, who was long in the service of the Senate and who ought to be employed.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. There is objection to the present consideration of the resolution.

VENTILATION OF SENATE CHAMBER.

Mr. JONES of Arkansas. I am directed by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred a resolution submitted by the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR], to report it with an amendment. I ask the Senate to consider the resolution at this time.

Mr. CALL. I demand the regular order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Florida demands the regular order, which is the consideration of the resolution submitted by him.

Mr. HOAR. I hope the Senator from Florida will allow the resolution, which relates to the ventilation of the Senate Chamber, to be now considered.

Mr. CALL. I yield for that purpose.

By unanimous consent, the Senate proceeded to consider the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Rules be directed to report at the next session of Congress whether any improvement can be made in the ventilation of the Senate Chamber, and in their discretion to obtain the opinion of experts on the subject, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.

The amendment reported by the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate was, after the words "Senate Chamber," to strike out:

And in their discretion to obtain the opinion of experts on the subject, to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

SALARIES OF CONGRESSIONAL EMPLOYEES.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the joint resolution (H. Res. 287) authorizing the Secretary of the Senate to place on the rolls of the House of Representatives to pay to the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives borne on the annual rolls their respective salaries for the month of March on the 9th day of said month.

By unanimous consent, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. KERR, its Clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House had signed the following enrolled bills and joint resolution; and they were thereupon signed by the Vice-President:

A bill (S. 2362) to amend the act entitled "An act authorizing the Texas and Fort Smith Railway Company to bridge the Sulphur River in the State of Arkansas and in the State of Texas," approved April 21, 1894;

A bill (H. R. 4162) for the relief of John W. Kennedy; national and interstate commerce and the postal service subject to the jurisdiction and laws of the United States.

A bill (H. R. 6831) granting a pension to Mrs. Mary E. Wyse, widow of Lieut. Col. F. O. Wyse; and

A joint resolution (H. Res. 286) to extend the time in which members of the Fifty-third Congress may distribute documents,

HONDURAS OR LOUISIANA LOTTERY COMPANY.

Mr. CALL. I now ask for a vote on my resolution.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Secretary will read the resolution of the Senator from Florida.

The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved by the Senate, That a special committee be, and is hereby, created, who shall be charged with the duty of inquiring and reporting to the Senate whether the Louisiana or Honduras Lottery Company has been established and is now operating in the United States and is engaged in business thereon in the interest of the mails and of the interests of the insurance corporations or companies in violation of the laws of the United States.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Mr. President, I have no purpose of opposing the resolution of the Senator from Florida, but I desire before the Senate votes upon it to make a single statement. It was unanimously agreed by committees representing both political sides of this Chamber that no consent of the Senate should be given for the sitting of committees during the recess.

I asked but a few moments ago for authority, when I saw that that agreement was not being carried out, for the Committee on Rules to sit in the city of Washington during the coming vacation, without making any charge upon the contingent fund of the Senate, with a view of submitting at the next session of Congress such revision of the rules as it might deem proper to offer to the Senate for its consideration. That request was not agreed to, and was not allowed.

I wish to bear witness to the correctness of the statement made by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] that the steering committees of the Senate did agree, and agreed unanimously, that no committee should be given the power which the resolution now before the Senate carries to the committee proposed to be raised from the Senator from Florida.

One thing more, Mr. President, before I close. It is true that no charge is made upon the contingent fund of the Senate by the terms of the resolution of the Senator from Florida, but we know very well that if this resolution is adopted, and this committee goes to Florida to prosecute the inquiry with which it is charged, when the Fifty-fourth Congress meets a demand will be made in the shape of a resolution to pay the expenses incident to the execution of this order.

Mr. MANDERSON. Will the Senator kindly yield to me to offer a resolution with which I know he will be in entire accord?

Mr. BLACKBURN. I have said all I care to say. Mr. President, on this subject.

THANKS TO THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE.

Mr. MANDERSON. I submit a resolution that I ask be read for information, and I shall then ask unanimous consent for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FAULKNER in the chair). The resolution will be read.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate are due and are hereby tendered, to Hon. ISAM B. HARRIS, President of the Senate pro tempore, for the ability, dignity, courtesy, and unswerving loyalty with which he has discharged the duties of the chair during the present session.

Mr. MANDERSON. I ask for the present consideration of the resolution.

The resolution was considered by unanimous consent, and unanimously agreed to.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senators, your indulgence and kindly aid have made the duties of the President pro tempore easy and pleasant. Accept my profound thanks for the resolution that you have just agreed to.

LOUISIANA OR HONDURAS LOTTERY COMPANY.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is, Will the Senate agree to the resolution submitted by the Senator from Florida [Mr. CALL] proposing an investigation by a special committee of the operations of the Honduras Lottery Company?

Mr. ALDRICH. Mr. President, I desire to confirm the statement made by the Senator from Maryland [Mr. GORMAN] and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BLACKBURN] as to the agreement between the committees representing the two sides of the Chamber in regard to such resolutions. I do not claim, nor does the Senator from Maryland, I understand, that we could bind the Senate in the matter, but we could bind our individual action and prevent a resolution of this kind from being considered by unanimous consent.

The reason for the agreement on the part of these two committees must be obvious, I think, to the Senate. I can see no public interest that can be served by making this investigation. It is to be made at all, however, it should be made by a committee of standing and a committee which can make it in an impartial and a thorough manner, and it should be made by one of the standing committees of the Senate.

Under the leadership of the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. HOAR] we yesterday concurred with the other House in the amendments to the antilobby bill, so called, which is a measure of the most stringent character. We have taken steps by legislation to do everything in the power of Congress to stamp out the lottery business in the United States, and I have no doubt it will be done.

Does any Senator expect that this committee, if it is appointed, under the leadership of the Senator from Florida, is to have any effect upon the business of this lottery company? It is well known to every member of the Senate that it is to be simply a political committee, appointed for its effect upon the politics of Florida, and that it would serve no public purpose whatever. If this investigation is to be had let it be made thoroughly by a standing committee of the Senate already appointed, and without any expense to the United States.

I move to amend the resolution of the Senator from Florida by striking out the words "a special committee" and inserting "the Judiciary Committee of the Senate."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Secretary will state the amendment of the Senator from Rhode Island.

The SECRETARY. In the first line of the resolution strike out the words "a special committee" and insert "the Judiciary Committee of the Senate."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question is, Will the Senate agree to the amendment of the Senator from Rhode Island?

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President—

Mr. CALL. Will the Senator from Massachusetts allow me to say a word?

Mr. HOAR. Certainly.

Mr. CALL. Mr. President, I pronounce the statement made by the Senator from Rhode Island as being without foundation. He has no warrant, except his desire to promote the lottery in the United States, in saying this. He speaks without the warrant of truth or justification. There is no such knowledge with anyone, either in Florida or elsewhere, that this is a mere political resolution.

Mr. WOLCOTT obtained the floor.

Mr. QUAY. I rose to move to lay the resolution on the table.

Mr. HOAR. Will the Senator from Colorado allow me to say one word? I do not wish to detain the Senate.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Certainly.

Mr. HOAR. Mr. President, I do not propose to enter upon any discussion of the merits of this resolution or any other discussion within ten minutes of 12 o'clock to-day; but I wish to say as a vindication for myself that there has been some grave mistake somewhere, if any committee has undertaken to bind this side of the Chamber, certainly to bind me, by any agreement about this matter. I never knew there was such an agreement, and never authorized anybody to make it.

Mr. ALDRICH. In justice to the committee, I will say to the Senator from Massachusetts that he must have been inattentive to my statement.

Mr. HOAR. I spoke of the statement of the Senator from Maryland. I did not hear the statement of the Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. ALDRICH. I stated that it simply bound the members of the committees.

Mr. HOAR. Very well. I merely want to put myself right.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. President, for myself I am very glad indeed to be bound by any agreement by anybody who stands for during recesses. There was a distinct understanding between the two committees. It does not matter whether it is legally or not legally bind everybody is legally bind anybody. That it does Senator from Florida has made here on the sort of appeal the morally binds me, and in my opinion that which only binds non-morally should in this case affect every man who cares for the preservation of the public funds and is unwilling that the money of the in nine cases out of ten are intended to further somebody's political fortunes.

Mr. President, the attack which the Senator from Florida has made on the Senator from Rhode Island is utterly unwarranted. The Senator from Rhode Island can take care of himself. I know the general sentiment throughout this body is that such an investigation is needless and useless. Only yesterday we passed a law reported favorably the bill (H. R. 8389) to amend paragraph 1 of section 1 of an act approved August 30, 1890, entitled "An act to apply a portion of the proceeds of the public lands to the more complete endowment and support of the colleges for the benefit of agriculture and mechanic arts, established under the provisions of an act approved July 2, 1863," which was referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

JAMES CURRAN.

Mr. FIELDER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 2503) for the relief of James Curran.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Postmaster-General be, and is hereby, authorized to direct to give credit to James Curran, postmaster at Hoboken, N. J., in the sum of $5,560 for postage stamps stolen from said office on the 31 day of December, 1894, through no fault of the said James Curran.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

Mr. DOCKERY. Mr. Speaker, I shall have to object; but if the gentleman desires to make a statement I will reserve my objection.

Mr. FIELDER. Mr. Speaker, I will state that there are affidavits in connection with the Senate bill of two inspectors, one of whom was in the circuit in which the city of Hoboken is situated. The Postmaster-General, not being satisfied with the examination given by the inspector of the circuit, took an inspector from the West, who had never been on the circuit, and his report is still more favorable to the postmaster at Hoboken, showing that there was no carelessness on the part of the postmaster in connection with the burglary that was committed on his office. One of the burglars has been arrested. The other three have escaped to Europe. It is not asked that this amount shall be paid in money, but that it shall be placed to his credit in postage stamps. The amount, $5,560, says to be a very large sum, but still the loss resulted from no carelessness on his part. The inside lock of the safe was broken. It occurred during the day and was a sneak-thief robbery; and unless reimbursement is made in this way it will operate as a great hardship on this gentleman. I hope the gentleman will not object to the consideration of the bill.

Mr. DOCKERY. A credit is given to him for this amount on his account?

Mr. FIELDER. Simply credit is given as to this. I hope the gentleman will allow the bill to pass. I have not made many requests or asked unanimous consent in Congress for the passage of any bill that I did not believe was honest.

Mr. DOCKERY. I will say to my friend from New Jersey that the appropriations in this Congress are now probably, although I am not able to state the exact amount, over $500,000,000. For several days I have been objecting to the passage of every bill that carried any money, with the exception, a moment ago, of one, and I notified the House before I withdrew my objection then that I would be subject to criticism on that ground, but because of the peculiar circumstances I did not object. I stated that I would object to bills carrying money because our financial situation is such, in my judgment, as not to warrant incurring any further liability on the Treasury.

Mr. PAYNE. This would not add much to it. It is only about $5,500, and is a meritorious case.

Mr. DOCKERY. It does. It is an asset of the Treasury.

Mr. FIELDER. It does not carry any appropriation of money.

Mr. PAYNE. It is to be paid in postage stamps.

Mr. WELLS. It is put to his credit in postage stamps.

Mr. FIELDER. I will state that this gentleman, when the police asked if he would contribute toward the capture of the thieves, who he supposed to have gone abroad, he put his hand out and signed a check for $500 in order to have justice done. One of these thieves has been captured and is now in jail in New Albany.

Mr. DOCKERY. I know that these seem to be very hard cases. The gentleman from Chicago [Mr. GOLDZIER] has a claim almost as meritorious as this. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. SIBLEY] had one the other day, and it is a most ungracious thing for me to have to object.

Mr. GOLDZIER. What reason is there that they should not be fixed up in the interest of the Government? Why is it not a proper thing that they are not to be continued all through the years; and is it necessary that these things should be continued and brought on here before Congress for twenty-five years before they can be settled?

Mr. DOCKERY. I do not see why the claim should not be paid. I understand the Government bonds are made for the purpose of securing the Government.

Mr. GOLDZIER. Yes, sir.

Mr. DOCKERY. In the last Congress thousands came here to secure relief in which the Government was concerned, and there would seem to be but little use of taking bonds.

Mr. GOLDZIER. The gentleman from Missouri evidently does not understand fully the scope of these official bonds given by postmasters. An official bond is not given to secure the Government against an accident to the officer, such as robbery or theft without any fault on his part; and the Government has never attempted to recover on any such bond unless it could prove there was some negligence on the part of the postmaster or some one of his employees. Unless that is the case the Government can not recover.

Mr. DOCKERY. Does the gentleman mean to say that the Government can not recover on this bond?

Mr. GOLDZIER. That is exactly what I mean to say.

Mr. DOCKERY. Then it is absolutely unnecessary for the postmaster to come in here and ask for this relief.

Mr. GOLDZIER. No, sir; it straightens out his accounts.— Mr. DOCKERY. The law on this subject provides that where the amount of the loss does not exceed $2,000 the Postmaster-General, upon investigation, can grant relief. A recent investigation of matters of that kind in suit in that Department shows enormous losses on the bonds of postmasters.

Mr. FIELDER. When the bonds are good the Government can recover; but let me also state—

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Will the gentleman allow me to suggest what is the trouble in regard to the position taken by my colleague [Mr. DOCKERY]. Being a member of the Committee on Claims, I have found out how these things are done. I had a case of this kind from my own district. One of these strolling post-office inspectors came around to a post-office, and if he finds any loss or deficiency for which he thinks the postmaster is liable, he makes that postmaster settle the same and close that account before he will make return to the Department. Then, the postmaster, having paid what this inspector requires him to pay, must apply to the Department to get his money back. If the claim is less than $2,000, the Postmaster-General is authorized to settle it; if it is over that amount, the man must come here and worry his claim through the Committee on Claims and through this House in order to get his money.

Mr. GOLDZIER. And frequently he does not get it.

Mr. FIELDER. Allow me to say that the Government was somewhat responsible for this burglary, for this reason: After the inspector had made his examination he went to the Hall Safe Manufacturing Company, in New York City, and asked if they could make him a duplicate key like the one he exhibited. The safe people answered: "Yes." "What," said he, "do you make duplicate keys for everybody who asks you to do it? You do not know who I am. That is very strange." Then he asked them how many keys they had made of the sort he exhibited.

They could not tell him how many they had made. He then told them he was an inspector examining in relation to this burglary in Hoboken; and they said they had no idea of the number of keys they had made for this inspector, and they gave him the safe.

The outer door of the safe was closed, but the combination was not set. This burglary was committed in the day time; and the key of the door of the private office of the postmaster was simply an ordinary latchkey. This building was owned by the Government, and the safe was placed there by Government officials.

Mr. SPRINGER. Allow me to ask whether the Committee on Claims found that this burglary occurred without any fault on the part of the postmaster?

Mr. FIELDER. Yes, sir. The Senate Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads has reported in favor of the bill; the bill has passed the Senate; and in this House it has been favorably reported, the House committee concurring in the report of the Senate committee.

Mr. SPRINGER. What does the Post-Office Department say about the case?

Mr. FIELDER. Through its inspector the Department has reported favorably upon the claim, reciting the fact that there was no carelessness on the part of the postmaster, and that there was actually a robbery. That must have been so, because one of the burglars is now in jail, having confessed that he was one of four, and the other three have gone to Europe.

Mr. SPRINGER. The passage of this bill will not take any money out of the Treasury.

Mr. FIELDER. Not at all. It provides simply for reprinting the postage stamps.

Mr. SPRINGER. The bill to which reference has been made limiting the amount which the Post-Office Department may allow in these cases was the result of efforts of my own in this House since I have been a member. The object was to obviate the necessity of claims being brought to Congress. That bill was introduced by me, I think, in the Forty-seventh Congress, when I was a member of the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

As first introduced it authorized the Department to adjudicate all claims of this kind, and to make settlement with the postmasters concerned. But some one, out of abundant caution, insisted on a limitation as to the amount of the claims which might be settled in the Department, and that limitation was fixed at $2,000. Whenever a claim is in excess of that amount the law requires that it shall come to Congress. This case, involving a greater amount than the Department can allow, comes here for adjudication. It seems to me we should treat all these cases alike. Whether a burglary or theft occurs, without any fault on the part of the postmaster, the Government ought not to require him to suffer the loss.

MR. DOCKERY. Is this bill recommended by the Postmaster-General?

MR. FIELDER. Under the law he can make no recommendation in such a case; but the Postmaster-General, not being satisfied, as I have said, with the first investigation which was made in reference to this case, ordered another inspector to go upon the ground, one who had never been in that circuit, it being thought that possibly the inspector who usually traveled on that route might need Mr. Curran some special favor on account of being personally acquainted with him. Mr. Curran was postmaster at that city under Mr. Cleveland's former Administration.

MR. DOCKERY. When did this robbery occur?

MR. FIELDER. Within the last two or three months. I forgot the exact time—I think in January.

MR. DUNPHY. Mr. Speaker, I was on the subcommittee investigating this matter, and I have no doubt the facts stated by the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. FIELDER] are absolutely correct. It was in a Government building, and without the fault of the postmaster.

MR. DOCKERY. Well, Mr. Speaker, I can not stand against everybody. I withdraw objection to the bill.

There being no further objection, the bill was ordered to a third reading; and being read the third time, was passed.

On motion of Mr. FIELDER, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

SEATS FOR FEMALE EMPLOYEES.

MR. DE ARMOND. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 1841) to provide that all persons employing female help in stores, shops, offices, or manufacturing as clerks, assistants, operatives, or helpers in any business, trade, or occupation carried on or operated by them, shall be required to procure and provide proper and suitable seats for all such females and to permit the use of such seats, or, if seats, as may be necessary, and shall not make any rules, regulations, or orders preventing the use of such stools or seats when any such female employees are not actively employed in their work in such business or employment.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That all persons who employ females in stores, shops, offices, or manufacturing as clerks, assistants, operatives, or helpers in any business, trade, or occupation carried on or operated by them, shall be required to procure and provide proper and suitable seats for all such females and to permit the use of such seats, or, if seats, as may be necessary, and shall not make any rules, regulations, or orders preventing the use of such stools or seats when any such female employees are not actively employed in their work in such business or employment.

Sec. 2. That if any employer of female help shall neglect or refuse to provide seats, as provided in this act, or shall make any rules, orders, or regulations in their shops, stores, offices, or business requiring females to remain standing when not necessarily employed in service or labor therein, they shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction shall be liable to a fine therefor in a sum not to exceed $50, with costs, in the discretion of the court.

The Committee on the Judiciary recommend the adoption of the following amendments:

Amend by inserting between the words "them" and "shall," in line 6 of section 1, and also between the words "help" and "shall," in line 1 of section 2, the words "in the District of Columbia," and by striking out the words "their shops, stores, or other places of business," in lines 3 and 4 of section 2, and inserting in lieu thereof the words "his shop, store, or other place of business," and by striking out the word "they," in line 6 of section 2, and inserting in lieu thereof the word "he."

Amend the title of the bill by inserting the words "in the District of Columbia" between the words "manufacturing" and "shall."

THE SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

MR. PICKLER. This is a very important bill, and ought to be passed. I would ask the gentleman if, in his judgment, it will endanger the passage of the bill by adopting the amendments?

MR. DE ARMOND. I think not. The Senate bill failed to contain a provision to make this applicable exclusively to the District of Columbia, and unless that amendment be adopted it would seem to apply to every State.

MR. PICKLER. The gentleman understands that I am not objecting to it. I was only apprehensive that to amend it now might result in the failure of the bill.

MR. DE ARMOND. I think not. I do not believe that there will be any contest over the amendments.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to a third reading; and being read the third time, was passed.

The title was amended in accordance with the recommendation of the committee.

On motion of Mr. DE ARMOND, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

JOSEPH H. THOMPSON.

MR. RICHARDSON of Tennessee. MR. SPEAKER, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 3398) for the relief of Joseph H. Thompson.

The bill was read at length.

MR. DOCKERY. Reserving the right to object, I ask the gentleman to make an explanation of the bill. I would suggest, however, that it is in order to suspend the rules at this time.

MR. RICHARDSON of Tennessee. MR. SPEAKER, this bill is for the relief of a constituent of mine, who was appointed consul to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, by President Johnson, in 1865. He sailed on the 26th day of October of that year, and was notified of the appointment at his home in Tennessee, and came on to Washington to receive instructions, his commission, and passport. I read from the report:

He received his instructions and passport on the 26th day of November, 1865, and on that day announced his readiness to depart for his post of duty. He sailed on the 27th day of November, 1865, and on the 28th day of December, 1865, he arrived at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. He did not delay his departure until further order, but assured him his salary would be paid as though he was at his post of duty.

In obedience to this wish or order of the Secretary, and with the assurance that his salary would be paid, he left on the 28th day of December, 1865, and remained in Washington or at his home in Tennessee until the receipt of a letter from the State Department bearing date April 20, 1866. On the receipt of that letter Mr. Thompson at once came to Washington, saw the Secretary of State, and announced his readiness to depart for his post of duty. The Secretary again said that he had just received important information from the State Department, which rendered it important that Mr. Thompson should still defer his departure until he (the Secretary) was better prepared to give final instructions. Again assuring Mr. Thompson that his salary was still to be paid on this wish of the Secretary, and with the assurance given as to salary, Mr. Thompson did remain either at Washington or at his home in Tennessee until the 23d of June, 1868, when for political reasons his appointment was rejected by the Senate.

This bill has been reported unanimously, I will state, by the Committee on Claims, and the fact is that he was paid one month on account of this appointment, but the remainder of his salary was refused.

I read further from the report of the Committee on Claims of the House:

He has made repeated efforts to collect the sum claimed by him, but without success.

In a letter dated January 4, 1876, the Acting Secretary of State, F. W. Seward, said that while there was an equitable basis for the claim, the Department could not adjust it, as there was no fund in hand or under control of the Government with which it could be paid. It is therefore recommended that the consideration of Congress.

The papers on file show that Henry O'Connor, attorney for the Department, uses the following words in reference to this claim: "Taking the facts as stated by Mr. Thompson, and there appears no reason to doubt their truth, I think he has an equitable claim against the Government—not a legal claim; but the Government will not adjust it, and the only remedy is to find out what it can be paid," and he added, "It is a case in which claimant must resort to Congress for relief."

He also states that all the facts in this case are set forth in detail by claimant himself in an affidavit dated July 21, 1894, which they append hereto as a part of this report.

The affidavit to which reference is made is embodied in the report.

Now, these are the facts: He was appointed consul and came to Washington four or five times from his home in Tennessee, and was assured that the payment of his salary would continue, while he was here on waiting orders, and although he was ready to go to his post of duty, he was detained here by the Secretary of State, and no compensation was paid him excepting for the one month. He lost the remainder of the time.

THE SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee to consider this bill at this time?

MR. DOCKERY. Mr. Speaker, I dislike very much to object to any claim; and especially to one proposed by my friend from Tennessee, but I am constrained to object to this.

UNITED STATES COURTS, WASHINGTON.

MR. DOOLITTLE. I ask unanimous consent to consider the bill (S. 1232) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the times and places to hold terms of the United States courts in the State of Washington."

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the second, fourth, fifth, and sixth sections of an act approved April 20, 1866, entitled "An act to provide for the times and places to hold terms of the United States courts in the State of Washington," be, and the same are hereby, amended to read as follows:

That the United States courts in the District of Columbia and for the district of Washington shall be held at the times and places provided by law for the holding of the United States district court in and for said district, and that at each of the terms of said circuit and district courts one grand and one petit jury only shall be summoned to serve in both said courts; Provided, That this act shall not be construed to deprive either court of power to issue special venire for additional jurors whenever, during a term, or at any adjourned term, a sufficient number shall not be in attendance.

Sec. 4. That said circuit and district courts shall be circuit and district courts for the entire district. Criminal cases and cases of seizure and forfeiture of property under the laws of the United States in said courts, may be commenced, tried, and finally determined in either of said divisions. Civil suits not of a local character which shall be brought in the district or circuit court of the United States for the district of Washington against a single defendant, or where all the defendants reside in the same division of said district, shall be brought in the division in which the defendant or defendants reside; or if the defendant or defendants reside in the district, or if the defendant is a corporation other than a domestic corporation of the State of Washington, suits not of a local character may be brought in the division in which the plaintiff, or one of several plaintiffs, resides; suits and proceedings in rem, or to recover possession of specific property, or involving or affecting the title to real estate, or in which the object of the suit is to change the title thereto, or to enforce an order or judgment, shall be brought in the division within which the property, or some part thereof, is situated; civil suits removed from courts of the State of Washington to the district court shall be brought in the division in which the cause of action arose, including the county in which the same may be pending at the time of such removal. All issues of fact in civil causes, cognizable in either of said courts, shall be tried and final judgments thereon rendered in the division in which the cause may be commenced pursuant to this section, unless by consent of both parties, the case shall be removed to some other division.

Sec. 4. The clerk of the district court and district courts for said districts shall each appoint a deputy clerk at the place where their respective courts are required to be held in the division of the district in which such clerk shall himself reside, each of whom shall, in the absence of the clerk, exercise all the powers and perform all the duties of the clerk within the division for which he is appointed. It shall be the duty of the clerk in which such deputy clerk shall be appointed to see that the clerk in each division is respectively appointed, and may be accumulated by such court at its pleasure; and the clerk shall be responsible for the selection and the negligence of all such deputies. Separate juries are essential to be kept, and a jury commissioner, to meet with the clerk in the selection of grand and petit juries, shall be appointed for each division, and shall be sworn and summoned by the clerk of each division from the counties composing the divisions for which the term are to be held at which they are to serve; but each grand jury shall be a grand jury for the whole district, with power to act upon any case cognizable therein under the laws of the United States.

Sec. 5. That two terms of the district court for the district of the State of Washington shall be held annually in each of said divisions and the district judge for the State of Washington shall have power to fix, and from time to time change, the times for commencing said terms by written orders, to be entered upon the minutes of the court, and the same shall be binding upon the provisions of statute now existing for the holding of said courts on the first Monday of April and November in each year is hereby repealed, and all suits, processes, recognitions, and attachments pending in the district court on or returnable to said court on the days last named are hereby transferred to, and shall be made returnable to, and have force in the said respective terms of this act provided in the same, and shall be treated with the same effect as they would have had as if the same were returnable to or pending in the terms of said courts provided for by this act.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to a third reading; and, being read the third time, was passed.

On motion of Mr. DOOLITTLE, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

OUTER BAR, BRUNSWICK, GA.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 2731) to amend the river and harbor act of August 7, 1894, providing for improving the outer bar of Brunswick, Ga.

The bill was read at length.

Mr. DOCKERY. I understand from the gentleman from Georgia that this bill makes an appropriation, but it simply enlarges the limit within the appropriation heretofore made.

Mr. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I should like to ask the gentleman from Georgia a question. I should like to know if this has been considered by the Committee on Rivers and Harbors of the House.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. This bill came to the House last night about 3 o'clock from the Senate, having passed that body unanimously. An effort was made to submit it to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors at that late hour, but it was of course impossible. I want to say further to my friend from Virginia that the entire project is simply enlarged by this bill so as to have a wider channel if Mr. Goodyear shall succeed, and the entire scheme, as my friend from Virginia will remember, was considered by the Committee on Rivers and Harbors at the last session.

Mr. JONES. I am very familiar with this subject, Mr. Speaker, and I know that it was not the opinion of the engineer in charge of this work that the gentleman who is making these experiments ever accomplished any good results, and despite that fact, despite the fact that the committee believed nothing had been accomplished, this gentleman made a very serious effort, and is making one now so far as I know, to secure payment from the Government for the expense he has incurred in making these experiments. Now, if this work is to go on and nothing is ever accomplished by it, and still this gentleman is to be paid for experimenting with dynamite away out in the Atlantic Ocean, it seems to me we ought not to extend this project. I will not object myself, but I just wish to know what this is.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. May I state to my friend from Virginia that the amount intended to be available by the language used in this act has already been paid, and not paid as a mere reimbursement, I will say to my friend from Virginia, but upon the testimony of Captain Carter himself, to whom my friend from Virginia refers, I believe?

Mr. JONES. Yes.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. There had been a deepening of the water across that ocean bar from some cause or other. The Committees on Rivers and Harbors of the Senate and House, so far as they had any knowledge of the facts, believed that that deepening was due to these experiments of dynamite.

Mr. JONES. I want to say to my friend that I was a member of the committee, and I never believed that the experiments with dynamite ever had anything in the world to do with it, and Captain Carter did not think so when I met him before the committee.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. Captain Carter said it may have been due to that.

Mr. JONES. Oh, yes.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. And this is simply the "no cure no pay" plan. At any rate, if any appeal should be made, as has already been done, for actual deepening, it will depend on the discretion of Congress, and I am sure we can always trust that.

Mr. CAMINETTI. Has the Chief of Engineers reported in favor of this proposition?

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. Let me say to my friend from California that this is a project which contemplates a new method of deepening ocean bars.

Mr. CAMINETTI. I understand that.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. And the engineer office has never been in favor of it.

Mr. CAMINETTI. Has the engineer office made any report upon it one way or the other?

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. The board contemplated by the act of last year is now surveying the bar at Brunswick to ascertain the effect of the past few months' work. Of course if there is no deepening there will be no money due.

Mr. CAMINETTI. Did the Committee on Rivers and Harbors act on this matter at the last session?

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. They acted on this identical project at the last session.

Mr. CAMINETTI. I think, at this time of the session, to pass such a bill as this would not be just to all other river and harbor improvements throughout the United States. It is understood throughout the country that we have but one river and harbor bill in each Congress, and I think what is good for one part of the country is good for another. Therefore I object.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. I hope that my friend from California will not insist upon his objection.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from California objects.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. Then, Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass it.

The SPEAKER. But there is no quorum here.

Mr. TURNER of Georgia. I withdraw the motion for a moment.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Tennessee. I ask that the Speaker lay before the House the message of the Senate.

Subsequently

Mr. CAMINETTI said: Mr. Speaker, I thought this was entirely a new matter, but it has been already passed upon by the Rules and Administration Committee, and I withdraw the objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there further objection?

Mr. RYAN. I object.

Subsequently

Mr. RYAN said: I withdraw the objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there further objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

"Sec. 28. That said railway company is directed to build and operate the extension herein granted within six months after the North Capitol street branch shall be in operation to Michigan avenue.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Tennessee. I move to concur in the Senate amendment. The Senate amendment was concurred in.

MRS. MATTIE S. HOLLAND.

Mr. BOATNER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the bill (H. R. 7945) for the relief of Mrs. Mattie S. Holland, of West Carroll Parish, La., together with all accompanying papers, be, and the same are hereby, referred to the Court of Claims, under the provisions of an act of Congress entitled, "An act to provide for the bringing of suits against the Government of the United States," approved March 3, 1887.

Mr. PAYNE. Reserving the right to object, I would like to inquire about this.

Mr. BOATNER. I would state, Mr. Speaker, to the gentleman from New York, and for the information of those present, that this is a claim for supplies taken by General Grant when near the city of Vicksburg. A resolution was passed by the Fifty-second Congress directing the Quartermaster-General to take an account between the claimant and the Government, which he declined to execute, on the ground that there was no appropriation for it. This resolution merely refers the party to the Court of Claims, under the provisions of existing law, for the purpose of the court making a report of whatever may be due.

Mr. PAYNE. Would the court have a right to give a judgment?

Mr. BOATNER. Not at all. It is to be referred to the court merely for the purpose of ascertaining the facts and having them reported to Congress.

Mr. DOCKERY. Under the Bowman Act?

Mr. BOATNER. This is merely to report the findings of fact. I ask that the resolution be again read.

The resolution was again read.

Mr. GROSVENOR. Is this reference to be made under the Bowman Act?

Mr. BOATNER. The resolution simply directs the court to find the facts and report to Congress.

Mr. DOCKERY. Is the act referred to the Bowman Act?

Mr. BOATNER. I have forgotten whether it is the Bowman Act or the Tucker Act.

Mr. DOCKERY. There is this difference: The Bowman Act simply authorizes the finding of the facts in regard to the amount of the claim and the loyalty of the claimant, without the right on the part of the court to enter judgment; while the Tucker Act, as I understand, authorizes the court to render judgment in such cases.

Mr. PAYNE. Unless the reference to the act be made more specific in many objects.

Mr. BOATNER. Will it not satisfy gentlemen if an amendment be added to this effect: "Provided that the court shall make report to Congress on the facts, including the question of the loyalty of the claimant, but shall render no judgment against the United States?" I am perfectly willing such an amendment should be adopted.

There being no objection, the House proceeded to the consideration of the resolution.

Mr. BOATNER. I offer the amendment which I have just stated.

The amendment was agreed to; and the resolution as amended was adopted.

DEEP WATERWAYS.

Mr. GROUT. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the joint resolution (S. R. 130) authorizing a preliminary inquiry concerning deep waterways between the ocean and Great Lakes and providing commissioners therefor.

The joint resolution was read.

Mr. LOCKWOOD. I object.

JOSEPH W. FISHER.

Mr. COFFEEN of Wyoming. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill (S. 1957) to increase the pension of Joseph W. Fisher.

The bill, with the amendment of the Committee on Invalid Pensions striking out "$72" and inserting "$50," was read.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wyoming [Mr. COFFEEN]?

Mr. JONES. I object.

Mr. COFFEEN of Wyoming. I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair can not recognize the gentleman for that motion now.

CHRISTOPHER SCHMIDT.

Mr. KIEFER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 573) for the relief of Christopher Schmidt.

The bill was read.

Mr. DOCKERY. I object.

MILDRED P. POULLAIN.

Mr. LAWSON. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the resolution which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the bill (H. R. 983) for the relief of Mildred P. Poullain, widow of Dr. Thomas N. Poullain, deceased, be, and the same is hereby, referred to the Court of Claims, to be determined under sections 1059, 1060, and 1061 of the Revised Statutes, and that said court proceed to consider and render judgment on said claim irrespective of the statute of limitations or any question of loyalty of said Thomas M. Poullain, and the judgment of said court be reported to Congress.

Mr. PAYNE. I object.

ESTATE OF HOLMES SELLS, DECEASED.

Mr. REILLY. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of a resolution referring to the Court of Claims a bill for the relief of the estate of Holmes Sells, deceased. This claim is embraced in a resolution reported favorably by the Committee on War Claims.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the bill (H. R. 3560) for the relief of the estate of Holmes Sells, deceased, together with all accompanying papers, be, and the same is hereby, referred to the Court of Claims, under the provisions of all existing laws providing for the findings of fact by said court in cases so referred, and to report the same to Congress.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of this resolution?

Mr. DOCKERY. I object.

Mr. REILLY. The resolution proposes merely to refer this case to the Court of Claims for a finding of facts. There has been a unanimous report in favor of such reference by the Committee on War Claims. The claim is for stores and supplies taken for the use of the Army, and the Committee on War Claims, in pursuance of the acts of Congress in such cases, have unanimously reported in favor of this reference. The resolution provides simply for a finding of facts to be reported to Congress.

Mr. DOCKERY. What kind of supplies were these?

Mr. REILLY. Supplies for the Army.

Mr. BYNUM. The committee itself can refer these claims if it chooses.

Mr. REILLY. I think that recently it has been considered that alone. We have deferred—yes, deferred—the restoration of bi-metalism by undertaking for fifteen years past to relieve other countries from the pressure that was coming upon them in consequence of the wide divergence of silver and gold. If gentlemen really want bimetalism they will stand where they are until the leading commercial nations can be brought to unite with us in fixing a ratio which can be maintained so as to secure to us the use of both metals as money, and not so as to bring about silver monometallism, which would be the result of the policy which the gentleman from Nebraska advocates here. [Applause.]

Mr. BRYAN. I ask the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. REILLY] to yield me five minutes in order that I may reply to the gentleman from Maine [Mr. Dingley].

Mr. REILLY. I am sorry to say that I can not do so. I have promised to yield to other gentlemen.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR] is now recognized for two minutes.

[Mr. GROSVENOR withholds his remarks for revision, and they will appear hereafter.]

The SPEAKER. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The previous question was ordered; and under the operation thereof the amendment to the resolution was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was adopted.
On motion of Mr. REILLY, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was adopted was laid on the table.

ELIAS, MAY & CO.

Mr. LIVINGSTON was recognized.
Mr. DOCKERY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House now take a recess until 11 o'clock.

Mr. BRYAN. Oh, no; let us go on with the discussion of the monetary question.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia is recognized.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. I ask unanimous consent to consider the bill (H. R. 2715) for the relief of Elias, May & Co., of Atlanta, Ga. The bill was read at length.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the present consideration of this bill?

Mr. LOCKWOOD. I object.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Will the gentleman not withdraw the objection to permit me to make a brief statement?

Mr. LOCKWOOD. No; I object.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Missouri that the House take a recess until 11 o'clock.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. SIMPSON) there were—ayes 110, noes 13.

Mr. SIMPSON. No quorum.

The SPEAKER pro tempore appointed Mr. SIMPSON and Mr. DOCKERY as tellers.

Mr. SPRINGER. Pending this count, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that members may have the privilege of publishing remarks in the RECORD on the monetary conference question during the remainder of the week.

Mr. HATCH. That has been objected to a half a dozen times. Mr. SPRINGER. But the objection is withdrawn.

Mr. HATCH. Members who are not present now have objected heretofore, and it is not fair in their absence to bring this matter up again. I never make personal objection myself, but this has been already objected to.

Mr. SPRINGER. The gentleman from Florida [Mr. MALCOLM] objected, but he has withdrawn his objection.

Mr. HATCH. Then I renew it in the most emphatic way.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, at the request of the gentleman from Missouri I will withdraw the point of no quorum.

So (no further count being demanded), at 10 o'clock and 14 minutes a. m., the House took a recess until 11 o'clock.

AFTER THE RECESS.

The recess having expired, the House, at 11 a. m., was called to order by the Speaker.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. COX, its Secretary, announced that the Senate had passed the following resolution:

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the clerks of the House be authorized and directed to make such changes in the engraved copy of the bill (H. R. 2873) entitled "An act authorizing the Dyersburg and Mississippi Railway and Improvement Company to bridge the Union River in the State of Tennessee, and for other purposes," as will cause said engraved copy to conform with said bill as it passed the House of Representatives.

Also, that the Senate had passed joint resolution (S. Res. 143) authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to deliver two pieces of condemned cannon to the First Regiment North Carolina State Guards.

Also, that the Senate had passed without amendment joint resolution (H. Res. 287) authorizing the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives to pay to the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives borne on the annual salary list the respective salaries for the month of March on the 9th day of said month.

COMMITTEE TO WAIT UPON THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, I desire to submit a resolution for present consideration.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will be read.
The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That a committee of three members be appointed on the part of the House to join such committee as has been appointed by the Senate to wait upon the President of the United States to inform him that Congress having finished its business, is now ready to close its sessions by adjournment.

The resolution was agreed to.

The SPEAKER announced the appointment of Mr. CATCHINGS, Mr. OUTWHAITE, and Mr. REED as the committee to wait upon the President.

COMMITTEE ON ACCOUNTS.

The SPEAKER announced the appointment of Mr. RUSK, Mr. MENDITH, and Mr. COFFIN of Maryland as the Committee on Accounts, to serve during the vacation of Congress under the provisions of the legislative bill.

JOHN W. ALMARODE.

Mr. SPRINGER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer for present consideration a resolution providing payment out of the contingent fund of the House.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House be, and he is hereby, authorized to pay, out of the contingent fund of the House, John W. Almarode, father of Ernest Almarode, deceased, late an employee of the House of Representatives, a sum equal to six months of the salary paid to him at the time of his death, and also to pay to him the amount of the expenses of the last illness and funeral of said Ernest Almarode, said expenses not to exceed $50, to be paid on bills of particulars as now required by law.

Mr. SAYERS. Will the gentleman please explain the purpose of this resolution?

Mr. SPRINGER. This resolution, I will state, has been approved by the Committee on Accounts, but owing to the fact that the death of the employee occurred in the closing hours of the last Congress it could not be privileged to report it, and hence, it was reported with the recommendation that it be referred to the Committee on Appropriations to put in one of the appropriation bills. As it is now too late, since the appropriation bills have all been passed, I ask unanimous consent to pass it and provide for the payment out of the contingent fund of the House, as prescribed in the resolution.

Mr. SAYERS. This is a resolution providing for the usual six months' pay and the burial expenses?

Mr. SPRINGER. That is all.

Mr. JONES. Was not that resolution defeated in the Fifty-third Congress?

Mr. SPRINGER. It was not defeated; it was referred to a committee.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

There being no objection, the resolution was considered and agreed to.

On motion of Mr. SPRINGER, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

The Clerk read as follows:

Joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House of Representatives to pay to the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives, borne on the annual rolls, their respective salaries for the month of March, on the 9th day of said month.

Resolved, etc. That the Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives be, and they are hereby, authorized and directed to pay to the officers and employees of the Senate and House of Representatives, including the Capitol police, their respective salaries for the month of March, 1896, on the 9th day of said month.

Mr. SAYERS. Mr. Speaker, this is the usual resolution.

Mr. SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

There was no objection.
The resolution was agreed to.

ELECTRIC BELLS, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. CANNON of Illinois. I desire to ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, That the Architect of the Capitol, under the direction of the Committee on Accounts, and in their discretion, be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to introduce a system of electric bells in the Hall of the House, connecting the desks of members with apartments to be fitted up in the rear of the Hall for the convenience of members in communicating with pages, the expenses of said system to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House, the amount of the expenditure not to exceed $1,000.

Mr. DOCKERY. I think that is a very proper resolution.

Mr. MC MILLIN. From what committee does this come?

Mr. CANNON of Illinois. It does not come from any committee, but after consultation, so far as I have been able to have it, with members on both sides, it seemed to be apt and properly suggested.

Mr. MC MILLIN. Let us have it reported again.

The resolution was again read.

Mr. DOCKERY. That is all right.

The resolution was agreed to.

CONDEMNED CANNON TO NORTH CAROLINA STATE GUARDS.

Mr. BUNN. Mr. Speaker. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the following Senate joint resolution which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The joint resolution was read, as follows:

Resolved, etc. That the Secretary of the Navy be, and is hereby, authorized and directed to deliver to the First Regiment North Carolina State Guards two pieces of condemned cannon, provided that the same can be spared without detriment to the service and no expense is thereby incurred by the Government.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

The joint resolution was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

And then, on motion of Mr. SAYERS, at 11 o'clock and 15 minutes a. m., the House took a recess for fifteen minutes.

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. Speaker. I ask unanimous consent that for the remainder of this session to-day members' families who have been unable to find seats in the galleries may be seated on the floor or in the corridor of the House. I understand that there is a large number of the wives and daughters of members in the corridors who have been unable to secure seats.

The SPEAKER. Under the rules the Chair can not submit that request; but—

Mr. BRECKINRIDGE. If the Doorkeeper does not interpose, I presume the Chair will not.

Mr. HATCH. I ask unanimous consent that it be done; and if there be no objection the Doorkeeper will be permitted to admit the wives and daughters of members during the remainder of the session. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered. [Great laughter and applause.]

The SPEAKER. The Chair can not submit a request of that kind under the rules. The committee is ready to report.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE TO WAIT ON THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. CATCHINGS. Mr. Speaker, your committee appointed in conjunction with a similar committee of the Senate to wait upon the President and advise him of the state of the business of the House have discharged that duty, and are requested by the President to say that he has no further communication to make to Congress.

WITHDRAWAL OF PAPERS.

Mr. GORMAN, by unanimous consent, obtained leave to withdraw from the files of the House, without leaving copies, the papers in the case of Jacob M. Hamburger, Fifty-third Congress, no adverse report having been made thereon.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

THE SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HATCH). The House will be in order.

Mr. VAN VOORHIS of New York. I ask unanimous consent that the families of members be admitted to the floor. [Laughter.]

Mr. SPRINGER. I understand that that consent has already been given by the present occupant of the chair.

THE SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois.

VOTE OF THANKS TO THE SPEAKER.

Mr. CANNON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, in a government by the people a majority can only manifest its will through organization and cooperation. This necessarily becomes a government through parties and begets two great party organizations, which, from time to time, change places from the majority to the minority party. Strong antagonisms result between the parties, and between individuals as they stand for parties and policies. In this, the greatest legislative body on earth, the Speaker for the time being is the greatest individual factor. He must, within proper bounds, subserve the interests of his party and at the same time accord to the minority the rights to which it is entitled.

The Fifty-third Congress is about to pass into history. Before it expires it is my privilege and pleasure, as one of the minority, to testify my appreciation of the fairness and courtesy of the Speaker of the House. [Loud general applause.] I therefore send this resolution to the Clerk's desk and ask that it be read, and move its adoption.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the thanks of this House are presented to the Hon. CHARLES F. CRISP for the able, impartial, and dignified manner in which he has presided over its deliberations and performed the arduous and important duties of the Chair.

[Loud applause.]

Mr. WILSON of West Virginia. Responding on the spur of the moment to the remarks of the gentleman from Illinois and to his graceful action in offering the resolution just read at the Clerk's desk, I feel that I am authorized by my associates upon this side of the House to say that we are duly sensitive to the kindness and courtesy of the gentleman from Illinois. [Loud applause on the Democratic side.] It is a pleasant thing, at the close of a Congress in which there has been as much of political legislation and as much of party antagonism as in any Congress of recent years, that the House can testify, as I am sure it will testify unanimously, to the ability, the dignity, and the impartiality of its presiding officer.

No position in connection with the Federal Government, in my opinion, requires a combination of stronger qualities than are demanded of the man chosen to direct the proceedings of this House. No man is subjected to stronger pressure; no man is so exposed to stand perpendicular in the clash of conflicting interests; and it is a grateful episode at the close of our work that we can unite most heartily in the adoption of the resolution voluntarily tendered by an able opponent, and made the more honorable by the deliberate and hearty words with which he has presented it.

And I wish to add one more word—that the most delightful thing about service in this House, speaking, as I now do, from an experience of several sessions, is that the sharpest political antagonisms do not make personal estrangements among its members, and that the line which divides the two sides of the House politically does not divide us as Americans, as patriots, and as friends. [Loud general applause.] I understand that this is not the good fortune of legislative assemblies in other countries where parties are arrayed against each other. I understand that party differences there generally beget more or less personal estrangement; but all of us have felt, I am sure, that, however intense men may be in their partisanship, and however ardent and zealous and even severe they may be sometimes in their utterances on the floor, the worth of the man himself and his own personal character is that which fixes him in the respect and in the affection of his fellow-members. I am sure this is a happy preeminence of our House of Representatives. May it continue and increase in all the future history of this Chamber. [Loud applause.]

Mr. CANNON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I yield a moment to the gentleman from Kansas.

Mr. SIMPSON. Mr. Speaker, representing in part as I do the People's Party, who in this House have but 10 members, and are therefore in a hopeless minority, I want to testify in behalf of those few gentlemen to the uniform courtesy and fairness with which the Speaker of the House has treated us on every occasion [applause], and to say that it is another proof of the manhood and manliness of the American citizen that, in whatever position of place or power he may be found, he is always disposed to treat with courtesy and fairness all parties alike. In behalf of the representatives of the People's Party here I desire to bear this testimony to the kindness, the courtesy, and the fairness of the Speaker of this House. [Loud applause.]

Mr. CANNON of Illinois. I yield now to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR].

Mr. GROSVENOR. Mr. Speaker, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, it has been often said, is the agent and the representative of the House, but under our form of administration he becomes also to a very large extent the agent and representative of his own political party. Therefore it is that at the end of the Congress, such as this has been, it is a very high testimonial to the ability and manliness manifested and the great character earned by a Speaker of the House that an expression like this can be justly due to him. I join with great cordiality in indorsing all that has been said in honor of the Speaker of this House of Representatives. [Applause.]

Mr. CANNON of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I ask for a vote upon the resolution.

The question was taken, and the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HATCHER). Three hundred and twenty-five members have voted in the affirmative and none in the negative, and the resolution is unanimously adopted.

The Speaker here came into the Hall and was greeted with loud and prolonged applause.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Mr. Speaker, before yielding the gavel I call upon the Clerk to read a resolution which the House has just adopted by a unanimous vote.

The Clerk again read the resolution as above.

The SPEAKER. Representatives, I know you will pardon me if, before performing my last official act, I give some expression to what I feel, not only in regard to the resolution which you have just so unanimously adopted, but in respect to the uniform kindness, courtesy, and consideration with which I have been treated by every member of this body. Those who are unacquainted with the methods of procedure here have but little conception of the trials, the troubles, and the difficulties of legislation in a body like this.

This is the largest Congress that ever assembled in the United States, consisting of 356 Members besides the Delegates. These gentlemen are representative men. They represent all the shades of thought and opinion in all parts of the grandest country under the sun. [Applause.] Naturally, and indeed necessarily, under such conditions there are at times great strife and struggle upon the floor for the maintenance of the particular views of individuals, and earnest effort for the consideration of particular measures.

The difficulties of the presiding officer arise largely from this, that whereas there are perhaps 14,000 or 15,000 bills introduced in a Congress, in the nature of things but a small number of them can have consideration. If all the measures introduced could be considered and acted upon by the House, then the duties of the presiding officer and of the members would be rendered much less difficult, but when only a small portion of the measures introduced can be considered, there is necessarily a struggle to determine what those particular measures shall be, and from year to year this difficulty increases.

The present occupant of the chair, when he entered upon his duties—and he is sure that in making this expression he but echoes the experience of every one of his predecessors—had no conception of the difficulties incident to the office of Speaker. That I have been enabled in any measure to discharge the duties of this office to your satisfaction is largely due to your kindness, to your consideration, and to your constant help. We are now about to go to our respective homes.

We have been in session continuously longer, perhaps, than any Congress in the history of the Government. We have been surrounded by difficulties and trials, but I am sure I can say, not only for the body in the aggregate, but for each member of it, that however we may have failed, whatever our shortcomings may be, we have, according to our honest convictions, endeavored to do that which was for the best interests of the whole American people. [Applause.]

Again I thank you; and when I say that I but feebly express my feelings. Never in my life, no matter what may be its future, can I expect to attain to so high an office as that which I owe to your kindness, to your consideration, to your partiality.

In laying down that office the greatest gratification that could be afforded me is the assurance in your resolution that I have discharged the duties of the position to the satisfaction of those gentlemen to whom I owe the office and to those gentlemen on the other side, who have always extended to me the utmost courtesy and kindness. And to each and every member of the House, as he is now about to return to his home, I extend my heartfelt thanks, and express the hope that he may be reunited with his family and friends in health and in happiness. [Loud and general applause.]

THANKS TO HON. A. J. PEARSON.

Mr. BRYAN offered the following resolution; which was read, considered, and adopted:

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby expresses its appreciation of the faithful and efficient manner in which the Hon. A. J. PEARSON has performed the onerous duties of chairman of the Committee on Enrolled Bills.

APPOINTMENTS FOR MONETARY CONFERENCE.

The SPEAKER. The Chair announces the appointments which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Whereas "An act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, and for other purposes," provides "That whenever the President of the United States shall determine that the United States should be represented at any international conference
